Water Is Key Resource Of The Nation

WAYNE M. WILLIAMS

Water is the key to resource that has made possible our nation's growth and achievements...

A watershed is an area of land on which people live, that sheds its water into a common watercourse...

But that situation should not cause a halt in all efforts to get our farm land protected and used wisely...

- 1. Civic and industrial interest and financial support. 2. Water Facilities Act of Farmers Home Administration...

Winter Hits New Heavy Blow

Winter hit the nation with its second heavy blow of the season today sending the mercury skidding below zero in New York City with cold, destructive winds.

The Arctic front swept into the east on Groundhog Day Wednesday, hitting New York City with a 37 inch snowfall, the heaviest of the year in the metropolis.

The winds, which reached peaks of 48 miles per hour at International Airport Wednesday, toppled trees, smashed windows and ripped down power lines throughout Southern California.

T. O. TURNER

The passing of T. O. Turner represents not only a loss to Murray and Calloway county of a good citizen, but also one of that breed of men who seek favor in the sight of God, rather than favor in the sight of man.

Mr. Turner made many contributions for the betterment of mankind in his county and in his state, but he never sought to make his accomplishments known.

Crippled children found a response in his heart which in effect brought about the establishment of state agencies to repair them physically, mentally and spiritually.

For thirty years he carried on the work of soliciting funds in the annual Crippled Children's drive, with only Miss Katie Martin as his helper.

He has aided many people who were sick and without funds, or brought them to the attention of agencies who could help.

With only the barest education, Mr. Turner went to the State Senate and fought for measures which would benefit the greatest number of people. Even though unlettered, he possessed a keen business nature, and a fine perception of state and national affairs.

He had an opinion on nearly every subject affecting the lives of people, and usually expressed them in the form of paid advertisements.

Mr. Turner was honest, a good business man, and feared God. The passing of a citizen of this type is a definite loss.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK

Commissioner Ford Frick had a smile on his face but there was an expression around his eyes which said he was in earnest.

"Once," quoth the commissioner, "you are like one of those people who own a little piece of stock and turn up at those big corporation meetings and just raise Cain."

"Well, call the meeting to order, commissioner, because I'm going to speak another piece."

This one concerns two speeches made at the New York baseball writers' annual dinner. One was the commissioner's. The other was Leo Durocher's.

I don't even own one share of stock in your corporation, commissioner, but at that time and place both of them could have been left unused. The commissioner's remarks should have been made at a meeting of the club owners while Durocher's—which had Frick staring grimly at his plate—certainly would have never served as an inspiration to the youth of America.

Missed The Best Anyway In this latter department, the self-billed "national pastime" seems to a self appointed stockholder such as Old Fearless to have missed the boat completely, anyhow. Practically every radio and television of a baseball game is sponsored by a tobaccoist or a brewer. I'm not putting the knock on anybody's vices, but like a lot of other parents I often speculate what effect this has on the kids in whom baseball always professes to be so interested.

I wonder if baseball has ever tried to ascertain whether the national dairy industry, or some such associated business, might not be interested in advertising a "butter and egg blast" or a "whip cream wallop."

The commissioner, in a soto voce deference to the ball officially a sport, has intimated before that the game is "somewhat of a business." But what a business!

As example, consider Durocher's speech.

Call Star Virtual Lush Some people found it humorous when he described one of World Series stars as a lush. He tried to get rid of it, but it was too strong.

He announced proudly that he was a "batter" and could drink more bourbon than everybody in the house. And he insisted that he personally would buy all the player could drink as long as his bat kept hitting.

There were 1,500 people on hand so you couldn't say these remarks were made in confidence. I won't name the player. But the "Lard" and with pepper gusto.

Then the commissioner arose and in his speech declared proudly that he was a "batter" and could drink more bourbon than anybody in the house. And he insisted that he personally would buy all the player could drink as long as his bat kept hitting.

The time is come when those of us who believe in baseball—all 100 million of us—must offer something more than lip service to the game," Frick propounded.

You are so right, commissioner. The 100 million fans are paying and watching. Now what would you suggest they do, walk out unless you clean it up?

The Idea Of . . .

1946, announced "all out" hostilities in Manchuria.
In June of 1946, at the suggestion of General Marshall, the Nationalists halted all their military activities. Both sides were to observe a 15 day truce.
On June 8th, 1946, within three hours after truce went into effect, American military observers reported the Communists violated the cease fire.

Despite the Communist violations, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek extended the truce for another 15 days at the request of General Marshall.
The Communist reply to this effort toward peace was to demand the United States halt all military aid to Nationalist China and withdraw all its forces from the country.

Reds Blame Marshall
Through American efforts a new truce was worked out and announced on August 9, 1946. But like all others, it did not last long. The Communists blamed General Marshall for the failure of the truce.
Later in the month, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek asked U. S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart to head a committee which was to pave the way for a coalition government.

"The Communists refused to cooperate."
On Oct. 8, 1946, General Marshall and Ambassador Stuart declared in a joint statement that the Communists had refused a 30-day truce and that Chou En-Lai, who was representing the Reds, had refused to return to Nanking from Shanghai to resume peace negotiations.
Later in the month the Communists again rejected another cease-fire offer put forward by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.
Later Nationalist peace offers also were turned down by the Reds.

The next day Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan announced the decision of the Reds to impose their political demands on the government by "force of arms."
Throughout 1947, the Communists continued to reject all Nationalist peace and cease fire offers and continued their military aggression.
In April of 1946, a Nationalist delegation flew to Peiping to discuss peace with the Communists.

Again the efforts failed.
In 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government filed a complaint in the United Nations General Assembly against Russia, accusing the U.S.S.R. of aiding the Chinese Communists in the civil war and violating the Sino-Soviet treaty of 1945 and the charter of the United Nations.
Communists Set Up Regime
On Oct. 1, 1949, the Communists set up their regime in Peiping under the leadership of Mao Tse Tung.

On Jan. 1, 1950, in a new year message, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek said:
"I solemnly swear that as long as Soviet aggressors occupy one inch of our territory and as long as I am alive, I will never stop fighting."
American sources here said cease fire suggestions came up again only in October of 1954. At that time, when the Communists were shelling the island of Quemoy, the Americans scolded out the Nationalists once more.

"Ideas were exchanged," a high official said. "No agreement was sought or reached at that time."
When the tension eased a bit, these cease fire efforts were allowed to rest. Only when the Communists made their attack toward Tachen and captured Yikiangshan was the subject revived.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

Dr. Fred Beter had come from St. Louis to the little town of Jennings, where he served as a general practitioner. He was happy in his work, but at the end of three years he sensed danger to his marriage. His gracious young mistress whose name he decided to call in his mind was now a plague in his doctor's office. The people of Jennings realized that the doctor's wife was in danger and he was grateful to them for their support. They gave him a hospital, an old house, remodeled and converted into a clinic. Her husband was suddenly summoned to the home of Linda Kyla, a young girl, and his elderly husband struck dying. Fred Beter decided to call on his friend, Dr. Murphy, in consultation. Dr. Murphy was in St. Louis, arranging for him to come to Jennings. CHAPTER ELEVEN FRED turned to look critically at Murphy. "What's wrong?" asked Dr. Beter. "Nothing. I was just taking in your city smell." "Now look, Fritz!" "But you do smell of the city, and of the big specialist which you are." "Murphy settled back in the seat. "I'm sorry I can't say the same of you," he drawled. "Fred might have added that Murphy also reeked of personal charm. He did, and conscientiously. His comely face, his darkly intent eyes, his manner of speech—always a little brusquely frank—the shock of his apparent frankness serving to conceal the purpose which so often lay behind his words or action. Now this slender, dark man took a tortoise-shell case from his coat pocket, snapped it open and held toward Fred. The cigars were long, and equipped with filters. Fred shook his head. "Don't tell me you still smoke jimson-weed?" "I haven't changed one bit," Fred agreed. "I hope—but doubt—that that included your research project." "Fred laughed. "It does." "Murphy's voice twanged. "Specializing in it, no doubt?" "Oh, yes. I am, as well, an internist, a surgeon, and an obstetrician. A pediatrician—a psychiatrist—and an oculist?" "Are laboratory technician?" "In other words, a p.p." "That's it." "The vanishing American."

WHAT'S LEFT after income taxes, and how the tax has been taking progressively more, is illustrated in this tax chart for a family with two children. If you're in the $50,000 bracket, for instance, you would have had $49,240 left in 1913. Now it's only $31,116. In 1944 and 1945 it was only $23,135. Down in the $3,000 bracket you hardly notice. Amounts are after deductions, before exemptions.

Your Income Compared to 1939

THIS CHART, made from a chart issued by the National Industrial Conference board, New York, shows you how much income you have to have today to equal 1939 income. For instance, top circles show income of $3,000 for 1939, with $30 income tax taken out, which leaves $2,970. In 1954 you had to have $6,063 income to equal 1939's $3,000, because the tax rate was $646 and dollar depreciation of $2,447 bit off rest. Other circles show higher incomes.

Soil, Water Agency Lends $337,921

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky's Division of Soil and Water Resources loaned soil conservation districts $337,921 during 1954 to assist in purchasing heavy equipment for soil conservation work. The figure brought the total loaned since the loan program was established in 1948 to $1,206,903.

Henry Ward, commissioner of Conservation, in whose department the Division of Soil and Water Resources is located, said that 33 districts were assisted in 1954 to bring the total in the history of the division to 91. Soil conservation districts are usually county-wide units.

When the division was established the General Assembly appropriated $400,000 for it to loan and re-lease to the districts and there have been 202 loans made to date, Ward reported. There was $236,807 returned on loans last year.

Ward pointed out that work of equipment already paid for is not included because no reports are made to the division once the equipment is the property of the soil district.

J. Wayne Green, eminent Trichologist, demonstrates causes of baldness and how it can be prevented.

How To Have Hair For A Lifetime To Be Demonstrated Here By Famous Trichologist Offers Written Guarantee

An exclusive interview by Steven Bright

WICHITA (Special)—J. Wayne Green, Director of Rogers, Inc. Hair and Scalp Specialists, exploded the myth of baldness today in an exclusive interview. "Baldness is unnecessary, costly and a plague to mankind," says Green. "No man need be bald. No man need suffer the stigma of premature old age that is forced upon him because he is losing his hair. The Rogers method of hair and scalp treatment can prevent baldness—can turn colorless fuzz into healthy growing hair—can make you look youthful again."

Is There Hope For The Completely Bald?

In his travels throughout the United States and Canada, Green has collected hundreds of testimonials of his ability to develop weak fuzz into healthy, mature hair. All of his clients have started with a "fringe" examination, hair and scalp analysis and a diagnosis of the disorder. Green is quick however, to tell a hopeless case that he cannot be helped. "We strongly advise," says Green, "that no caring who is completely bald hold any hope whatsoever of regrowing hair if there is any fuzz at all, we can restore a healthy scalp condition and the hair will grow normally again as nature intended."

Offers A Guarantee

"Rogers, Inc. America's foremost Hair and Scalp Specialists, offer a guarantee to any client who enrolls for treatment. If he or she is not completely delighted with results at the end of 30 days the money invested will be graciously refunded," pledged Green. "We must have satisfied clients. We must grow hair. After all, it is our best advertisement."

If you have a scalp disorder, or if you are worried about your hair, call Trichologist L. G. Evans at the National Hotel in Murray, Kentucky, Saturday ONLY, from 12 noon to 2:00 P. M. The public is invited. The examinations are private and open to men and women. You do not need an appointment, and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.

Trichologist Green dodged no issues. He quickly took up the most widely spread theory of baldness—heredity. "Mankind's unrealistic belief that baldness is heredity stems from a misin-
