Small School Census Blamed Locally; 8 In State Closed

FRANKFORT — The state Board of Education Thursday notified 12 state high schools they must show cause why they should not be discredited by June 25.

Eight of the affected schools are scheduled to be closed by their local school boards. Dr. Robert R. Martin, superintendent of public instruction, recommended closing of the other four—Trenton in Todd County; Forkland in Boyle County; West Point in Hardin County, and Buckeye in Garrard County.

The eight scheduled to be closed locally are: Arlington, Bardwell, Cunningham and Milburn in Carlisle County; Marion Independent; Mayars—Underwood in Frankfort; Cayce in Fulton County and Horse Cave Negro high school.

The board also gave emergency ratings to 40 high schools and warned 91 others that their ratings will be reduced in 1958 unless they correct noted deficiencies.

The closing of West Point, Buckeye, Forkland and Trenton schools was recommended because of limited curricula, poor laboratory equipment, inadequate libraries, too few teachers and enrollments of less than 100.

Martin said that pupils at Buckeye could attend school at Paint Lick or Lancaster; those at Trenton could go to Guthrie, and Forkland pupils could attend Perryville or Junction City schools.

West Point pupils could go to Vine Grove, or possibly to Valley High School, if an agreement could be worked out with the Jefferson County Board of Education.

Hearings will be held before the state board June 25 for superintendents and local board members on the proposed discreditation. Local officials also must furnish written information on accreditation to the state board by June 1. Other county high schools placed on an emergency basis (Continued from Page Two)

TV To Roll Back Times To Old Era

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Sit back, kiddies. This Sunday, TV will dip briefly into an era when rock 'n' rye outlasted rock 'n' roll and mom and dad sang such lovely old ballads as "When They Changed My Name To A Number."

The occasion will be a Good-year Playhouse production of "The Gene Austin Story," on NBC-TV. Austin, for the benefit of the newly arrived, was the Elvis Presley - Perry Como - Tab Hunter of his day.

"His popularity was fantastic," recalls Bob Kerr, Austin's one-time personal representative and the man who probably knows him best. "You can't imagine what it was like unless you lived through it."

Sales in Millions
"He sold 86, 87 million records, more than anybody in history. 'My Blue Heaven' went over eight million — 400,000 of them in Japan. They used to release a new Austin record every Tuesday morning and you'd have to line up early at the store to make sure of getting it."

Austin, a Gainesville, Tex., boy who was reared in Louisiana, has been living in semi-retirement since 1932 when he cut his last waffle for RCA Victor. He'll appear briefly on this Sunday's show to sing, "Too Late," one side of a new Austin platter.

The 55-year old Austin also cut all or parts of 18 songs for the one-hour drama which will be lipsynced by George Grizzard, the young actor, who will cavort as Austin. The story will center around one episode in Austin's life — a time when he was reported lost at sea.

Austin's painiest days as a singer were in the late 1920's. "He was a natural singer," said Kerr, "and I guess you could only say there have been about four others in our lifetime? Crosby, Sinatra, Como, Presley."

He Sang Soft
"But his success was a kind of combination of circumstances. Most of the other singers around then didn't really know how to approach the phonograph record. Like Al Jolson, they were all loud singers. They screamed. 'Well, along came Gene, the only one with mike technique. For the first time, the public got a taste of a simple crooner and they ate it up. Another thing — Gene had an uncanny knack of picking the right songs to sing. Thirty-one of his records sold over a million copies each.' It was Austin who popularized such tunes as "My Blue Heaven," "Sleepy Time Gal," "Ramona," "Melancholy Baby" and "Yes Sir, That's My Baby." Of course, he had some clinkers, too. "One dog was 'I don't Care You Used To Be, I Know What You Are Today,'" remembered Kerr. "And there was 'When They Changed My Name To A Number' — Gene went into the publishing business with that and he went out with it. He printed 800 copies and got 900 back."

Markets Devote More Space To Meats

CHICAGO — New supermarkets are allotting increasingly more space to meat display counters to handle the great volume of meat, consumed in the United States, the National Association of Food Chains reported.

The space boost is most evident, the NAFC said, in the estimated 2,500 supermarkets being built each year.

Older, smaller stores, the NAFC added, are closed faster than new deluxe stores are opened by chain store executives. Thus, the total chain food store business remains about the same as 23 years charged with hitting the teacher with a basket, pulling her hair and knocking her across her desk. Mrs. Evans recently was honored by a television program as a "typical housewife."

DETECT "HOT" RAIN

TOKYO — Government weather stations detected Tuesday night the fifth Soviet nuclear test explosion this month, and "hot" rain was reported from various parts of Japan today. The Central Meteorological Observatory announced early today that "abnormal slight air concussions" were observed around 8 a.m. Tuesday at weather bureaus and observations in various parts of the country.

JONATHAN DANIELS, Raleigh, N.C., editor and once executive assistant to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, said at Warm Springs, Ga., that he had withheld from the nation's press "shocking" pictures of the four-time Chief Executive. They were taken at Yalta and showed him to be a very sick man. The above photo, showing Roosevelt (right) as he was greeted by British Prime Minister Winston Churchill at Yalta, dated February, 1945. It was placed in the Army Signal Corps restricted files where it remained until 1951.

"The Milking Parlor is really nice, and I like it better every time I use it. It enables one person to do the work of two and actually makes milking cows a pleasure." These and many other words of praise are heard at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Crawford of the Lynn Grove community.

The Crawfords, by taking advantage of Ryan Milk Company's new manufactured milk program, now have a new convenient, labor saving Mr. Dairyman:

SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Just from watching them, you couldn't have told which was Casey Stengel and which was Chuck Dressen.

This was before the opening game of the season at Yankee Stadium and Stengel, the man who admits he should make it eight pennants in nine years, was edgy and gruff. Dressen, a man you might figure to be irritable, was bright and affable.

It marked the difference between a man with some place to go and one who knows his club isn't expected to go anywhere but the bottom of the barrel.

The Finish Counts
"It ain't how you start," Stengel barked as he contemplated the 37th opening game of his career. "It's how you stand on the last day of the season."

Somebody asked him whether any of all the opening games he has seen since 1910 stood out in his mind.

"I can't answer that," he growled. "After a while they all get jumbled together. But I do know the best season I ever had. That was the one at Brook-

Fishing Report Is Excellent On Kentucky Lake

FRANKFORT (AP) — The state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Thursday issued its most enthusiastic fishing report of the season rating weekend angling prospects as excellent.

Reports from Kentucky Lake indicate that the crappie run there is surpassing those of the last two years. Crappie caught at the lake have seldom weighed less than a pound, with two-pounders numerous.

Oldtimers at Kentucky Lake believe the run may continue for another two weeks.

The department also reported the white bass run underway at the Dix River headwaters of Herrington Lake, with the water clear and temperature about 57 degrees.

Crappie were taken as the best catch at Dale Hollow and Lake Cumberland and both crappie and temperature about 57 degrees.

CHAPTER 28
BREVET Captain Schwabacker glanced at his watch. Quarter to twelve. Opening his door, he stepped out to the edge of the duck walk and stood there, looking at the dark parade. A man came along the walk, his shoes lightly rattling the boards. When he passed Schwabacker, he turned and came back. "Captain Schwabacker?" "Yes?" "The man offered his hand. 'I'm Allistar Davis, a newspaper man. I've come from Chicago for an interview with you, Captain. You're big news. Two weeks ago you crowded the proposed transcontinental railroad off of page one.' " "That's very flattering," Schwabacker said, "but what is it you want?" "A story," Davis said. He nodded toward the open door of Schwabacker's quarters. "May I come in?" "Certainly," Schwabacker said and followed him inside. He closed the door, indicated a chair, then sat on the bed while Davis got out paper and pencil. "A few unofficial opinions, Captain," Davis said. "You engaged Red Cloud; isn't that right?" "I engaged a small portion of his forces," Schwabacker said. "I don't believe we have enough troops on the frontier to survive a mass attack." "Survive mass attack..." Davis stopped writing. "Captain, I understand that a new rifle has been issued to the troops. Do you feel that this will provide an advantage over the hostiles?" "As long as we can keep it quiet," Schwabacker said. "Mr. Davis, this will be cleared with General Wessels, will it not?" "Certainly," Davis said and went on writing. "Now, Captain, you say, as long as the issue can be kept quiet, what do you mean?" "Well, we are aware of the fact that Red Cloud usually employs one method of attack when engaging our troops. It's the general's opinion that this method is successful because of our muzzle-loading weapons. However, if we can dupe Red Cloud into attacking in his usual manner, we can surprise him greatly by presenting a rapid-fire breech-loader in defense." "Davis' pen scratched on the paper. "You've just returned from Fort Smith. What is your opinion of the post and its defense?" "Barely minimum," Schwabacker said. "You can spread them just so thin, Mr. Davis. General Wessels has just so many to spread." "I see. Do you feel that Department of Platte has been negligent in supplying troops and material?" "That's not for me to say, sir. There's a peace commission preparing to journey west to Laramie, Captain. Do you think the Sioux are ready to talk?" "Not at this time," Schwabacker said. "Mr. Davis, Red Cloud will have to be drastically reduced in fighting strength before peace terms can be presented. The Cheyennes may not act quite differently. It's been my honor to have drubbed them thoroughly on two separate occasions. They're good fighters, but they lack the Sioux heart." "Mr. Davis, the Sioux Indian is quite possibly the finest light cavalry in the world. The warriors are fanatically brave, their leaders intelligent, and they go into battle with prearranged tactics, like any other army. They deploy, flank, circle, attack in waves. All they lack is artillery and a quartermaster corps." "Davis laughed at this, but took care to write every word of it down. When he was finished, he said, 'It seems to me that the peace commission will have difficulty arranging a meeting between the warring Indians and the government.' " "That will be the most difficult," Schwabacker said, "the initial contact. Timing is of the essence where the Indian is concerned. If they believe their medicine has been turned against them, they will listen to talk. If they feel that the medicine is right, the man who enters their camp will probably never come out." "That's an unpleasant thought," Davis said and flipped a page. "During your patrol to Smith and back, did you observe hostile activity?" "Mr. Davis, you can't step off the post without being among them. However, the bulk of the hostile forces seem to be shifting. They've abandoned harassment of the road between here and Laramie, and are concentrating forces between here and Fort Smith." "For war?" Schwabacker smiled. "Mr. Davis, they've been making war ever since Colonel Carrington built Kearny and Smith." "Of course," Davis said hastily. He closed his book and stood up, putting pencil and book in his inner coat pocket. "Thank you for the interview, Captain. The readers back East like to know what's going on out here. After all, it's the taxpayers' money that's being spent." He smiled and went to the door. "You will clear this with the general?" Schwabacker reminded him. "Of course," Davis said. "I have other material to gather. Good night, Captain." "Good night," Schwabacker said and stood in the doorway while Allistar Davis walked away. Schwabacker wrestled off his boots and lay down on his bunk, his hands behind his head. He couldn't help thinking of Davis, coming all that way for a story. Must have taken him a week of day-and-night riding in dirty trains and dusty stages. He went over in his mind the many things Davis had asked and wondered...

Securities Filed With SEC Record

CHICAGO — More than $13 billion in securities were filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in 1956, setting an all-time record, according to the Commerce Clearing House.

The CCH, national reporting authority on tax and business law, said in a review of SEC history that the figures reflected a prosperous and expanding economy with an annual gross product of over $400 billion—the highest in history.

However, the CCH warned "at the same time, they are accompanied by conditions calling for increased vigilance and re-examination of policies to make certain that they are in tune with demands of the times."

The SEC stepped up emphasis on enforcement of federal securities laws in 1956, the CCH said, and also increased its broker-dealer inspection program nearly 24 per cent.

Since the SEC was founded in 1933, the CCH said, more than $14 billion in securities representing 10,528 new issues have been filed with the Commission.

Broadway

BROADWAY IN By JACK GAVER IN United Press Drama Editor NEW YORK — At hand is an announcement that Charlotte Harmon, a charming and most articulate person, has just signed a new lease for the presentation of summer stock at the Clinton (Conn.) Playhouse.

The announcement is bare and seems routine, but it is far from that, and the full story can be found in a new book entitled "Broadway In a Barn" (Crowell).

Written by Mrs. Harmon and Rosemary Taylor, it is a book that should appeal to all theatergoers and especially to those who go tripping around the northeastern states in the summer, dropping in occasionally for entertainment in any of the scores of country theaters that dot the landscape.

Mrs. Harmon has turned out a book that is primarily amusing, but in it will be found all of the hard labor and heartaches that go into the running of one of these theaters where all seems so holiday-like and serene. It is a rugged existence in which only the most dedicated will persevere. Profit certainly is possible, but it is never guaranteed nor extraordinary enough to make the burden seem feather-light.

On Her Own This summer will mark Mrs. Harmon's 12th as a producer-director in summer theater. It will be her second on her own. She and her husband, Lewis Harmon, a veteran Broadway theatrical press agent, began in 1946 with the Chapel Playhouse in Guilford, Conn., and ran it for five seasons before selling and moving over to Clinton. Harmon bowed out after the 1955 summer due to a combination of ill health and pressing Broadway duties, and Mrs. Harmon, much against her judgment in 1956 when she almost quit the game, has carried on alone since.

The book is filled with anecdotes about the great and the comers of the theater, especially in the acting ranks, and these are both highly amusing and painful. Some of your favorites do not appear in too favorable a light because it seems that there is something about barnstorming around the summer circuit that can bring out of the worst in certain players. Of course, some are sweethearts.

This is a good record of a branch of show business that has gained high importance in the past decade. And it probably will discourage you from ever trying to operate a summer stock theater.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Dr. H. C. Chile

Jesus' Victory And Commission — Matthew 28:1-10; 16-20

Today's lesson concludes this particular series of studies in the Gospel according to Matthew. In it we find that great foundation truth of the Christian faith, the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Then, after His resurrection, and before His departure from this world, the Lord Jesus Christ gave His disciples specific instructions about the work which He expected them to do in the form of what is usually called "The Great Commission."

The Triumph, Matthew 28:1-10. On Calvary's cross "Christ died for our sins." In His death on that cruel tree, the purposes of divine love became intelligible, and the great problem of human redemption was solved. Then, Joseph and Nicodemus came and Christ's body was removed from the cross and placed in a tomb. His body remained in the tomb until Sunday morning. Early that morning Christ arose. Through His resurrection we have received the blessed assurance that the grave is not our goal.

As it began to dawn on Sunday, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, who loved the Lord devotedly, approached the tomb where Christ was buried for the purpose of anointing His body with spices and perfumes. That which they beheld was an impressive scene. There was an earthquake, an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, the stone was rolled away from the entrance to the tomb, and the angel sat upon it. This stone had been rolled away from the door, not in order to allow Christ to escape, for He had already arisen, but to demonstrate to the women and any others who might enter that He was not in the tomb.

When the angels saw how terribly frightened the women were, he said, "Fear not ye for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; for He is risen, as He said." The angel invited the women to inspect the place, where the body of their Lord had been kept prior to His resurrection. How fortunate they were in being privileged not only to hear the glorious news of His resurrection, but also to see the empty tomb!

Having heard the glorious news, and having observed the empty tomb, they were commanded to "go quickly, and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead." The death of the Saviour would not have been good news without the word of the reality of His resurrection.

And they departed immediately to carry the good news to the disciples. As they went, Christ met them with the greeting, "All hail." It was the presence of Christ that dispelled their doubts and brought them unspeakable joy. Always, when we are in the pathway of obedience to the will of God, we shall enjoy the delightful privilege of having fellowship with our gracious Lord.

The Task, Matthew 28:16-20. In obedience to the command of their Lord, the eleven apostles made their way to Galilee, and there they met the Master. When they saw Him, they proceeded to worship Him, and He readily accepted their worship.

His power was announced. Matthew 28:18. Quietly, but without any hesitation or reservation, Christ announced that to Him had been given all authority over the entire creation. "All authority is given unto Me in heaven and on earth."

Christ has commanded us to go into all the world making disciples for Christ and teaching them His glorious truths. He expects us to evangelize the unsaved and to edify the saved. It is His will that we proclaim His gospel wherever men are found, Christ's program, which is our task for life, is universal in its scope, individual in its appeal, practical in its purpose, and per-

Lincoln Police, Firemen Make Rounds

LINCOLN, Neb. — This city of 100,000 has inaugurated a "buddy" plan designed to double the mileage obtained from Police and Fire Personal.

Under the arrangement, each police officer driving a cruiser car on a regular beat takes along a deputized fireman.

The plan provides support for the one-man cruiser policemen and results in quicker reporting and handling of fires on the scene, officials report.

Proclaiming the glorious gospel of Christ to lost people everywhere is the greatest task which the Lord has committed to us. No greater work can occupy the thought, the time, the strength or the substance of the saved than this. What a tragedy that Satan has blinded the eyes of so many Christians to the tremendous responsibility that God has conferred upon us! We are certainly challenged to be faithful and obedient to our Lord in this all-important task by the immediate, cheerful, and enthusiastic response of the early Christians to Christ's program.

3. His presence was assured. Matthew 28:20. "And, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." If we hope to enjoy His blessed presence, it is incumbent upon us to advance His program. The enjoyment of Christ's presence is conditioned upon our obedience to His commands. If we are obedient to Him, we may expect to enjoy His glorious presence all our days. All who obey His command have the blessed assurance of His abiding presence. His presence with us guarantees constant companionship, fullness of joy, sufficiency in trial, and comfort in sorrow.

Girl Does Not Have To Come From Actors

By GAL PAULEY United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK — A girl does not have to come from an acting family to make her way on Broadway. But it helps.

Sarah Marshall, 24, blonde and lovely, said the advantages. "Miss Marshall, who was a featured role in the comedy 'Visit To a Small Planet,' is the daughter of Edna Best and Herbert Marshall. (They were divorced several years ago and both since have remarried).

"If you want to get parts, any pull or push is to be used," said Miss Marshall. "Being the daughter of helps get you past the secretary of the producer, anyway."

"And sometimes the producer thinks, 'We must see her... she is the daughter of...'" "But," she added, "another producer will turn you down for the same reason. 'Once you get your chance, you're on your own. No family strings can help you then.'

Others include Sydney Chaplyn, son of Charles Chaplyn; Michael King, son of the veteran actor-singer, Dennis King; Jason Roberts-Jr., whose father was in the silent films; Anthony Perkins, son of comedian Osgood Perkins, and James MacArthur, son of Helen Hayes.

Miss Marshall, born in London, moved with her parents to Hollywood when she was six. She attended Westlake, a private school, where her classmates included a couple of other girls now following in the family footsteps — Melinda Markey, daughter of Jean Bennett, and Elizabeth Montgomery, offspring of Robert Montgomery.

She never finished school — "I decided I was wasting time, if I wanted to act."

Sarah Marshall is one of a whole batch of young actors and actresses helping to keep the family name in light, either on Broadway or in Hollywood.
