Kentucky Windage

(By P. W.)

The announcement this week by the Illinois Central that it is contemplating construction of a massive classification yard on the outskirts of Fulton should indeed be music to the ears of Fulton and its immediate area.

Not only for the fact that up to $20 million dollars could conceivably be spent in constructing the facility, nor that it may contain as many as 72 tracks, have an 8,000-car capacity, nor that it would be some five miles long, but that it would once and for all establish Fulton as probably "THE" key point on the whole North-South Illinois Central system after it accomplishes its hoped-for-son merger with the GM&O.

Such a facility could bring hundreds of families here working in related traffic jobs and offices and maintenance facilities that the projected yard would inevitably attract.

We have heard the projected yard belittled by some railroaders insofar as providing more work here for more families. "Why, three or four men sit there and push the buttons, and that's all there is to it," one man volunteered.

"Not so," a person in some authority told us last week. "Not so at all." Handling this many cars on a round-the-clock operation will involve many, many additional personnel in all levels including new offices utilizing electronic machines and such. Without betraying any confidential matters, he indicated that the magnitude of the undertaking is potentially gigantic beyond belief.

The least that any of us can do is to express our desire to the IC to help them in any way we can to bring this project to a reality. We get the distinct impression, at times, that the IC isn't always sure that some Ful-tonians are extending them a hand of friendship, such as threatening train crews with fines if they should block crossings, etc.

For a twenty-million-dollar rail classification center we should put fire stations all over town, if it takes that to show them that we want them to grow, and we want to grow with them.

If you didn't know that the energetic Jaycees tackle a lot of good community projects during the year, here's an eyeopener for you. Last year their hard-working External Vice-President Tommy Perry reported 18 projects, including the following: a TV raffle, two car washes, fishing rodeo, safety flare sale, new sidewalk trash receptacles, turkey shoot, Halloween candy sale, Donkey ballgame, Junior Miss pageant, Americanism essay contest in the schools, Christmas-time projects that included erection of the community tree, Christmas lights and baskets for the needy, and Banana Festival projects that included handling the giant barbecue, staging the "Battle of the Bands" and erection of the stage.

This fine, energetic group of young men are one of the community's greatest assets. Our congratulations to outgoing President Ron Laird and his Club for a fine year.

Some 23 years ago almost to the exact date, Jo and I made our first business trip to Fulton, looked the community over, looked the Fulton County News plant over, and signed papers to buy the paper from Paul Bushart. From that day to this, it has always remained a baffling curiosity to us as to why the GM&O Railroad tracks should serve as a sort of invisible wall in the politics, thinking

News Owners Add "Courier" At Hickman

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling, editors and publishers of the Fulton News, announced last Saturday afternoon the purchase of the Hickman Courier from Ro and Lee Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner have operated the Fulton county newspaper for the past sixteen years of its 111-year existence. Gardner, who indicated that his newspaper was being heavily boycotted by advertisers because of his defense of a civil rights issue, stated that he could no longer endure the economic reprisals.

Mr. and Mrs. Westpheling, active in civic and business circles in Fulton, will continue to maintain the Courier newspaper plant in Hickman. The Courier is a tabloid-size weekly paper printed in its own plant by the offset process. Purchase of the Courier will in no way affect the operation of the Fulton newspaper.

The new owners assumed general operation of the Courier Monday morning under the personal direction of Mrs. Westpheling as its new editor. She stated that it would be the goal of the new owners to publish a newspaper compatible with the interests of the Courier subscribers and the community.

Get Your Questionnaire Ready For Census Taker

District Manager Miss Anita Brown reports good progress in this area of the 1970 Census of Population and Housing. Census takers started the house-to-house canvass April 1 to pick up the filled-out questionnaires distributed earlier by the Post Office.

The District Manager pointed out that residents can speed up the big count by having their questionnaires filled out and ready for the census takers. This action will save time for both the householder and the census taker, the District Manager said.

Answers should be made in pencil so that if a mistake is made, it can be erased. Most answers are to be made by blacking in a tiny circle beside the right answer. This makes a black dot which can be read by an electronic device at the

New Plant Will Build In Mayfield

The Ingersoll-Rand Co., of New York City, announced this week plans to build a new manufacturing facility at Mayfield, (Graves County, Kentucky.)

The announcement was made by L. M. Krouse, vice-president of Ingersoll-Rand, at a news conference with Gov. Louie B. Nunn in Frankfort.

The new plant manufacture industrial air compressors, one of the major product lines of the company. The Mayfield facility will bring the number of Ingersoll-Rand's manufacturing plants to 61. The company, a world-wide supplier of machinery, equipment and tools, had sales of over $700 million in 1969. Total employment exceeds 33,000 people throughout the United States, Canada, South America, and in all free countries of the world.

Krouse said construction will begin in the near future, and that he expects the Mayfield facility to begin operation in the summer of 1971.

Initially, the Mayfield plant will employ about 300.

IC May Build Huge Freight Classification Yard Here

The Illinois Central Railroad this week announced it is considering the location of a massive 8,000-car classification yard in Obion County and began on Tuesday obtaining options for the purchase of the necessary land.

While railroaders in Fulton were the first to admit that all plans are tentative at this time, they did say that if initial plans are finalized, the yard could be the second largest in the IC system.

Only the Markham yard at Chicago, Ill., with its capacity of 9,000 cars, would be larger than the proposed yard.

The facility, which would require 535 acres and would be five miles long, would be located one-half mile south of the state line at South Fulton to Harris Station, near the railroad's main line.

Representatives said the announcement is actually being made prematurely because of certain information leaks which have occurred over the past few months.

For this reason, they said they could not give full information on the proposed yard, its actual size, employment, cost or even its certainty.

However, an 8,000-car yard could contain as many as 72 tracks in its classification section and could cost as much as $18 to $20 million.

Such a yard could require as much as three years to construct but no starting date has been set.

According to the IC representatives, the railroad for many years has been considering the construction of a major yard in the Northwest Tennessee area.

Mr. Sykes described this area of the IC system as the neck of a funnel through which all northbound and southbound traffic must travel.

He said land acquisition and the future availability of capital improvement funds are two of the main factors upon which the building of such a new facility depends.

If built, the new facility is planned to be an electronic, push-button gravity classification yard with more than 10 times the capacity of the present yard at Fulton, a 750-car yard.

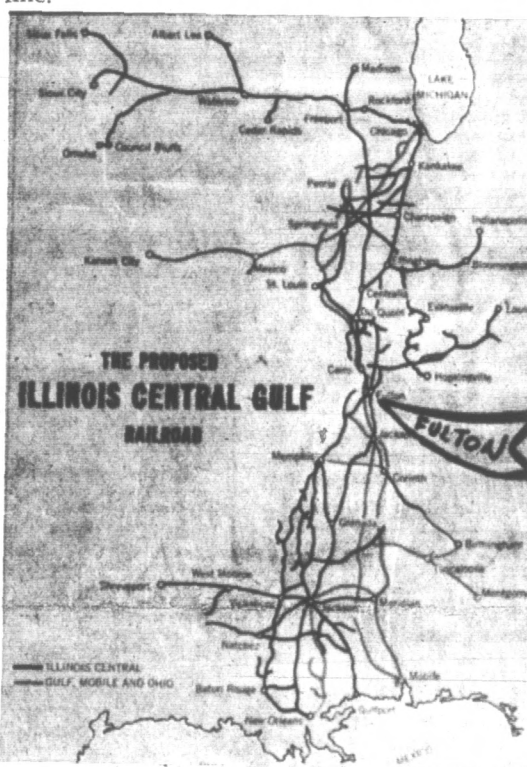

In full operation, the IC's new mid-system yard would consist of a multiple-track receiving and departure yard and a large classification yard. The facility would classify and group freight cars in trains moving to and from all points in the IC system.

Mechanical facilities for servicing locomotives and for inspection and light repairs of freight cars also would be available at the new Tennessee operation.

According to Mr. Sykes, the general lay-out of such a yard would include a receiving yard consisting of from three to 10 tracks about a mile-and-a-half long.

From this point, he said, the FULTON IS THE CENTRALLY-LOCATED FUNNEL point for all north-south rail traffic on the Illinois Central now, and will maintain that distinction even after the proposed "Illinois Central Gulf" is formed. This could be an important factor in locating a massive freight classification yard here.

Pretty Margo Mantle, Bardwell Is Mountain Laurel Candidate

Pretty Margo Mantle, a brown-eyed brunette from Bardwell, has been chosen to represent Murray State University in the annual Mountain Laurel Festival in Pineville, Tenn., this year.

Selected by a three-member judging panel from a field of 277 contestants Tuesday evening on the campus, she will be trying to bring the queen's crown back to Murray State for the third consecutive year.

Titlists from the university the last two years—both brunettes—were Mrs. Carolyn Albert Corryell in 1968 and Mrs. Kay Puckley Roedemeier in 1969. Mrs. Roedemeier served as coordinator for the campus competition this year.

A sophomore journalism major, Miss Mantle represented Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority in the judging, which included representatives of various campus organizations and women's dormitories.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bourke Mantle of Bardwell, she is queen of the Shield, the university yearbook, and is a former sweetheart of Alpha Gamma Rho social fraternity. Editor of her sorority, she finished as a runnerup in the Miss Murray State competition in December.

A shapely 5-3, 110-pounder, she says her selection left her "flabbergasted."

First runnerup was Elaine Stice, a freshman physical education major from Calvert City, who represented Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority.

Janet French, a freshman music major from Paris, Tenn., was the second runner-up. She was nominated by Elizabeth Hall, a women's dormitory.

Judges on the panel were Jeanne Elliott and Kenneth Wells, both of Mayfield, and Bob Swisher of Paducah. They made their selection on the basis of beauty, poise and personality from a field of 10 finalists left after the first interview session.

Other finalists and the organizations they represented were: Sharon Reid, Princeton, Sigma Delta; Mimi Lester Cadiz, Alpha Tau Omega; Pam Lassiter, Murray, Sigma Sigma; Cheryl Underwood, Fulton, Alpha Delta Pi; Aileen Thompson, Louisville, Women's Student Government Association; Debbie Edmonds, Murray, Pi Kappa Alpha; and Vicki Russell, Mayfield, Alpha Phi Delta, Mayfield.

Ann Landers

— Your Problems Bring Answers —

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a Registered Nurse who reads your column religiously. From time to time you deal with letters from mothers of overweight daughters. You always advise these mothers to stop nagging—to say nothing about what the girl eats or how she looks. You insist it is an emotional problem and the girl should work it out with a professional under the watchful eye of a physician.

My problem is the opposite. My daughter is not an eater—she is a starver. The girl is 17, skinny as a rail, has one cold after another, is always tired and irritable. I've tried everything under the sun to make her eat. I prepare beautiful food but she pushes the plate away and says, "I'm not hungry." She insists three meals a day is an old-fashioned habit and most people could live on one-tenth of what they eat and be healthier for it.

What can be done with a teenager who thinks she knows

it all? Worried In Newark

Dear Worried: Your basic problem is the same as the mother with the obese daughters. My advice is there—in your letter. I hope you heed it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married only a year to a man who has one terrible fault. No matter where we go—to a restaurant, to a movie, to the theater, a concert—wherever people gather—Jerry starts a conversation with anyone who will talk to him. The other evening we went to the ice show. He became so chatty with the woman on his left you would have thought she was his date. Her husband didn't like the way Jerry moved in on his wife. I sensed it immediately but Jerry gabbled on and on, totally insensitive to the man's hostility.

Last night Jerry started a conversation with a gentleman in the grocery store. The man was very cool. I was embarassed. When we left the store I asked Jerry why he does this. His answer: "I've never met a stranger."

What do you make of it? How can I cure him? — Puzzled Wife

Dear Wife: Your husband is a friendly fellow who assumes everyone appreciates being spoken to. He is wrong. Some people cherish their privacy and resent intrusion—especially by strangers.

There is no known cure for super-outgoing types like Jerry. Accept this personality defect and resign yourself to the fact that he will continue to start conversations wherever he goes because it is a compulsion which he cannot control.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a lovely mother-in-law who drinks like a fish and smokes like a chimney, talks incessantly about her head-aches, backaches, side-aches, gall-bladder attacks, asthmatic attacks and hives, refuses to go to a doctor because they are all "quacks" and runs her life according to what she reads in her horoscope?—Uppugensit Dear Up: You can listen.

The Hickman Courier Began Publication A Year Before The City Of Fulton Was Ever Born

The editors and publishers of The News have received many messages of congratulations from friends in Hickman, Fulton, Union City and around this area since the announcement last weekend that they had purchased the Courier at Hickman.

We both acknowledge the congratulations gratefully. We have tried to be civic-minded owners of this civic-minded newspaper in the 23 years that we have owned and operated it, and its success is due to the fact that the community we serve, and the whole area we serve, acknowledge that we have been able to make worthwhile contributions to its betterment.

That is the function of a newspaper: to serve its community and its area.

We are going to establish the same policy for the Hickman Courier. We feel that in many respects the city of Hickman is a sleeping giant, and that the 111-year-old Courier will one day soon arise to become one of the area's better newspapers at such time as that city's strategic position on the mighty Mississippi river again brings it the industry and the traffic that it enjoyed in bygone years.

And today, even without that potential surge of industrial activity that may now just be starting, Hickman and its community area comprise many fine citizens, engaging in many worthwhile activities.

The Courier will work as the community's newspaper seeking to unite it and help push it forward to achievement. Without such a goal as that, there really would be no point in taking on the newly-added responsibilities of another newspaper.

And there is another reason for our interest in the Courier: closer ties with Hickman, by virtue of owning its newspaper, will bring Fulton in closer touch with its county seat, news around the Courthouse and courts, and enable us to have more general news, over here in Fulton, of what is going on in the other end of our own county. The same will apply for Hickman. Thus both communities can gain from the combination.

We feel that, in this business of publishing a newspaper, a labor of effort is really a labor of love. There is no other business quite as satisfying and rewarding as the newspaper business. And, like everything else, you get out of it just what you put into it. PW.

No Court Has Any Justification Being Lenient With Anyone Arrested For Drunken Driving

—GUILTY!

"But not as charged," seems to be a persistent and far too frequent practice by some Kentucky courts when dealing with the drunk driver.

And, sometimes, this whole business of looking for ways to amend an arresting officer's complaint against the tipsy motorist threatens to stretch the broad credibility gap to a chasm we cannot span.

For instance, in a case heard in one Kentucky court, the judge took a novel approach, if nothing else.

The motorist was convicted. But, not of driving while intoxicated as he had been originally charged. Instead, he was found guilty of an equipment violation.

The language, meaning and intent of the two laws involved here have nothing in common. While I would agree that a bottle of whiskey or a six-pack of beer might, under certain circumstances, be improper equipment for safe vehicle operation, it is hard to understand how such a charge could ever grow out of a drunk driving offense.

Unless, of course, the whole idea is to defeat the point system which would have revoked that driver's license, if the original charge had been sustained, and taken him off the road before he killed himself or someone else.

Certainly, the interests and safety of the community aren't served when any drunk driver is allowed to keep his license under the guise that he deserves another chance because it was a first offense—often not the case at all—or just because the court wants to give him a break.

If anyone gets the break, it's going to be the other fellow who dies—when the "break" is a broken.

en neck. And, don't think it couldn't happen to you. It could.

Of 6,677 drunks arrested by state troopers during 1969, only 3500 were convicted of that offense. They lost their licenses. But, what about the rest?

Seven per cent - or 456 - didn't even get their hands slapped, the charges against them were filed away or dismissed. Most of the remainder — 37 per cent or 2444 — are back behind the wheel after having been fined for some lesser offense. Drinking beer on a public highway, reckless driving, drunk in a public place and disorderly conduct were the legal escape hatches most often used by courts to evade handing down a drunk driving conviction.

And, yet, the public doesn't seem to care. Although, they should. Nearly half of the drunks arrested on highways last year are out there right now. If only 50 per cent decide to drink and drive again this year, and just half of that number cause one fatality each, 794 Kentuckians are going to die before the year is over.

Unfortunately, there isn't much that the individual police officer can do about it. He can make the arrest. But citizens, themselves, are the real enforcers. Unless every citizen demands, loudly and emphatically, that officials in his community stand 100 per cent behind strict, letter-of-the-law enforcement of our point system and drunk driving laws, there will never be any real safety on Kentucky's highways.

You'll just have to cross your fingers and hope that one of those 794 deaths this year doesn't turn out to be YOU!

(By William O. Newman, Kentucky Public Safety Commissioner)

The Association of Western Railways commented that modern multi-deck rack cars, each carrying as many as 15 new motor vehicles, hauled 4.3 million vehicles in 1967, or nearly one-half of all new motor vehicles produced in the U. S.

POET'S CORNER

ANY WIFE OR HUSBAND

Let us be guests in one another's house
With deferential "No" and courteous "Yes";
Let us take care to hide our foolish moods
Behind a certain show of cheerfulness.

Let us avoid all sullen silences;
We should find fresh and sprightly things to say;
I must be fearful lest you find me dull,
And you must dread to bore me any way.

Let us knock gently at each other's heart,
Glad of a chance to look within - and yet
Let us remember that to force one's way
Is the unpardoned breach of etiquette.

So shall I be hostess - you, the host -
Until all need for entertainment ends;
We shall be lovers when the last door shuts,
But, what is better still - we shall be friends.

FULTON'S

Library Corner

BY LUCY DANIEL

First this week let's take a look at a book that has been donated to our library by the author. THE HEADLESS COBBLER OF SMALLETT CAVE by Walter Warrell Haden. A brief background for the book is given as follows on the book jacket: On a dark night a strange light is seen and a tapping echoes from the depths of an Ozark cave. The observer with imagination and a sense of the past is returned to tales and times of the American Civil War in the Missouri hills and to the hardy race whose superstitions created a "haunt," the Headless Cobbler of Smallett Cave. Beginning its second century, the legend this book follows depends for its existence upon what is probably the most mysterious geographic feature of Douglas County, Missouri's Spring Creek Township, Smallett Cave. The legend is a local invention based upon real persons and historical happenings, but it may also be a reworking of elements from older folk tales, both indigenous and imported. Theories concerning the origin of folk stories in general, as well as the reasons for their evolution, are studies in order to determine why the Headless Cobbler Legend has grown when and where it has in Douglas County, Missouri.

Mr. Haden is an assistant professor of English at the University of Tennessee at Martin, and he is presently engaged in teaching a folklore class during the spring quarter. Our most sincere thanks go to Mr. Haden for the donation of his book to the library.

Now let's take a quick look at some of the new books that have been sent to Fulton County from the Dept. of Libraries in Frankfort.

MESSAGE FROM MOSCOW. An urgent and immediate report on the current temper of life in Moscow comes from a Russian speaking, Russian-loving, non-communist westerner who has chosen to remain anonymous in order to avoid reprisals against those who took him into their confidence.

ROGUES GALLERY, edited by Walter E. Gibson. These 19 stories represent a wide range of mystery and detective fiction by some of the finest writers in the field.

ROYAL ROAD TO FOTHER-RINGAY, by Jean Plaidy. An absorbing novel of the fascinating and tragic Mary Stuart, Queen of France, Scotland and the Isles.

SAMPLER OF AMERICAN SONGS, by Maymie Krythe. Here are background and lore connected with 18 of our most famous American songs, from "Yankee Doodle" to contemporary favorites.

COME ALONG by Rebecca Caudill-Verses of mountain and meadow for youngsters.

LET'S TRY IT OUT . . . WET AND DRY, by Seymour Simon. Children enjoy playing with water. By getting things wet and drying them out they can have an opportunity to see the changes that occur. Very simple experiments for children in the 1st thru 3rd grades.

ANSWERS THE PEOPLE

Your questions relating to the Commonwealth of Kentucky will be answered. Write Governor Ford at Frankfort, Ky.

Mr. A. B. Harrison, 506 W. Hill, Louisville, Kentucky, and others have written stressing the need for more classroom units for handicapped children. Dear Mr. Harrison:

This is something I wanted very much to help accomplish, and I found that many senators and representatives shared our interest. It was a pleasure to sign House Bill 356, which the Legislature passed, to finance 200 additional units for 1970-71 and 250 units for 1971-72. This appropriation, $4,500,000, does not finance as many classrooms for handicapped students as we need, but every gain in behalf of these children is a victory and places adequate funds closer in reach in coming sessions.

The bill is now in the hands of Governor Nunn for his consideration, and I sincerely hope that he will not veto it.

Sincerely,
Wendell Ford

S. T. W., a student at U of K, writes, "A senior and I are in disagreement. I say the recent legislative session didn't amount to much, and he says it did a lot of good things." What's your view?

Dear S. T. W.:

In this one, I side with the senior. Some of the value of the session is in what it didn't do. It didn't enact punitive legislation against any group in Kentucky. It didn't raise taxes (except on whiskey). It did do many worthwhile things:

It eliminated the 5 per cent sales tax on medicine and health aids such as wheel chairs and crutches.

It eliminated the 5 per cent tax on transfer of cars within the same family.

It put additional citizen members on the two State commissions which control air and water pollution. This gives the public as strong a voice as industry has had on setting up and enforcing air and water pollution standards.

It appropriated money for better law enforcement and crime prevention. This qualifies Kentucky for several million dollars in Federal money for law enforcement.

It appropriated money to the University of Louisville which U of L President Strickler says will mean the difference between life and death for that university.

It established a fund to encourage low-cost housing construction in Kentucky, by guaranteeing insured loans where money for such construction is not otherwise available.

It authorized a study for improvement of Kentucky's schools and provided a $300 raise and important fringe benefits to teachers.

It converted a surplus tuberculous needed institution for the mentally retarded. This will take care of several hundred children who are on the long waiting list seeking admission.

These and many other measures tip the scales that made the 1970 session a worthwhile, productive session.

Sincerely,
Wendell Ford

Letters To Editor

Dearest Mrs. Westpheling:

My subscription to the Hickman Courier expired last week's issue and I had no intention of sending in my renewal until I heard you on radio this morning, and am so proud to have you all as our new editors. I'm sending in my renewal for the Hickman Courier for another year.

I pay for my two sisters' Couriers every year, which is my gift for Christmas - Mrs. Thad Taylor of Salem, Mo., and Mrs. E. J. Stroop of Homeland, Calif., so I want you to just send me the notice if I forget to renew theirs. It will take time for you to get adjusted, I know.

Will you please print the Cayce news in our Hickman Courier, as it's news of all this area and my folks can read it.

Our friends and relatives that die in this community were not put in our paper until they were gone nearly three weeks; and we never knew who the jury that had been picked was, it was never in our paper, so now we are so happy to have a change and you all for our editors. We sure wish you good luck.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Frank Henry

A delectable three-course dinner was served before the gifts were presented to Miss David. Sixteen guests attended.

The Fulton First Baptist Church was the scene of a wedding of simplicity Friday afternoon, March 24, when Miss Sammie Mae Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Williams, became the bride of Thomas A. Glasgow, of Dresden. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Lewis D. Ferrell, pastor of the church. Miss Betty Sue Williams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Steve Glasgow, brother of the groom, was best man. Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left on a southern wedding trip.

Introducing Our Churches - God's Agency For Spreading His Love

MT. ZION CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Mt. Zion Cumberland Presbyterian Church was organized in 1850, with the following as charter members: John Hicks, Marck McAlister, Meddie Parker, Ben Latia, and a Mr. Morris. It is the only Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Hickman County, located on highway 1528 near Water Valley, Kentucky.

Mt. Zion church has never changed location but still uses the burial ground and building ground donated to them by Mr. Jim McAlister. They have worshipped in three buildings. The first church house was built when it was organized. The people used a horse power saw mill to get the lumber. The second building was a frame construction built in 1886. The present church building, a brick building, was erected in 1948.

In the Spring of 1951 under the leadership of the Rev. Courtney Fooks the church went full time. In 1952, during the pastorate of Rev. Fooks, a manse was built on ground given by Mr. Rich Gardner.

The first youth work was organized in 1913. The first Missionary Society was organized in early history of the church. To-day the church continues to be interested in the youth of our community. The Cumberland Presbyterian Women continue to spearhead our work in Missions. Though the church has a rich and colorful history, we are not content to rest on past laurels, but open to paths of service for Jesus Christ.

The above picture was taken during a recent Vacation Church School at Mt. Zion. During this school the boys and girls of our community were presented the challenge of learning more about God's word and how to get along together in Our Father's world. The church by the side of the road extends to all a cordial welcome to work and worship with us.

UT Martin Begins

Football Practice

As head coach Robert Carroll makes final preparations for the April 7 opening of spring football practice at The University of Tennessee at Martin, he admits with a glimmer of dogmatism in his eyes that things are looking a bit brighter following a discouraging 1969 football season.

Among the major reasons for his optimism, the Volunteers will field an abundance of experienced players and will be strengthened by the addition of several outstanding junior college transfers. The Orangemen are returning 28 lettermen.

CAMPGROUND OPENS

Popular demand encouraged Land Between the Lakes officials to announce that Hillman Ferry Campground will open on April 15 as announced last fall. This earlier date will enable visitors to utilize the facility during spring vacation.

Workers Told To Ask About Injury Benefits

Any worker who is off the job because of sickness or injury should always promptly inquire about social security disability benefits. This advice is given because too often a person hopes to return to work soon and puts off contacting the social security office and filing a claim for benefits. This delay can result in loss of benefits causing an additional hardship on the person already unable to work.

Any worker disabled but unable to continue working should not fail to contact the social security office. This contact should be made no later than thirty days after he had to stop working. Of course, the person who has been disabled longer should inquire immediately without further delay.

The Social Security Office is located at 112 South Tenth Street, Paducah and the telephone number is 443-7321.

and culture of the County, often splitting it in two.

As most of you probably know by now, we bought the Hickman Courier last week. I well remember my first visit to the old and now Jo has gone over there to try to get things in the paper office in the kind of order we want them, so we can get organized and run two papers. And one of the first items on the agenda will be to take a few chunks out of this invisible wall.

office of the Hickman Courier back in those days because we met Jake Howard at his office on a Sunday afternoon and he was busy setting his rat-trap time switch for the type-setting machine.

A linotype machine has an electric pot on it that it takes two hours to heat up, and that means if it's going to be ready to set type at 8: o'clock Monday morning somebody or something has to turn it on at or before 6: a. m. Nowadays, you can get an electric time clock almost anywhere that will do this automatically, but back in those days they weren't so plentiful. So Jake, who was an easy-going fellow anyhow, figured out a way to keep from getting out of bed early on Monday mornings just to go down to the office to turn the linotype pot on.

He bought a rat trap and two alarm clocks. He mounted the rat trap on the wall directly above the arm of the switch that turned the electricity on, and tied a strong cord in such a fashion that when the trap was sprung, it would throw the electric switch "on". Next he mounted an alarm clock near the rat trap, wound a string around the alarm windup lever in such a manner that when the alarm went off and the windup lever starting running down, it would pull the bait lever on the rat trap, causing the trap to snap and the electricity to go on. So if the electric pot needs to go on at 6: a. m., just set the alarm for 6: a. m. and you've got it made. And I had seen this rig used over on a paper at Gallatin, Tennessee when I worked there years before.

But now we come to Jake's ingenuity, because that isn't all of the story. If you want an alarm clock to go off at 6: a. m. you have to wait till about 7: p. m. the night before to set it. So Jake mounted his second clock directly over the first one, and attached a string from its winding lever to the "pull-up-for-alarm" button on the first one. Then on Sunday afternoon he would go to the Courier office, wind the clocks and set the trap. The first clock was set to go off sometime Sunday evening, but the second clock wasn't set to go off at all. So when the first clock went off anytime in the late evening (after 7: p. m.) it would merely pull up the second clock's alarm button so it could do its duty Monday morning.

That was quite a rig, and the only one of its kind that I have ever seen; I wish I had taken a picture of it. Jake admitted that sometimes the strings would break and it wouldn't work, but life wasn't always as hurried 23 years ago as it is now.

National DITTO Dealer Sales Manager, said: "Many times a contender for this honor, the Fulton dealer won in 1969 by showing an 85 percent increase in machine sales over a year ago and a 49 percent over-all increase for the year. Since it became a DITTO dealer in 1954, the firm has placed consistently among our top ten dealers."

Tickets are now on sale at the school or from members of the athletic teams and are $2.75 per person. The meal will be smorgasbord, including country ham, barbecued ribs, etc., and will be catered by Boyette's of Reelfoot Lake.

Bobby Snider, principal of Fulton City High School states, "The athletic teams have worked hard this year and are a very determined group of young men - never giving up until the final whistle. All parents and supporters are urged to help us reward our athletes for their endeavors."

Nunn Says He Will Ask For Re-Districting

If the 1970 federal census shows a need for redistricting the Kentucky Legislature on the basis of population, Gov. Louie B. Nunn said he would call a special session to do so in time for new district lines to be settled before the May, 1971, primary elections.

All of Kentucky's 100 House seats and 19 of its 38 Senate seats will be up for filling in the Nov., 1971, election, with nominations in the May primary. The governor indicated if a special session is necessary, he might call it for Dec., 1970, or Jan., 1971.

The interview with Governor Nunn came on the heels of an announcement by Indiana Gov. Edgar D. Whitcomb that he would not call a special session for legislative reapportionment in that state. A Federal court ordered its own version of reapportionment there.

Fulton County High Students Expelled

HICKMAN, Ky. — Eight Fulton County High School students who refused to shave in compliance with a school dress code were expelled by the county school board Friday "until such time as they shall obey the rules and regulations."

John C. Bondurant, attorney for the board, said, "As I understand it, they cannot return to classes until they shave."

Suspended two weeks ago by Principal Bobby Childers, the eight appealed and have continued to attend school pending the board's decision.

The vote to uphold the suspensions was unanimous, as the board's four members signed a three-page order explaining their decision.

In the order, the board said the clean-shaven provision of the dress code "is a reasonable one that is not in any way discriminatory."

The board said it heard testimony from teachers and students at the high school supporting the dress code and from the eight students against it.

The decision was reached

"regularly under new procedures for hearing said matters," the board said.

It referred to guidelines set down early this month by U.S. District Judge James F. Gordon when he recessed a hearing in Louisville on a suit brought by nine students on ground they had not followed proper channels after their suspension by Childers.

Gordon also said such a suspension had to be upheld by the school board after giving affected students the right to appeal.

The eight students are Ralph Fitzpatrick, Eddie Dean, Jimmy Moore, Ben Jones, Lonnie Hagler, Ronald Cobb, Harold Ware and George Holloway, said Supt. Harold Garrison.

BE KIND TO YOUR GUESTS

Last year, about this time, I wrote a column on how you could outwit your hostess. It dealt with the perils of being a guest during the Holiday season if you had a weight control problem.

Well, today let's talk about that from the standpoint of you being the hostess. In other words, how you can be considerate of your guests and not load them up with unwanted calories.

You could, of course, serve rich food if you also provide enough exercise to work off the excess calories. We discussed this business of being able to eat more if you exercise enough in last week's column. Thus, if you live on a ski slope, or want to stage a winter cross-country hike, rich foods for your guests would be all right. But for the average hostess, who is simply going to entertain her friends in the living or family room, let's figure on a less rich and less vigorous routine.

What To Avoid

You can avoid rich gravies, all gravies, in fact. And you can trim the fat from all meats you will serve. Buy leaner cuts of meat. Avoid offering, especially forcing, second helpings on guests. Do not serve bread and rolls in excess. Easy on salad dressings and oils. Try to avoid large pieces of cake or pie as desserts. And don't be upset if some guest leave part of their dessert at their place, or turn it down entirely.

A good idea is to serve buffet. That way guests can pick and choose what they want, avoiding items they may feel are more than they want. It's more festive, too, I think, especially if you go out of your way to decorate the buffet table with ornaments and other trappings of Christmas that surpass what you could place on the dining room table.

Allow Restraint

And as you serve hors d'oeuvres, allow your guest to exercise restraint. If you're a friend that insists on being helpful every minute by running around your party with the trays of goodies, get her to relax, to stop unloading hors d'oeuvres on your guests as fast as they can be turned out in the kitchen. People will take one every time the tray passes; either absentmindedly, or feeling they must. Better to leave the stuff at the buffet table where they have to at least walk to get it.

You may feel this all smacks of something less than hospitality. But we are, after all, talking about how to help your guests eat with less excess. You and other hostesses will get twice the thanks in January if your guests have no weight-losing to do.

Without Farewell Toast, State's 'Bourbon Line' Railroad Runs Dry

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Without so much as a farewell toast, Kentucky's 98-year-old "Bourbon Line" railroad has gone dry.

The line, formally called the Frankfort and Cincinnati Railroad, made its last 23-mile trip Friday carrying Kentucky's most famous product to a hook-up with the Southern Railroad in Georgetown, Ky.

Plagued by the troubles common to short line railroads and caught by a production cutback in one of the two major distilleries it serves, the F&C received federal permission to abandon its daily run.

Even more important than transferring bottles and barrels of bourbon from here to Georgetown was the bringing in of corn, rye, malt and coal to the distilleries. Those distilleries were National's Old Grand Dad plant at Elsinore, on the edge of Frankfort, and Schenley's George T. Stagg distillery just outside town.

A change in production at Stagg, which will cease making whisky certain months in the year, made the precarious financial structure of the railroad no longer tenable.

And so two of the line's four red switch-engines rocked and tooted through the pastures of Kentucky's Bluegrass for the last time Friday, taking five boxcars out and bringing four back. The barking dogs, waving children and scampering rabbits would no longer look up in wonder or fear.

Indicative of the loss of grandeur of railroading was the spectacle of the train screeching to a halt at a main street of a subdivision outside Frankfort, as the brakeman descended to halt traffic.

The line's general manager, Bruce Raine, 48, said that arrangement was worked out to spare the firm's spending scarce dollars on an electric crossing signal.

The train's young three-man crew may have some worries about the line's future with a six-mile route, but they say they will stay until the end—if that must come. The line will continue to serve the two distilleries but will run only between those plants and Frankfort for a hook-up with the Louisville & Nashville line.

"I don't think there's anything better than railroading," Bill Durham, the 26-year-old engineer, said with an easy smile over the roar of the locomotive.

Durham, who has a wife and four children, has been with the line three years and would like to go with another line if the F&C folds. But he conceded it might be hard getting on with a larger line.

Richard Phillips, the 21-year-old conductor, has been with the line 11 months and the fact, preliminary studies show brakeman, Byrl Manley, also that with a stronger staff and no 21, started about 10 months ago. Both say they "love it" and would like to stay on.

Despite its name, the F&C's tracks never pointed northward toward Cincinnati, 80 to 90 miles away.

Originally, the line was known as "Kentucky Midland" and it was intended to go into the coal fields in Eastern Kentucky.

But the line never extended further than 41 miles to Paris in Bourbon County, which gave its name to the corn whisky that was first distilled there in charred oak barrels and later became famous.

Council Would Use TB Funds To Build Public Health Staff

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of the Purchase Area Development District has recommended that tuberculosis funds for the area be concentrated on building up the public health staff.

The council said it feels a strong public health staff would make it more feasible eventually to phase out the Madisonville Sanatorium.

The Tuberculosis Control Task Force of the Purchase Area's Comprehensive Health Planning Council reviewed tuberculosis control within its region and published a report.

The investigation disclosed that, at the time, of 887 registered cases in the region, only 125 are active. Only 12 of the active cases are in the Madisonville Sanatorium.

The task force report also shows that the major part of the TB control and followup programs in the region are operated by under-staffed county health departments.

The Purchase Area Development District includes Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman, Fulton, McCracken, Graves, Marshall, and Calloway counties.

Four of these counties have only one nurse and one clerk to supervise the TB program. The nurses must fit the program into other various duties.

Miss Ruth Cole, a member of TB Control Task Force surveyed the TB hospital in the region concerning their attitude toward accepting TB patients.

"On the basis of the findings of the task force I believe that if necessary funds were available for clinics, for case finding, for followup on suspect cases and for the hospitalization of active cases the Purchase Area Development District could adequately care for all the TB cases within the region and within the home community," she said.

Her survey shows three hospitals take TB patients now and three others would if funds were available.

Dr. Clem Burnett, a specialist in internal medicine and a member of the Purchase Area Comprehensive Health Planning Council, says a stronger public health staff is imperative before the TB hospital at Madisonville can be phased out.

The question of money and efficiency in caring for TB patients is one of his top concerns, he said.

"Building up the staff will not result in the need for more TB funds in the area. In point of fact, preliminary studies show that with a stronger staff and no 21, started about 10 months ago. Both say they "love it" and would like to stay on.

Despite its name, the F&C's tracks never pointed northward toward Cincinnati, 80 to 90 miles away.

continued in 1952 and the Georgetown-Paris run was abandoned in 1967. And now 17 miles more have been dropped, relegating the proud railroad to little more than a grain and whisky toting trolley line.

MEXICAN VIGNETTE

OAXACA: This is a charming colonial city, filled with reminders of the ancient Spanish days, not only in the buildings around the beautiful mid-city plaza, or Zocalo, but also in other structures, including the courtyard homes which are so attractive.

Oaxaca is a city of flowers. They bloom everywhere in this semi-tropical climate, blessed with much sun but at an altitude where the heat is not oppressing.

BLACK POTTERY

In Oaxaca is one of Mexico's most interesting native markets. It is open each day, but on Saturdays the natives come in from the nearby villages to spread their wares in time-honored places on the streets and sidewalks, and the scene becomes a photographer's dream. Such colors, such a profusion of fruit and vegetables! Plus offerings of that wonderful black Oaxaca pottery, so delicate and fine.

Oaxaca has several hotels. Best known is the Hotel Victoria, on the hillside facing east and overlooking the city. The Victoria has a group of cottages on three sides of a large swimming pool, all set within a beautiful garden.

Mexicana Airlines flies here from Mexico City in 45 minutes.

You can come overnight by train, with excellent pullman service, for a fare of $2.93 plus $4.01 for a roomette. The bus takes 9 hours to make the trip through spectacular scenery, or you can drive in about 8 hours. — Lenore Lee.

Young Democrats Model Trains To Eulogize Veep

GILBERTSVILLE, Ky. — The Kentucky Young Democrats will eulogize the late Vice President Alben Barkley at a dinner here May 29.

The eulogy will be delivered by Bill Powell of Paducah, a newspaperman who covered Barkley's colorful political campaigns and knew him intimately.

Don Mills, president of the Kentucky Young Democrats, said the organization hopes to make the dinner an annual affair.

CHICAGO, Ill. — Those great-name trains of America, such as the 20th Century Limited, Golden State and Chief have not passed completely into oblivion.

Scale models of these famous flyers are making more and more runs every year—across the basements and attics of America.

A model railroading magazine estimates that 150,000 Americans engage in the hobby, spend more than $41 million annually and keep a bit of Americana alive at the same time.

Where did all the birds come from?

Loveland has been invaded by birds, and city officials are wondering what to do about it. Here, City Atty. Lynn Hammond, right, and Asst. City Atty. John Chilson—carrying some protection

(The following article sent to the News by a reader in Frisco, Colorado should be of interest to citizens and officials of the twin cities.)

Birds in Loveland get death penalty

Loveland's City Council has decided to end it all for the 50,000 starlings and blackbirds meeting nightly in the city's cemetery.

Council has voted to kill the birds with a chemical. City Mgr. Don Hataway said Wednesday.

The chemical counteracts the protective oil in the birds' feathers, Hataway said, and they die of exposure.

He said the spraying process should take place sometime next week.

Right conditions

"We need a day when the temperatures are in the 30-to-35 degree range," he said. "So it all depends on the weather."

This being the case, the spraying could be done around midnight, he said.

"If conditions are right, and we won't spray unless conditions are right, we understand the birds will die within an hour to an hour and a half," he said.

"The ideal thing would be for it to be raining. In that case they would die almost immediately."

Council voted to kill the birds Tuesday night at a meeting attended by Loveland residents, a professor of ecology at the University of Colorado, a doctoral candidate in zoology at the Colorado State University, and a representative from the Larimer County Humane Society.

The birds have been a subject of controversy in Loveland. Cemetery area homeowners complain about the noise and the odor from bird droppings which blanket the area like new-fallen snow.

Bird lovers
Persons with relatives buried in the graveyard are also unhappy.

Bird lovers protest killing the birds.

But no one seems to know how to drive them away, Hataway said.

The university representatives, Hataway said, urged waiting until fall to spray the popular, elm and evergreen trees in which the birds congregate, in hopes when the birds return near winter time, there will be fewer red-wing blackbirds among them.

This is the first year the blackbirds have turned up among the starlings, which have been coming to the area for years.

Easter Eggs Are Stolen

NORWALK, Ohio — No Easter bunny footprints were found at the scene of an overnight theft of 35 dozen Easter eggs at the C. A. Tobb farm near Wakeman in Huron County. Sheriff's deputies were working on the case.

The eggs had been dyed for sale. Deputies said they would check area stores in an attempt to match the egg dye.

Site Sets Hours

Supermarkets in the U. S. are open for business from 56 to 96 hours a week, with evening and Sunday hours more common in the western part of the nation, particularly the Pacific region.

Canadian supermarkets operate fewer hours a week and are closed all day Sunday.

Water Valley Home Destroyed By Fire

FULTON, Ky. — A one-story frame house, located just off Highway 45, in Water Valley, was completely destroyed by fire about 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

The house was occupied by Loyd Wiggins and his family. They were away from home when the fire was discovered.

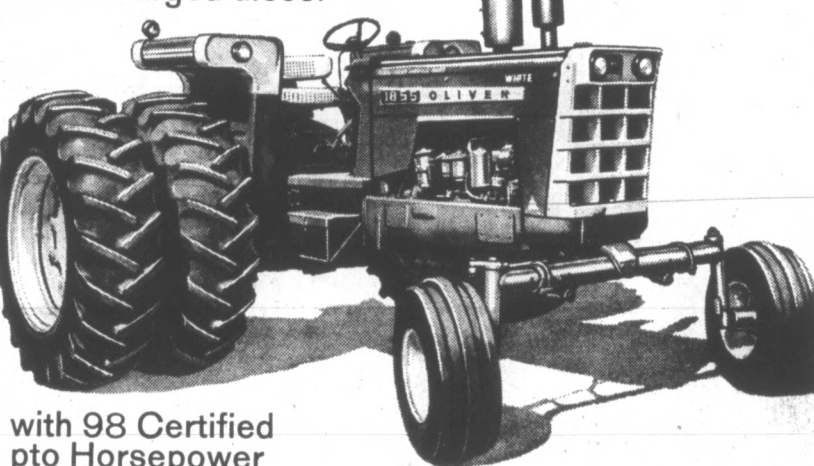

A neighbor saw the flames and called the Fulton Fire Department. Nothing was saved from the burning building and the local fireman fought the blaze until 1 a.m.

The blaze was thought to have been caused by defective wiring, according to Fire Chief Nemo Williams.

Post Office Begins Census Distribution

The U.S. Post Office began distribution of questionnaires for the 1970 census of population and housing Saturday in observance of the house-to-house canvass which will be made by census enumerators.

Families are urged to fill out the forms and have them ready when the census takers come to collect them.

The form contains seven questions about every person in the household and 13 questions about the dwelling. The personal information asked for includes name, address, sex, race or color, month and year of birth, whether married or single, and relationship to the head of the household.

Questions about the dwelling include the number of rooms, cooking facilities, plumbing, and if rented or owned.

Most of the questions are answered by filling in the proper tiny circle with a common lead pencil, making a little black dot which can be "read" by Census Bureau machines.

The census taker will check the questionnaires to see that the questions have been answered and will give any needed assistance in filling out an incomplete questionnaire.

At every fifth household, the enumerator will seek answers to additional questions covering population and housing characteristics. These sample questions will include inquiries on country of birth, schooling, employment, income and related items. The additional housing questions relate to rent, value of dwelling, heating equipment, water supply and other facilities and equipment.

Bad Dream

SALISBURY, Rhodesia
— Tony Rose thought he was having a nightmare. He woke to find his horse galloping away with his bed—and himself still in it.

On an overnight camping trip with his horse, Roadrunner, professional horse trainer Rose camped alongside the road at nightfall, fastened his steed to his camp bed and went to sleep. Roadrunners was probably frightened by a snake and made off, dragging bed and master behind him. Rose, clad only in shorts, managed to roll off the bed. He stopped a passing car and gave chase, but it took a police patrol car to stop the runaway.

Publicity is a dangerous habit; some people make fools of themselves over a little bit of it.

DREAM TAKES SHAPE — State Finance Commissioner, Albert Christen, left, had been thinking of a State Center for Archives and Libraries to house the state library, the library for the blind and the archives and records center. Reno Runck, 24, of Cincinnati, heard of Christen's idea and, as a thesis project, came up with plans and a model of the dream building. (Dick Upchurch Photo)

School Eyed For Retarded

A program designed to get the proper facts to the proper people is being sponsored jointly by the Obion County Association for Retarded Children and the Union City Lions Club.

The groups have brought together a number of experts in the field of vocational rehabilitation for the retarded and will use this as their theme for their 6:30 dinner meeting at Obion County Central High School on March 30.

The purpose is to bring together city and county leaders in all fields to show them what can be done for the mentally and physically handicapped through vocational training facilities.

The group hopes to establish such a center here for persons of 16 years-of age and older in to train them for employment. This plan, however, should not be confused with the vocational training school considered for Miles, which would be a branch of the Newbern school.

Entertainment for the program will be furnished by the Memphis Association for Retarded Children.

Prior to a panel question and answer period three speakers will address the group.

Floyd Dennis of Nashville, program coordinator for the mentally retarded, will speak on the subject of "Retarded Children Are Being Helped."

Paul Hicks of Memphis, regional director for vocational

Plans For 'Earth Day' Set By MSU Group

Plans have been formulated at Murray State University for "Earth Day" observance April 22.

Preston Berman, a sophomore from Chicago, Ill., has been selected to serve as chairman of the MSU Earth Day Committee. He said the purpose of the nationwide program is "to bring public awareness of what is happening to our earth."

The program will consist of an "environmental teach-in," he added.

The "Earth Day" program is concerned not only with air and water pollution, but also with the population explosion. It began with an idea from Sens. Gaylord Nelson and Paul McClosky, who wanted to bring attention to the problems facing the earth. Since then students at most of the nation's colleges and universities have taken up the idea, and have developed plans for the nationwide program. The students also have opened a "National Earth Day" office in Washington to coordinate plans for the program.

The student committee is sponsoring the program at MSU, but support for the program has come from most student organizations, the faculty and the administration.

The local program began Sunday with concerned students participating in a clean-up project on Ky. 94. The group picked up five truck loads of litter from the highway and dumped it at a designated spot on the MSU campus to draw attention to the "Earth Day" observance.
