THIRTEEN FILE FOR CITY COUNCIL POSTS

Robbers Who Were Filmed Are Arrested

CLEVELAND — Two women and a man were to be arraigned today for the $2,376 robbery of a savings and loan company which was "witnessed" by a hidden movie camera.

The camera, installed only the day before the robbery Friday, recorded a complete account of the crime.

Police arrested the third suspect Sunday only 36 hours after a masked man and woman walked into the firm and demanded money.

Wanda Di Cenzi, 19, was found in a west side rooming house. She allegedly is the woman shown in the film scooping money from cash drawers of the St. Clair Savings and Loan Co.

Earlier, Steven Thomas, 24, and Rosie O'Donnell, 18, surrendered to authorities.

"I'm tired of running," said Thomas as he gave himself up.

The quick arrests came after detectives viewed the film taken during the robbery. Bank officials had installed the movie camera for just such a purpose.

The firm was robbed of $34,000 in two previous robberies.

Detectives Joseph David and William Steel recognized Miss Di Cenzi as the girl they saw near the loan office just before it was robbed.

Investigation in the area produced the De Cenzi girl's identity and in turn led detectives to Thomas and Miss O'Donnell.

Plays TV Role
Loan company employees identified Thomas from police pictures. They said he was the gunman in the Friday daylight robbery.

Miss O'Donnell confessed she drove the getaway car. Police said most of the stolen money was recovered.

Thomas, because of the hidden camera, found himself a television personality from coast-to-coast for his starring role in the holdup.

The film showed a peculiarity in Thomas' walk which helped identify him. He fled as far as Indianapolis, but everywhere he went the movies hounded him.

"Saturday I was in a bar in Indianapolis," said Thomas. "The television set there showed the robbery movies again. I got on a bus and went back to Cleveland."

He said he bought a paper, and found his picture on page one. "So I walked over to the police station and gave up," shrugged Thomas.

Grandmother Is Stabbed By Boy

ALTON, Ill. — A distraught boy stabbed his grandmother to death because she scolded him for not firing the furnace, police charged today.

Authorities said Charles McFarlane, 15, called early Sunday and told police he had stabbed his grandmother, Mrs. Velma McFarlane, 51, with a butcher knife while she was asleep.

The boy was kneeling over his grandmother when police arrived. Mrs. McFarlane died en route to a hospital.

Assistant state's attorney Merle Bassett said the boy told him in a statement that he and his grandmother argued about the furnace Saturday night. After returning from the basement, the youth was quoted as saying, his grandmother scolded him.

The boy told police he went to bed, but after spending several sleepless hours, he went to the kitchen, picked up a knife and entered his grandmother's room where he stabbed her in the chest.

McFarlane, whose parents are divorced, had spent most of his life with his grandmother.

The boy was held in city jail on a murder complaint signed by Bassett.

Naval Office To Appear At College To Explain Programs

A representative from the office of Naval Officer Procurement, Nashville, Tenn., will visit Murray State College on Wednesday the 17th of April for the purpose of interviewing college seniors who are interested in obtaining a commission in the Navy after graduation.

The navy representative will have complete information on all Navy Officer Programs including Officer Candidate School (OCS) for men and women, the Air Officer Candidate School (AOC), the Naval Aviation Cadet Program, and the Naval Medical Programs.

The two main avenues for obtaining a commission in the Navy are Officer Candidate School at Newport, Rhode Island for general line, supply and staff corps and aviation Officer Candidate School at Pensacola, Florida for those desiring to enter naval aviation. Both programs require a college degree plus other mental and physical qualifications. Applicants must undergo four (4) months of officer indoctrination prior to commissioning.

Weather Takes Seasonable Turn

The weather took a seasonable turn today with mild, spring-like readings expected over most of the nation.

A warming trend that began Sunday continued during the night in the Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes region.

Clearing skies sent temperatures tumbling in the Northern Lakes area, but weathermen said the mercury will climb today under bright sunshine. The coldest spot in the nation overnight was Mount Washington, N. H., where the temperature registered 1 above zero at midnight.

A storm center in the Pacific Northwest brought showers from the Pacific Coast to the Rockies. The storm brought an inch or more of rain Sunday over coastal sections of northern California.

Forecasters said warming will continue today from the Great Plains states to the Atlantic with mostly fair skies east of the Mississippi River. Mostly cloudy weather was seen for the Plains with scattered showers in the southern and northern sections.

Bobby Harmon Has Completed Basic

Airman Bobby D. Harmon, 17, son of Mrs. Lena B. Harmon, Rt. 3, Murray, is completing the first phase of his basic military training at the "Gateway to the Air Force," Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Upon completion of this training, he will be assigned to an Air Force technical training course or an advanced basic training course leading to a specialized Air Force job.

While at Lackland the new enlistee undergoes the transition from civilian to airman through a program which includes processing, aptitude testing, physical conditioning, survival and weapons training, and classroom studies ranging from citizenship to military customs and courtesies.

Like the USAF Officer Candidate and Pre-Flight Schools, also located at Lackland, basic military training lays the groundwork for either an on-the-job assignment or vocational schooling in line with capability of the individual.

Seventeen Aged Persons Die In Fire

POINTE AUX TREMBLES, Que. — Seventeen aged men and women were believed today to have died Saturday night in a flash electrical fire that destroyed a 200-year-old mansion converted for use as a nursing home.

Police said flames began in the home's electric wiring at the point where power lines entered the roof, and crackled along the interior wiring like fuses to all parts of the 18-room Madame John Henri Rest Home in this Montreal suburb.

Death came so quickly that none of the trapped inmates was heard to cry out. The roof caved in minutes after firemen arrived and the building blazed for five hours before the flames were brought under control.

Thirteen bodies had been removed from the ashes early today. One resident died of burns in a hospital. Three persons are reported missing. Firemen resumed the search for them at dawn.

Thirteen of the guests, ranging in age from 55 to over 80, managed to escape the flames. One body was found in a bathtub.

Positive identification was made on only two of the charred bodies recovered. One woman was identified by the location of her body in the room. A 77-year-old man was identified from the initials engraved on the back of his glass eye.

Mayor Jean Langelier of Pointe aux Trembles was asked if the building had been a "firetrap."

"The evidence speaks for itself," Langelier said.

French Authoress Injured In Crash

PARIS — Francoise Sagan, precocious French authoress who "loves to drive 125 miles an hour barefoot," hovered near death in a hospital today as the result of a highway accident that may have broken her neck.

The 21-year-old author of "Bonjour Tristesse" was seriously injured when one of her five sports cars ran off a country road south of Paris and rolled over several times in a field.

Three passengers in the British-made Aston-Martin, Veronique Campion, Bernard Frank and Waldemar Lestienne, also were injured in the crash. They were reported in "satisfactory" condition today.

Miss Sagan was in a coma for more than nine hours. She recovered consciousness early today, and was able to mumble several words.

When doctors promptly put her back to sleep with a shot of morphine to ease what they said was "severe pain." All of her face, except her mouth and eye, was swathed in bandages.

"There has been a very slight improvement, but her life is still in danger," said Dr. Jacques Le Beau, who is attending Miss Sagan at a hospital in suburban Neuilly.

Le Beau said it will be two or three days before any one can tell whether she will live.

Miss Sagan's taste for speed is well-known. Paris police officials warned her last year that if she didn't slow down that they would lift her license.

She complained of strict speed limits during a visit to the United States.

"I love to drive 125 miles an hour barefoot..." she said. "I think they should let you drive at least 90 miles an hour."

Postmaster Charged With Opening Mail

Mrs. Zula Humphreys of Puryear, who has been postmaster there for 17 years, was bound over to a federal grand jury last Thursday in Jackson on a charge of opening a letter while on duty in the Post Office.

Mrs. Humphreys, 52-year-old widow of a Puryear postmaster who succeeded her husband in office, was released under $1000 bond set by U. S. Commissioner Robert Holt.

A postal inspector testified at the hearing that he had seen Mrs. Humphreys open a "test" letter after it had been through the Puryear Post Office on March 28.

He said the letter was prepared after complaints from patrons concerning the opening of mail at the Post Office.

Mrs. Humphreys did not testify. She was represented by attorneys Carmack Murchison of Jackson and Aaron Brown of Paris.

Mrs. Humphreys was discharged by the Post Office after the charge was filed against her. Acting postmaster at Puryear was Mrs. Atkins Humphreys.

LAY OFF TVA

The "Citizens for TVA, Inc." which claims to be an organization for promoting the interests of the great agency which has attracted world-wide attention, is threatening to do it more harm than its enemies possibly can by having it include the nineteenth century dream known as "Tennessee-lombigbee canal project."

The dream to connect the Tennessee River with the Tombigbee, thereby opening a new inland water-way to the Gulf of Mexico, was conceived before the turn of the century. It has been discussed seriously at times, and dropped because of its cost and doubtful value as a water-way for traffic.

A generation ago the railroads lobbied against the canal proposal. At that time Alabama coal and iron ore were two major freight revenue-producing items for Southern railroads, and those who wanted to build the T-I canal were interested in diverting this valuable freight to the proposed water-way.

Now that the coal industry is not what it once was, and most of our iron ore is moving from Venezuela to Sparrows Point, Md., shipment of other commodities is being considered. But nobody has come up with the idea that the T-I canal can be built economically, nor be made to pay its way after it is built.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is quite a different sort of development. It is paying the taxpayers a handsome return on the funds invested, and it is producing and distributing electricity at a fraction of what private utility firms were formerly charging for an inadequate supply.

It is an imposition on TVA to transport a part of the electricity produced in the Tennessee Valley to the Ohio River port of Paducah, and the Mississippi River port of Memphis. Politics is responsible for it and we could name the two United States Senators responsible, but it would be merely a repetition of what we have said many times before.

We can think of nothing more deadly to TVA as a profit-making federal agency than for it to build a canal to connect the Tennessee and Tombigbee Rivers. To begin with it would cost about as much as it cost to develop all the locks and dams on the Tennessee from Paducah to Knoxville. And after the canal is built the revenue it could earn would be negligible in comparison with its cost.

We do not oppose the canal project on its own. We do oppose it, and all other efforts, to expand and extend operations of TVA. The agency was designed for the Tennessee Valley only, and it should be confined to the Tennessee Valley, for the use of the people of the Tennessee Valley.

The sooner AEC is compelled to produce its own power, so more of TVA production can be released to the general public, the better off all of us will be. That also holds true with the power supply for Memphis which will soon be produced there, and for Paducah, as well.

It is amazing that so many Southern people who believe in public power should think it should all be developed and distributed by TVA. It is beginning to appear the friends of TVA may do it more damage than its enemies. For the sure way to destroy it is to convert it from a highly profitable operation to one which can't possibly earn a decent return on invested capital.

SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FALEY
United Press Sports Editor
GREENWOOD Lake, N. Y. — Sugar Ray Robinson admitted that "at 35 you're not getting any better," prepared Wednesday for the fight of his boxing life.

This is a new, grimly serious Robinson who will strive to regain the middleweight crown from rugged Gene Fullmer at Chicago May 1. This is no longer the laughing playboy once known as one of the greatest fighters, pound for pound, in ring history.

He realizes that this could be the end of the road for the man trying to grab for the fourth time a title won from Jake LaMotta, lost and regained against Randy Turpin, and taken again from Carl Bobb Olson before losing it to Fullmer.

Has Him Worried
Cowboy Gene, an awkward "growler," is the kind of fighter old Sugar Ray at one time ate for breakfast. Today he worries the one-time Hagie dynamiter.

You see it in Robinson's sober mien and in the relentless manner in which he trains. They wonder whether Robinson's legs are gone and certainly he is not the ringmaster of old. Yet they say he is the Ramshackle Jim on the shores of Greenwood Lake, he is punching harder than ever. Anybody can see the hurt pride driving him on; that, and a need of ready cash.

Sugar Ray is in trouble with Uncle Sam in the same way as Joe Louis. Each owes an incredible amount of back taxes and it is doubtful whether they will ever get out.

Yet more than that drives Sugar Ray into the ring against the Utah strong boy who, on youth and strength, rates a solid

Ike To Throw Out First Ball In Opening Major League Game

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press Sports Writer
The flags fluttering in the wind... the shrill shouts of the vendors hawking their hotdogs, peanuts and scorecards... the familiar huddle at home plate... and finally the first official pitch all add up to the long-awaited opening day of another baseball season.

President Eisenhower sets the major league campaign in motion at Washington today when he throws out the first ball prior to a game between the Baltimore Orioles and Washington Senators.

Then, Tuesday, all the other clubs swing into action. Detroit will be at Kansas City, Chicago at Cleveland, Boston at Baltimore and Washington at New York in the American League, while in the National League Milwaukee opens at Chicago, St. Louis at Cincinnati, New York at Pittsburgh and Brooklyn at Philadelphia in a night game.

With the weatherman predicting good weather, a crowd of 2,000 was expected to be on hand for today's inaugural between the Orioles and Senators.

Yanks Add Strength
The world champion Yankees, heavily favored to win again this year because of such reinforcements as Art Ditmar, Booby Sox and Tony Kucenas as well as such old pros as Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra, Gil McDougald, Whitey Ford and Don Larsen, began defense of their title against the Senators Tuesday at Yankee Stadium.

A crowd of 20,000 is anticipated to be on hand when the left-handed Ford, who had a 19-6 record last season, tosses up the first offering to Washington. Chuck Stobbs, ace of the Senators' staff in 1956 with a 15-15 record, will oppose the curvilinear Ford.

Southpaw Herb Score, Cleveland's million-dollar strikeout king, will oppose another fine left hander in Billy Pierce when the Indians and White Sox hold their inaugural in Cleveland Thursday.

Ethel, big Frank Sullivan (14-7) or Tom Brewer (19-9) will be on the mound for the Red Sox in their opener at Baltimore. Connie Johnson (9-11) will be the Orioles' hurler in a game expected to attract 30,000.

Frank Lary, a 21-game winner last season, opens for Detroit against ex-Yankee Tom Morgan, who will hurl for the Athletics at Kansas City. A sellout crowd of 30,000 is expected to see this 3-1 favorite. It is Robinson's refusal to concede that he might be through.

Determine To Win
"Physically I haven't lost a thing," Sugar Ray says defiantly. "Fullmer has an awkward style and that's how he beat me the last time. I've fought rougher and stronger men, like, let's say, LaMotta and beaten them. I never remember feeling any better. This one I've got to win."

There is a suspicion here that, despite the years and the odds, young Master Fullmer faces a rough evening. For here is a serious, determined Robinson on one ever has seen before.

Fullmer didn't appear to be a hard puncher, he analyzes sternly. "I can't say for sure whether I hurt him but I will admit I made some mistakes. I laid too much and I waited too long. I forgot to fight like I can. This time it will be different."

The eyes from which the laughter is gone mark that more of a vow than a promise.

Early Marble Sculpture Is Found In Greece

CHICAGO — A University of Chicago expedition has unearthed the earliest piece of marble sculpture ever discovered in the Corinthian district of Greece. The expedition also discovered the sites of an early stadium and an ancient temple dedicated to the Palaimon at the Temple of Poseidon in Corinth.

Oscar Broner, professor of classical archaeology, heads the University of Chicago expedition which since 1952 has been excavating the ruins of the temple near the eastern end of the Corinth Canal. Broner said fragments of a large marble holy water basin dating to the seventh century B. C. were discovered in an ancient dump containing debris from a fire that destroyed the temple of Poseidon early in the fifth century B. C.

Likes And Dislikes Of Child Differ

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The literary likes and dislikes of a two or three-year-old may differ greatly from what adults think he should like.

Large, clear and colorful pictures of something the child knows and understands rate much higher than the "cute" books that more sophisticated adult tastes sometimes dictate.

So says Queenie Allen, university of Illinois child development and family relations specialist, who reports that the best books contain pictures of animals with an accompanying sentence or two, so the child can hear about and see the action at the same time.

Large, life-like renderings are favored over smaller and more stylized pictures. The pictures should be uncluttered so the child can understand the action easily, she said.

Posture Reveals Opinion Of Self

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Posture is a dead giveaway of your own opinion of yourself, according to Dr. Eleanor Metheny, professor of physical education at the University of Southern California.

"The person who feels an honest pride in himself and his body stands straight and looks the world in the eye," Dr. Metheny said.

The posture of young American women is good, but the older women tend to set themselves "slump".

Younger women today are aware of a desire to look as well as they can, and, after all, this is the real answer to posture," she added.

"The older generation was brought up to believe that bodies were something to be ignored. Consequently, they tended to let their shoulders droop. They established this habit, and their shoulders are still drooping."

She said young women today "reflects in the way the women of today walk, sit and stand."

The expert said good posture is a matter of recognizing the fight against gravity.

"Gravity is constantly pulling you down," she said. "A good way to fight it is to keep the body segments straight—on top of one another—so that gravity pulls you together instead of apart."

THEY DID "TIME"

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — City Commissioner Herman Higgins pondered a $1159 bill presented by two plumbers Wednesday for a few minutes repairs in the county jail plus "time." The plumbers charged the city for overtime after they were inadvertently locked in a cell for two hours.

Girl Scout News

Murray Girl Scouts of Troop 20 enjoyed a camp-out at the Girl Scout Cabin last Friday night with their leader, Mrs. Michael Rockas, and Mrs. Bob Gass.

The girls met at the cabin at 6:30 o'clock and after building a fire in the huge fireplace, the girls toasted marshmallows and hot dogs.

The evening was spent playing records, dancing, singing, accompanied by Mrs. Gass at the piano. Saturday morning each girl cooked and prepared her own breakfast and then cleaned up the cabin.

Baseball Now Pitches At Curves

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Baseball now is pitching at curves. We women were admitted to ball parks long before suffrage, but the people who run the national pastime figure not enough of us are fans.

So the office of Commissioner Ford Frick has published a "Baseball Made Plain" booklet. One of the prime purposes is to educate us girls and lure more of us into the ball parks.

Just in time, too. The major league season opens April 16, giving exactly one week for all of us underprivileged minority. That's the primer called women who can't tell Mickey Mantle from the umpire to brush up on their batting.

It does not detail how you can drag hubby away from the TV set to mow the lawn. It just assumed the smart woman decides. "If you can't beat 'em join 'em."

Actually many already have. The commissioner's commission's office estimated that 17 to 18 per cent of the attendance each week during the season is made up of women, counting Ladies Day.

Ladies Day, when the women are admitted for almost free, is a national institution—instigated in 1893 at the New York Polo Grounds. That year, the women were admitted free. The Encyclopedia of Baseball shows that in 1912 the St. Louis Browns instituted the first regularly scheduled Ladies Day. Women were admitted, if escorted.

This led, the record books say, to the habit of some women "standing outside the gate and attaching themselves to some likely looking man."

Eventually, the American League adopted regular Ladies' Days. The National League soon followed.

"We shouldn't have sold sound-bits," she said. Or, "we should have sold them."

Her "we" spirit carried over to Mrs. Rodriguez, who put her husband to work explaining the game. She became an ardent Reds rooter.

"I forgot the incident until the commissioner hired our agency," said Lloyd. "Then it all came back. I decided we needed to reach a lot of people who were not fans, and a lot of these were women."

Lloyd believes that the women lack in numbers, they make up for in loyalty.

Men are more statistics-minded, he said. "But no one can exceed the woman fan in emotional devotion to her team."

INVADE SAN MARINO

UP-Italian university students who captured the flag of this 1,600-year-old republic Wednesday demanded a decoration, today as the price of returning it.

The students drove to the 38-square-mile mountain-top republic in a bus, overpowered the guards, stormed the government place and made off with the flag. Other students stole the republic's artillery last year.

"HOT" CAKES

LOS ANGELES — The desire for pancakes with plenty of syrup ruined the breakfasts of several police officers Tuesday. Cooks in their cafeteria admitted that the syrup pitchers had been filled accidentally with soy sauce.

'MISTAKE' LIFE TERM ENDS

SANTOS RODRIGUEZ, 28, freed from a life sentence, bids goodbye to prison chaplain Father Leo Flynn as he leaves Norfolk, Mass., penitentiary. "I am very thankful to God. This is a very happy day," said Rodriguez, who was convicted in 1954 in the slaying of Mrs. Mildred Hosmer in Springfield, Mass. Last January, an ex-convict, Lucien Peets, 34, admitted the Hosmer slaying, and pardon machinery for Rodriguez was set in motion. He insisted he didn't know what he was signing when he signed a confession to police after the crime. (International Soundphoto)

CHAPTER 24

GENERAL WESSELS called his staff meeting after the evening mess. Major Powell was there, and Jim Bridger, who had just come in from a brief "look-see," as he put it. Half a dozen officers were present and the first arrivals took what chairs were available; the others stood against the wall while Wesleys paced back and forth, reducing visibility in the room with his rank cigar.

Finally the orderly closed the door and Wesleys stopped pacing. "Gentlemen," he said, "I've called this meeting because I firmly believe we're on the threshold of something great, the turning point in our one-sided campaign against Red Cloud's Sioux."

The murmur went around the room like a brook dropping down over rocks. When Wesleys took his cigar from his mouth to speak again, the movement brought an end to their buzzing talk; they gave him a look of command with the same attention that a musician gives the symphony conductor.

"Bridger has been on a scout all afternoon," Wesleys turned to him. "Did you learn anything?"

"Red Cloud's lickin' his wounds, General," that young lieutenant shore give him "jesay!" Bridger threw his arms out wide. "Wrecked his hull camp. You should've seen it, General! lodges an' traps scattered over a hull half-acre. Looks like a herd o' buff'lo went through it lickety-split."

"You saw no sign of the Sioux?" Powell asked this. He was a small man, moon-faced, with a neatly clipped mustache and a manner that invited no nonsense.

"Nope," Bridger said. "Reckon Red Cloud's somewhere behind Lodge Trail Ridge, cussin' a blue streak. You can't blame him none. All along he's been makin' some powerful medicine. Got most of his bucks beavin' he's th' wind and the thunder." Bridger chuckled. "That there lieutenant sorta knocked that into a cocked hat for him. Red Cloud'll be doin' his dancin' tonight; you can bet your prime heaver on that. He'll have to make some medicine again' that lieutenant. Kessiree!"

Wesleys had heard enough. He put his cigar down and sat at his desk. His face was lined and haggard for he was a troubled man, heavy with responsibility and shouldered with a campaign which had no certain happy ending. Yet there was hope in his voice as he said, "Inadvertently Schwabacker—I've made him a captain—has performed a miracle for us. Gentlemen, I'm violating no confidence when I tell you that the government, especially the military, is eager to abandon this campaign. It is my personal opinion that General Cooke and many others are now sorry it ever began. However, we have a semi-political position to consider, and that is this. A withdrawal of troops from Fort C. F. Smith and Fort Phil Kearny while Red Cloud was in a victorious military position, would leave a bad taste, so to speak, in the public's mouth. The United States Army, gentlemen, does not begin a campaign to leave it in complete rout. We are faced with the task of withdrawing only at impasse, and I believe Schwabacker's action may afford us the opportunity."

"I fail to see where our situation has been altered, General," Thorne from Powell.

"Tactically, it hasn't," Wesleys said. "But before this Red Cloud took the field upon every occasion. He has kept Kearny in veritable siege since the building of it. Fort Smith has fared little better. Red Cloud's actions have been a series of conquest for us. He shows it every time he allows a courier or a small detail to travel from here to Smith without harm. He doesn't care whether we discuss our abominable plight or not, simply because he feels that he can wipe us out when he gets good and ready." Wesleys banged the flat of his hand on his desk. "But at last Red Cloud has met a force in the field, vastly inferior to his own in numbers, but he took a licking. He gave ground, gentlemen, and I imagine that was a severe blow to his pride. No, I believe a great event has occurred, and I intend to make the most of it. Gentlemen, understand that a peace commission has stood ready to make overtures to Red Cloud and bring this bloody mess to an end, but we needed a victory on our side before we could argue. Think, gentlemen! The defeated army does not dictate terms to the victor, and until this afternoon, Red Cloud has been the victor! I 'But will this be enough, General?" Captain Tensadore Ten Eyck asked. He leaned against the wall, a slender man with dark, burning eyes.

"Enough to insure peace?" Wesleys shook his head. "I don't know. But it can offer hope. I've finished a report that will go out by courier tonight after tattoo. In this report I've suggested that the peace commission return to Fort Laramie, and that a possible meeting be arranged. We will never have a clear-cut victory here; I'm sure of that. But I think even Red Cloud will agree that it is ridiculous to waste lives on both sides when neither can win." He looked at each of them.

"That's the situation as I see it. You're accused, gentlemen, of being afraid. They fled out, all but Jim Bridger, who stayed because General Wesleys signaled him. Wesleys touched a match to his head cigar and puffed furiously. Bridger, who had been leaning against the wall, stepped forward and said, "About abandonin' Fort Smith, General?"

"A command decision is always a difficult one," Wesleys said. "For a week now I've been pondering a prospect around in my mind, unable to reach a conclusion."

"About abandonin' Fort Smith, General?"

Wesleys made no attempt to mask his surprise. He took the cigar from his mouth and said, "How did you know, Jim?"

"Warn't hard to figure," Bridger said. "Was I runnin' this shebang, I'd have done it. Fort Smith ain't big, General. Yet got a nigh million forty men there. Was there a big fight, Red Cloud'd send Crazy Horse up there with a handful of good bucks an' huff down th' walls for you."

"I know that," Wesleys said. "I sent a courier there days ago with express orders to have everything ready to move on a minute's notice. At that time it was my intention to buy Red Cloud's peace with $25,000. He might've gone for it too, General."

"That's what I thought," Wesleys said, scrubbing a hand across his face. "But the commission won't have a dog's chance to talk with Red Cloud. How can I take a chance? They may not even come to Laramie, and I may not be able to arrange the talks. If that happens and I leave Smith occupied, they stand a good chance of being wiped out to a man."

"Got you between two rocks, ain't they?" Bridger noisted himself erect. "You know somethin', General? I don't envy you a danged bit for havin' this job."

Wesleys stared at the door after it closed, and had he cared to admit it, he would have agreed with Jim Bridger. He set out with the sour stub of his cigar and let his many worries have their way with him. He began to understand Colonel Carrington a little more clearly, and with this understanding came the first shards of pity for Carrington had faced a hopeless cause from the very beginning. Leading combat experience, he had been the unwitting whipping boy for post-Civil War politicians and ambitious generals.

Schwabacker's luck is about to change—for better or worse. He sure is outlinin' "The Brass and the Blue" in Chapter 25 Monday.

New Products

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

NEW YORK—Kites have come a long way since the days of Benjamin Franklin. Now they've got plastic-coated ones for faster takeoff and longer use.

The trouble, says Cruden Martin Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, was that the kites had always been impeded by dew on the ground and possible snagging. Its answer is a kite coated with bakelite polyethylene, a plastic material which it says provides not only moisture resistance but greater durability.

The maker of a new cement base paint says the product will prevent water seepage in such spots as basements, silos and elevator pits. A. C. Horn Co. Inc., a subsidiary of Sun Chemical Corp. of San Francisco, says its new "Water-Gel, KB55" is actually a "breathing type" coating that permits moisture to escape. It is made with a high percentage of Portland cement.

Still experimental but offering a clue as to what future beaches and picnic grounds may be like is a sun-powered portable radio-photograph. The unit operates on a 48-cell solar battery. On sunless days the cell can be activated by an incandescent light or six rechargeable flashlight-size batteries. Admiral Corp. of Chicago, the maker, estimates the value of the set at $5,000.

A new fertilizer, described as one of the most concentrated complete fertilizers on the market, will be introduced to Midwest farmers this spring, says the manufacturer, the Plant Food Division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. The new Ammono-Phos pelletized fertilizer provides 56 units of plant food per 100 pounds of fertilizer. The company says the high analysis reduces the amount of filler which the farmer must haul and apply with the plant food.

Server Of Processes Has Bad Time

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—There's an everlasting battle for survival going on here in this concrete jungle, and one of the most interesting bouts on the card is the swank hotels and apartments vs. the process servers.

Abe Miller, the professional catch-em man we interviewed recently on his life and hard time as a bill collector, has come back and given us another installment of his 25-year career. This one is about how to be a process server.

"See, I come into the Waldorf-Astoria, or some other swanky hotel, to serve a summons," Abe began. "Now, at the desk they won't give you a room number where the party is. So I have a little idea of my own. When I walk into a hotel looking for a party, I have a special long envelope, deep pink or deep blue, addressed to him."

"The reason for the especially long one is that the clerk don't put messages in the mail box right away. I come in and say I have a note for Mr. so-and-so and hand it to the clerk. Then I go away and come back in about 15 minutes, and wherever I see my envelope protruding in the box I know that's the right room number."

The secret of serving a summons is to be very alert and fast. "Once you've handed him the paper, you leave, right now," Abe says.

"One trouble with the swanky hotels," he continued, "is they have what we in the business call 'get-away exits.' Once years ago I was looking for Charlie Chaplin; a guy was trying to sue him for $15,000 about a movie. He moved into a big hotel tower suite, where they won't let you upstairs, and then he'd take the elevator right down to the basement garage, or else get off at one of several levels and take some different exit.

"We were looking for a California license. Like many big celebrities, he hired a local limousine with a chauffeur, and pulled the curtain down when he got in. There were two or three of us process servers looking for him and we never could lay our hands on him in that hotel. We finally found him in the Plaza Bar."

Eastman Employees Savings Rose In 1956

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — Eastman Kodak Co. employees saved $4.5 million more last year than they did in 1955, according to the 1956 annual report of the Eastman Savings and Loan Association.

James K. Killip, executive vice-president of the association which is linked to the firm, reported that savings in the institution rose to a record $36,900,000—up 13.9 per cent over 1955.

Killip revealed that the association's assets reached $42 million, making it fourth in amount of assets among the 159 savings and loan associations chartered by New York State.

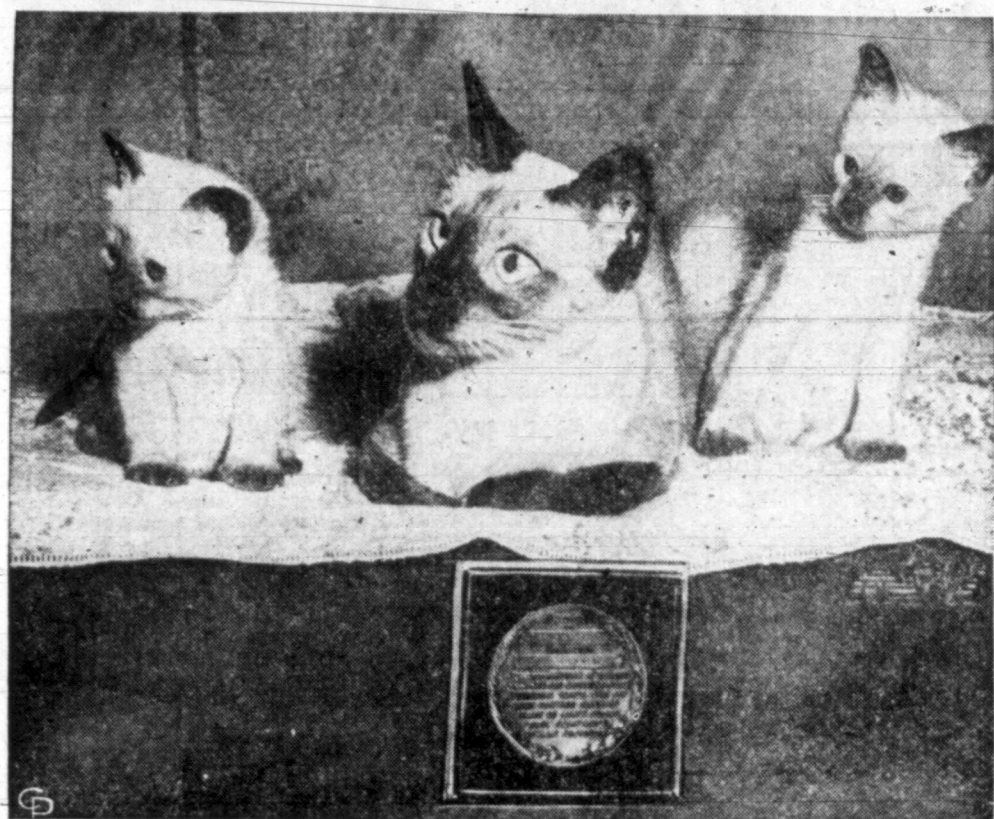

one of the toughest gangsters in the world — a racketeer," Abe said. "The lawyer had tried three other process servers and they refused. It was the easiest money I ever made because I knew you have to use the direct approach with these tough guys, no fast stuff. I just came into his office and told his secretary what it was—and got right in to see him."

Abe figures his closest call was when he served a man a non-payment of rent summons, then five blocks away, discovered the man running after him, summons in one hand, a knife in the other, yelling: "You take that summons back." Abe took it. Who is he to argue?

Abe says that in lush apartment houses the "shady characters" he's looking for are usually in "cahoots" with the doorman. If you work your way with a dummy package to the service entrance, you often find he's in "cahoots" with the service man, Abe says. One answer is to try to get in "cahoots" yourself with the right men.

"I had a summons once against
