Arrangements Are Incomplete In Death Of County Couple

Funeral arrangements for Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Murdock of Lynn Grove, who were killed in an automobile accident yesterday, are incomplete at the present time.

The family is awaiting the arrival of Kenneth Murdock, who with the United States Army, stationed in Germany. An emergency leave has been granted him and he is expected to be flown home immediately.

William Bryan Murdock, age 61 and Mrs. Addie Lou Murdock, age 57 both died in a tragic automobile accident yesterday shortly after noon as they

Game Warden Requests Hearing

BANDANA — Kendall Thomas, game warden, who arrested two A. J. Chandler and three others of hunting after legal hours, yesterday requested a hearing before Fish and Wildlife Resources Commissioner Paul Walburn, who was with Chandler at the time of the alleged violation.

Thomas, fired by Wallace after he reported Chandler, Wallace, and two other men for hunting on the Ballard County game refuge near Wickliffe after hours Dec. 4. Thomas said he still believed "I did my duty."

Thomas, fired for "insubordination," said at his home here, "I still feel like I'm right... there's no question about the fact they were hunting."

However, he said that Chandler probably didn't know about the regulation and that from a legal standpoint, the outcome of the trial was just.

Charges against Chandler that he hunted ducks and geese in the game preserve were dismissed in Quarterly Court at Wickliffe. Judge pro tem Anderson Moss upheld a defense motion to dismiss the charge against Chandler on grounds that "there was no actual intentional offense of law."

Charges against Wallace and John McClintock, a game warden official, also were dismissed on the technicality that the regulation forbidding hunting of ducks and geese at the refuge after hours was invalid, because it was never published in a Ballard County newspaper.

Missilemen To Take A Break

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Missilemen expected to take a "breather" today, now that they have successfully fired three of this country's biggest "birds."

There were still unconfirmed reports of an Atlas shot to "land" in the "week-end" but an informed source said the big intercontinental missile would not be fired again until after the first of the year.

The firing of a Thor Thursday left open the Atlas visible in its tower at the Cape. Small missiles such as the Snark and Bomarc, which do not stand in service towers, were believed in launching areas at the test center.

It was also reported that another Vanguard satellite-carrying rocket had been placed in its service tower but was not expected to be fired until after the new year.

The intermediate range Thor on a breaking shroud Thursday. The white missile was fired a few minutes before 3 p.m. e.s.t. and rose higher and higher into a clear blue sky until it was just a dot streaking southeastward over the Atlantic. It was one of the prettiest daylight shoots in some time.

The Defense Department announced afterward the missile hit its prescribed course and landed in the pre-selected impact area.

Local People Will Visit In Florida

Mrs. Jesse McNutt, son Reginald, and Mrs. McNutt's father, Mr. Odis Henry, will motor to Miami, Florida to spend the Christmas holidays with friends.

Mrs. McNutt taught school in Miami for a number of years. She is now teaching at the A. B. Austin School.

Her sixth grade class conducted the Air Force Missile Testing Center, Patrick Air Force Base, Cape Canaveral, Fla. and asked that Mrs. McNutt be allowed to visit the installation on her way to Miami and the Homecoming Services Office at the center that she cross over at Eau Gallie by Patrick Air Force Base, where the headquarters of the test center are located.

She can see the two missiles, the Major and the Shark, which are on permanent display in front of the technical laboratory on the base. The class also received fact sheets from the missile test center which operates the world's largest proving ground for guided missiles.

These sheets aided greatly in the discussions of the Weekly Reader study of guided missiles.

Clear Scars Of Tornado; 14 Are Dead

By JEFF COX
United Press Staff Correspondent

Authorities in three states today faced the mammoth job of clearing away the ugly scars of tornado devastation in the wake of two days of death-dealing waters that left more than 1,000 persons homeless.

At least 14 persons were known dead in the weather onslaught across Arkansas, Illinois and Missouri, and more than 200 persons were injured.

A fresh outbreak of tornado violence Thursday night swept southwest Arkansas and southern Illinois, adding to a wave of twisters the night before that spread heavy destruction in downstate Illinois and Missouri.

Two Negro women were killed Thursday night in a tornado near Waldo, Ark., and several persons were injured. The Red Cross declared the district a disaster area.

Several Others Reported

Other twisters hit the communities of Elkville, Ill., near "tornado" blasted Murphree, and Waterville, Ill., near Mount Vernon which also suffered earlier tornado damage. The twisters Thursday night caused minor damage.

Murphree, the hardest hit, reported nine known dead. National Guard officials earlier had reported two additional unidentified victims, but local authorities said that report apparently stemmed from communication difficulties.

Other tornado victims included one each at Mount Vernon and Sunfield, Ill., and at Farmington, Mo.

Stories Include Rain

Heavy rains pounded the tornado swept Midwestern communities Thursday, hampering the search for more possible victims.

In Washington, the government announced it has designated six counties in Missouri and five in Illinois as disaster areas as a result of the widespread tornado damage.

In Murphree, Sheriff Howard Chapman said 178 were injured in the storm. Two of the injured continued in critical condition.

"There's no telling how much damage is done," Chapman said Thursday night. He said between 100 and 150 homes were demolished and at least that many more damaged. About 300 persons were homeless.

Bleak Christmas Is Seen For Eight

LOS ANGELES — Bleak Christmas days without their parents were the prospect today for eight children orphaned by the death of Mr. and Mrs. Faustina Abella.

Abella and his 29-year old wife, Jennie, were drowned Thursday when their car plunged off a bridge in nearby Long Beach and landed in 10 feet of water.

Death of the couple orphaned eight children, four here and four in St. Louis, Mo. The four here, Susan, 9, Mary 10, Gloria 12 — Mrs. Abella's children by a previous marriage — and Gustafson Jr., Abella's 18-month old son, were taken to Juvenile Hall's care.

Four others, Sammy, 3, Bobby, 9, Charles, 13, and Claude Capps, 5, are staying in St. Louis with their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Icke.

Police said Mrs. Abella was driving her sailor husband back to the tanker USS Navasota when their car stalled on a bridge approach. A car behind assisted with a push.

Apparently the accelerator stuck in the Abella car. It ran out of control, ripped up 30 feet of bridge railing, hit an abutment and plunged into the water below. Divers recovered the bodies two hours later.

Notification Is Received By Hospital Administrator Harvey

Bernard C. Harvey, Administrator of the Murray Hospital, announced today that the hospital has received formal notification that it is now fully accredited by the Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

This announcement is a follow-up of a recent evaluation of the hospital survey conducted on October 22 of this year by Dr. W. G. Aswood, field representative of the Commission.

The commission is composed of the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital Association and the Canadian Medical Association.

Harvey said that this rating recognized that the quality and professionally correct services available to patients at the Murray Hospital are second to none in the United States and Canada.

The rating of "Accreditation" is a distinct honor and reflects the high degree of professional ability of the medical staff of the hospital.

"All departments and functions in the hospital received close inspection and the employees are to be congratulated upon having received national recognition for their efforts in behalf of the patients they serve," Harvey said today.

He added that Murray and Calloway County has much to be proud of in their busy general hospital.

The effort to have the hospital fully accredited has been a long one, and various hospital administrators formerly hired by the hospital board have worked to bring about the realization.

Bernard Harvey, although he has been at the hospital for only a comparatively short time, has culminated the effort, and made the accreditation a reality.

The hospital was purchased by the people of Murray and Calloway County about eleven years ago and was to operate as a non-profit making institution. Two heavy mortgages still rest on the hospital, however, since sixty thousand dollars had to be borrowed from banks in addition to the money raised by popular subscription. Since that time the first mortgage of $60,000 has been paid, plus the interest.

The second mortgage has shrunk to about $8,000 largely due to the fact that note holders have been personally contacted and urged to turn their note into a contribution.

The Murray Woman's Club, under the direction of Mrs. H. T. Waldrop, gave the hospital

Schultz And Russell Talk At Rotary

Fred Schultz, Principal of Murray High School and Dub Russell, driving instructor and assistant coach were the speakers yesterday at the Murray Rotary Club. They spoke on the driver training at the school.

Schultz was introduced by Nat Ryan Hughes. He told the club that driver training was considered an important part of the curricula of the school and that Murray High was the first school in the state to begin the training.

The course is a combined effort, he said, of the American Automobile Association, automobile manufacturers and local automobile dealers. The course is an extra credit course, he said, and does not replace a regular academic course.

Russell, the instructor told of his experience in driver training at Murray High and other schools.

Other tornado victims included one each at Mount Vernon and Sunfield, Ill., and at Farmington, Mo.

Stories Include Rain

Heavy rains pounded the tornado swept Midwestern communities Thursday, hampering the search for more possible victims.

In Washington, the government announced it has designated six counties in Missouri and five in Illinois as disaster areas as a result of the widespread tornado damage.

Five Steps To Moon Charted

By ARTHUR W. ARUNDEL
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — U. S. military space scientists have charted five steps they feel will lead man to the moon, it was learned today.

They also have set their sights for combat flying operations above the earth's atmosphere.

No time schedule has been laid down because each successive step is more difficult than the last. But the experts now feel a maximum effort in research and development possibly could put a U.S. "space station" into orbit 500 to 600 miles above the earth by 1962.

The scientists told the United Press the problem of free exploration of space — the moon and "beyond" — is still a "hundred miles greater" than orbiting a space station or platform. Not the least of the problem is perfecting a space ship capable of a "soft landing" — gently enough for human passengers to survive — on the moon or another planet.

Aeronautical engineers and aviation medicine specialists have laid out the following space program progressing to the "ultimate point of space travel and moon landings:

—Earth satellite tests to obtain data on cosmic rays, meteorites and air densities and their effect on animals and radio signals. During this phase unmanned objects would make "hard landings" on the moon and some planets.

—A manned earth satellite put into orbit and human passengers successfully returned to earth.

—Space platforms successfully placed in orbit at 500 to 600 miles above the earth. These would serve mainly as warehouses to supply rocket-propelled planes.

—A "24-hour satellite station" located 22,500 miles out in space and revolving around the earth once each 24 hours. This would be used as a base for manned aircraft.

—A space vehicle capable of navigating between the space stations and ultimately making "soft landings" on the moon and planets.

Kirksey PTA Holds December Meeting

The Kentucky theme "Sharing Responsibilities for Character and Spiritual Education" was the topic discussed at the December meeting of the Kirksey PTA.

Featured on the program was Mrs. James Gray, discussing the role of the home; Bro. Bobby Sims, discussing the role of the church; and Mrs. Thyra Crawford, the role of the school.

A Christmas message was displayed on the speaker's desk which was decorated with evergreen and large candle semicircle around the open Holy Bible.

The "spirit of the Christmas season" was awakened within each one when the first through the sixth grades furnished the entertainment by singing Christmas carols. Mrs. Thyra Crawford accompanied on the piano.

Annette Palmer led the group in singing "O Come All Ye Faithful" with Emma Jo Camp at the piano.

E. A. Mathis, minister of the Oak Grove Presbyterian church conducted the devotional.

The first and third grade tied by having the most mothers present.

The Home Economics girls and the teacher, Mrs. Oren Hull arranged the Christmas decorations for the meeting.

The topic for the January meeting will be "Sharing Responsibilities for the Future Homemakers of America." Kirksey PTA organization will present the program.

The refreshments were served by the freshman and sophomore mothers with the tables being decorated with candies and Santa and his reindeer.

SANTA EXONERATED

STERLING, Ill. — Santa Claus, blamed at first for causing a $100,000 fire in Kline's Department Store, didn't start it after all, the fire department said.

Fire Chief Richard Nicol said faulting lightning, not a mechanical St. Nick, was responsible for the fire.

Graham Crusade Showed A Profit

NEW YORK — Dr. Billy Graham's massive evangelistic crusade to save the people of New York made a profit of $217,618 on a three-million-dollar budget.

The treasurer of the Graham New York crusade, Edwin F. Chinlund, reported the profit Thursday in his final financial statement. In addition, the crusade paid $337,483.81 to the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association of Minneapolis. The association pays Graham his $20,000 annual salary.

The New York crusade group paid the New York expenses of Graham and his team from the $3,130,521.66 in gross crusade receipts according to the Chinlund report.

Chinlund said the $217,618 profit will be divided as follows: —$150,000 to the Billy Graham Evangelistic Assn. for television costs of future crusades. —$67,618 to the Protestant Council of New York for a follow-up of the crusade's evangelism program.

Graham, who said he had been criticized for the size of his crusade budget, drew audiences totaling more than two million during the 16-week crusade. The evangelist maintained that "if one soul was saved" in the nightly meetings in Madison Square Garden and giant rallies at Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, the big budget was worth it.

TV To Hit Language Differences

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD — Joseph Cotten has a theory that television will eliminate regional language accents and colloquialisms in this country within a generation or so.

"We'll all be talking the 'same language, so to speak," he ventured in a slight southern accent. "TV is more effective than radio or movies in neutralizing accents because people spend more time with it."

Joe wasn't sounding off just to hat his own complicated lingo which includes the Bostonian broad "A," the New Yorker's habit of swallowing R's, and faint overtones of his native Virginia.

Used Variety of Dialects
The graying actor spent years in radio using a variety of dialects.

"In the early days of talking pictures I dubbed foreign films from France and Italy into English. We radio actors frequently dubbed four or five roles in a single film. I remember I once did 14 different parts."

"When the first English-made pictures played American theaters audiences made fun of them, talking back to the screen in exaggerated 'brittishness,'" Joe said, slipping into a blighty pronunciation.

"So I got work translating dialogue from English to American."

He pointed out that few successful TV actors or emcees can be pegged as to their origins by their patois. Even local announcers are losing their drawls, twangs and brogues.

Accent Limits Actor
"Most actors minimize their regional pronunciations, and it is definitely having an impact on viewers," he claims. "If an actor does have an accent it limits the types of roles he can play."

"Foreign accents are different, I suppose. But I can't imagine Charles Boyer playing a cowboy or a red cap."

"Cotten doesn't cotton to dialects, but he refused to lose his broad 'A.' 'I simply can't say kant,' he laughed.

He believes southerners from deep Mississippi conversing with rural Vermonters would have more trouble understanding one another than they would interpreting Russian.

"Gradually, and thanks in large part to TV, these differences are ying out. The Mid-Western twang has all but disappeared," he says.

"The last bastion of ingrained colloquialism is Brooklynese. It may be hundreds of years before Brooklynese becomes a dead language if you get my point."

Tarheels Place Streak On The Line

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

North Carolina places its 36-game winning streak on the line and 10 other nationally-ranked powers risk their ratings tonight to get the Christmas-week college basketball whirl off to a flying start.

The top-ranked Tarheels, unbeaten since their final game of the 1955-56 campaign, face Minnesota, the country's 16th-rated power, in the opener of the Kentucky Invitational Tournament. With sixth-ranked Kentucky facing 14th-ranked West Virginia in the other half of the opening bill, the tournament posed the biggest threat to North Carolina's national rating since it beat Kansas in the finals of last season's NCAA Tournament. Second-ranked Kansas opposes Washington, third-ranked Kansas State faces Washington, fourth-ranked San Francisco meets eighth-ranked Seattle in the opening round of the Blue Cross Tournament at Louisville, Ky.; seventh-ranked Cincinnati meets North Texas State and 10th-rated UCLA opposes 11th-ranked Bradley in tonight's other games involving top powers.

Schedule Begins Calmly
The holiday schedule began Thursday night with a collection of games that more or less followed form.

In the Carrousel Tournament at Charlotte, N. C., Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, Alabama, and Louisiana State all advanced in the second round. Tennessee beat Bucknell, 89-71; Louisiana Tech whipped Davidson, 66-41; Alabama downed Clemson, 78-75, and LSU upset Lafayette, 80-72. Louisiana Tech emerged from the first round as the dark horse on the strength of an 18-point all-around performance by Jackie Moreland, the player who cost North Carolina State an NCAA suspension for alleged recruiting. Moreland and Louisiana Tech meet Tennessee tonight in what is regarded as the key game of the tournament.

Wisconsin downed Butler, 59-38, Indiana beat St. Mary's of California, 79-66, Purdue whipped South Dakota, 74-62, Western Kentucky walloped Seton Hall, 101-75, and New York University romped over South Carolina, 81-66, in other big games Thursday night.

Badgers Squeeze By
Bob Barneson sank two free throws with 14 seconds remaining to give Wisconsin a three-point lead and a last-second goal by Bob Plump; Pete Obrensky tallied 19 points for Indiana; Purdue romped after a 26-26 halftime deadlock; Ralph Crenshaw scored 35 points to lead Western Kentucky to its fourth win in five games and Cal Ramsey's 22 points enabled NYU to beat South Carolina before a crowd of only 4,857 at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Bob McGilivray's layup with 15 seconds left produced a 57-56 victory for North Carolina State over Villanova and St. Joseph's defeated Richmond, 90-84, in a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra.

In other games, Dayton routed Fordham, 84-35, Boston University downed Colgate, 65-55, Princeton crushed Rutgers, 80-47, Georgia shaded Georgia Tech, 69-68, and Hofstra whipped Penn Military, 68-53.

Indian Squad Gets Ninth Win

Benton scalped their ninth victim Thursday night in the person of Symsonia with an 85-54 victory that insured their entrance into the Paducah Xmas tourney with a perfect record.

Symsonia was a team potentially capable of knocking off the Big Indians but any hope for such success flickered out in the third period. The Benton quintet scored 20 points in the third stanza while holding the Graves Countians to only three to give them a 55-28 lead. The score was knotted 15-all at the end of the first quarter of play and Coaches Farris' Indians were able to command only a ten point lead, 35-25, at halftime. But a third quarter spurt coupled with a blanket defense turned the game into a run-away victory for Benton.

It was Benton's ninth consecutive win and the second loss in 11 games for the Roughriders. Big J. D. Gammel and Paul Dailley led the victory attack with 25 points each. Larry McClure got 15 for Symsonia's top effort.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO EDGAR (SAM) RICE

by United Press
Edgar (Sam) Rice, for 19 years a star outfielder with the Washington Senators, is regarded by many as the greatest ball player of the past who hasn't yet been elected to the Hall of Fame. His lifetime batting average was .322 and he made 2,987 hits, a total surpassed by only seven other players in history. In three World Series, Sam batted .302 and had 12 hits in the 1925 series alone.

Whatever happened to Sam Rice? Today, at 65, he lives in semi-retirement on his pigeon farm at Ashton, Md.

The Murray State Racers dropped another road game last night, their third of the season, bowing to Mississippi State, 86-69, at Starkville, Mississippi.

Murray battled the highly-regarded, unbeaten Mississippi team on even terms for three quarters of the contest. It was not until Quintan Sullins, Gerald Tabor and Tom Darnell fouled out with five minutes remaining in the clash that the Maroons began to pull away.

The Thoroughbreds played without the services of Joe Willmore and Sherrill Marginet. Willmore received a concussion in the Hardin-Simmons game and did not make the road trip. Marginet was suffering a badly sprained ankle and did not dress for the game.

Murray was leading by an eight-point margin, 44-36, at halftime. A lead that was not completely lost until the loss of their three starters via the foul route when the Maroons began to pull away to victory.

Both squads connected on 28 field goals so the 17-point margin came from the charity lane, the host team cashing in on 30 points as compared to 13 for MSC.

Bailey Howell, 6-7 center, was the big man of the evening bagging 39 points, hitting 19 of 22 foul shots. Terry Darnell led the way for the Racers with

New Outlook On Actors Presented

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD — The case against the scratch and squirm school of acting was strengthened today by pert Erin O'Brien who denounced Actors Studio graduates for portraying American men as a pack of neurotics.

A fiery colleen with a lusty approach to life, Erin says movies are losing women customers because there are no he-men among young actors.

"The spoiled little-boy types from New York all look as if they need baths and haircuts," she frowned.

An Outspoken Cutie
Erin looked as if she'd just stepped from a bubble bath and her hair was cropped shorter than Elvis Presley's ducktail. She is an outspoken cutie who doesn't like generalities. She proved this by naming her pet dislikes among the unkempt set.

"The actors I'm talking about are Rod Steiger, Paul Newman, Anthony Franciosa and Ben Gazzara," she fumed. "And I don't dig Brando, either."

"Women prefer a man's man. Male types like John Wayne, Gary Cooper and William Holden. They don't have to visit a psychiatrist before deciding whether they should kiss a girl."

"But these younger actors behave as if they all needed nursemaids and mothers instead of girl friends."

A National Disgrace
Erin is content enough with Andy Griffith, her leading man in "Onionhead." He's a rough and tumble Southerner who doesn't mumble when he talks.

Erin went on to say the newcomers have invaded horse operas.

"The way they play Billy the Kid and other outlaws is downright funny. They'd have audiences believe that criminals are just misunderstood neurotics who hated their sisters."

"I've seen Westerns where the hero catches up with the villain, but instead of shooting down the bad men the new-type hero tries to understand him," she blazed. "It's a national disgrace. Losing Respect

"Actors today don't represent American men. I wonder what people in other countries think when they see our actors playing weak-sister roles. Nowadays the hero is as apt to break down and cry as he is to defend the heroine. No wonder the rest of the world is losing respect for Americans."

Erin warns she had better not be cast opposite one of the fragile imports from New York.

"By the time I got through with him he'd need a broken-bone specialist, not a psychiatrist," she laughed.

Keep Things Stirred Up Is TV Rule

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Rule No. 1 in television is keep things moving. Keep that picture stirred or your viewer may desert to another channel.

So, when you're faced with Shakespeare and the awful thought that your audience may drop off, why, you stir and stir and stir.

Sunday Maurice Evans and Co. stirred like crazy in an NBC-TV production of "Twelfth Night." It was a visual romp—a pink and violet complete with midgets, footmen dressed in monkey heads, attendants dressed like unicorns, jolly people who hung from trees and a Malvolvo who spoke in a cockney accent and disappeared in a puff of smoke.

Inevitably in this kind of thing, Shakespeare's strength—his verbal magic—is sloughed off. And what is left is a kind of sugar-coated, rating-tappy Shakespeare; a Shakespeare for all those people who have been lashed off the playwright by their schoolmarm.

But I suppose TV really has no choice in the matter and this sort of marshmallowing is inevitable. And it is only fair to say that "Twelfth Night" was mounted stunningly—particularly the scene in which Malvolvo is tossed.

One further note of praise—for Dennis King (Sir Toby) and Max Adrian (Sir Andrew), both of them real pros.

Sunday, CBS-TV's "Seven Lively Arts" presented a one-hour film, "Here Is New York," based on an article by E. B. White.

It was a well-photographed class.

There is an irritating tendency to romanticize New York. And the common attitude among too many writers is to approach the city with a half-eye and a smug posture and bellow. New York is some pumpkins and ain't you sorry your city ain't?

Well, of course, that's nonsense. It's part of the myth of New York, a myth compounded of arrogance, self-deception and gush.

"Here Is New York," paced the smug attitude and it also packed all of the Baghdad-on-the-Hudson stereotypes. Thus: Greenwich Village is a place where the young dabble in Bohemian life, the Statue of Liberty is the landmark that New Yorkers never visit, the poor who live in the tenements that line Mulberry St., and a picturesque folk who hold street festivals where everybody lives it up eating pizzas and zeppoli.

Is there any seat in the city? Sure, over at Stillman's Gym.

Color? Sure, look at this shot of a street singer serenading people outside this theatre. And wasn't it lucky our camera just happened to be there?

Is there anything wrong with this city? Sure, look at these bums on the Bowery (cliche of cliches), look at traffic snarl and oh, the climate is filthy. But these are all kind of funny and wonderful and all go into the making of New York, this rickety of steel and stone, this unique town.

New Rambler American

The Rambler American, newest entry in the U. S. automobile market, combines the economy and handling ease of the small European cars with the performance, comfort and roominess of the large American cars. Built on a 100-inch wheelbase, the new car is powered by a six-cylinder I-head engine developing 90 horsepower. The American will go on sale later this month.

GENEROSITY CURTAILED

COMPTON, Calif. — Tommy Perry, 4, got into the Christmas spirit a little too much, his mother thought. Mrs. Perry had set aside $80 for Christmas presents. Tommy found it in her purse, went for a stroll and handed the bills to pals and passer-by, wishing all a "Merry Christmas."

UNMENTIONABLES BOUGHT

SOMERVILLE, N. J. — Police began a "discreet" search for two vital items, Mrs. Edith Erickson reported her 19-year-old daughter's girdle and panties had been stolen from the clothes line in back of her home.

FIVE FLEE SMOG

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Five teenagers who ran away from their homes in Southern California, explained to sheriff's deputies when apprehended that they left home because they couldn't stand the smog any more.

ROYALTY TO WED

LUXEMBOURG — The Grand Ducal Court has formally announced the engagement of Princess Marie-Adelaide, daughter of the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg to Silesian Prince Charles Joseph Henckel of Donnermark. The announcement did not specify a date for the wedding, but court sources said it probably would take place in the spring of 1958 in Luxembourg Cathedral. Princess Marie-Adelaide, 33, is the second of the grand duchess' four daughters and the last to marry.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO HARRY JEFFRA

Harry Jeffra, a tough little man out of Baltimore, won the world bantam weight championship from Sixto Escobar in 1937 and the featherweight crown from Joey Archibald in 1940. Later he lost both titles back to the original owners. But he still was a key figure among the little men until 1942 when Chalky Wright flattened him in 10 rounds, in his own hometown of Baltimore, in an un-

Whatever happened to Harry Jeffra? Today, he is 43, out of the fight game but very definitely in racing. He's a jockey's agent with apprentices Tom Lee and George Cross as clients.

HUMBOLDT, Tenn. — Quick action by a school bus driver was credited today with saving 45 school children from being plunged into a ravine. Driver Homer Robinson said he jammed the accelerator "to the floor-board" when he felt a bridge over the ravine giving away. The bus barely made solid ground before the structure collapsed.

CHAPTER 15

ON JANUARY 15, Michael departed for service in the Air Force. Tracy moved to a small suite at the Forest Park Hotel, then took up her duties in Dr. O'Connell's office.

The time flew. Michael was at Chamite for ten days. Tracy was sent to California. After three months at George, he was sent to Alaska, which he loved. He sold his car and sent Tracy the money to use for a car of her own. She did as he asked, proud of his thoughtfulness.

While stationed at Anchorage, he wrote three enthusiastic letters to her. Then he was transferred to Thule, which he enjoyed as much. "It's made for a guy like me, with polar bear blood in his veins."

He seemed to be doing well in all respects. "I'm afraid my duties are more executive than actually medical. I'm up for Major so perhaps I ride my desk with grace. And to be perfectly honest, Tracy, I like what I'm doing."

He wrote infrequently, but all of his letters were friendly and enthusiastic.

Tracy answered them in kind. She too kept busy. She let her hair grow until she could wear it in a smooth page-boy, and then she cut it short again. She bought herself a red coat and twin cashmere sweaters. She was asked to sit in on the consultations over the development of a polio vaccine, and the pink pig grew heavy with many coins. By amicable agreement, she and Michael each were sending regular checks to pay off their debt to his father. Calling it "their debt," Tracy told herself, signified a new and wonderful unity between them.

Tracy was learning much professionally. She knew how to take and record all the minute details which would lead to an accurate diagnosis. She did, or supervised, all the tests, and analyzed them. Tracy had heard Dr. O'Connell say that she was the best he'd ever known in getting diagnostic detail out of a patient.

She put on a little weight and acquired a certain dignity which was becoming to her. Dr. O'Connell was fatherly proud of her. In the summer of 1953, Tracy served as godmother for the Rogers' first grandchild, and, for Tracy, the occasion promised to be a tall milestone in her life.

"Up till now," she explained to Rosalie, "I've had others ready to guide me. But now it's my turn to guide and advise."

"Sounds like you're approaching old age at a gallop."

"Oh, not old age, Rosy! But maturity, and I'm quite old enough for that!"

"How does your friend Howdy feel about your new maturity?" teased Rosalie.

Tracy's cheeks flared pink. "That Howdy! But, really, Rosalie, he's only being kind to me."

"Yeah, kind."

They were friends. Howdy Nisbet was excellent company. And Tracy liked him; she liked being asked to eat Christmas dinner with him and his parents; they were lovely people, and devoted to their only son. She and Mr. Nisbet marveled that a girl so young and pretty could be a doctor. They listened with a degree of horror when Howdy and Tracy would get into some medical discussion.

Somehow that kind of talk didn't seem just right to the older folk, not between a fine young man and a pretty girl. "Women shouldn't be doctors," decided Howdy's mother, nodding her silvery-white head.

Tracy smiled. "All right, then, I'm not a doctor around this house. Remember that, Howdy."

"Suits me fine," he agreed cheerfully.

It was fine for Tracy to have such friends, and such a home to go to as a welcome guest.

Mrs. Nisbet was originally from New England, and the family maintained as a summer home the farm which she had inherited from her parents. Mr. Nesbit was an attorney, lately become selective in the cases he took by way of "tapering off." They spent the entire summer in New England, and Howdy always went there for his vacation, or part of it.

When Mrs. Nesbit suggested that Tracy might like a "good rest at the farm" for her vacation, she accepted with pleasure. Howdy deplored the fact that he and Tracy could not be at the farm together. It had, he declared, been something of a misfortune to take her into the same office; journeys together, for fair purpose or foul, were never practical.

She considered his extravagant manner to be great fun, and on the first of July she departed for the East, glad that it had been decided not to "let on" that Tracy was a doctor.

"We have doctors enough up there," declared Mrs. Nisbet, "and there's no use in the world of folks pestering you about their aches and pains while you're with us."

So, simply as Mrs. Michael Loren, Tracy went to New England and immediately fell in love with the lifting hills, the broad meadows, the rock-walled fields and the encircling trees. With the flash of rivers, and the old, settled houses.

"I could live here!" she told her hosts with warm enthusiasm. "We hoped you'd like it."

Tracy did like it, and made big plans for spending her two weeks to the best advantage. She'd fish, and she'd take long walks, climb a mountain, look at some interesting houses.

What she actually did was to wake up in the early dawn of the Fourth with a burning pain in her lower abdomen, a hardness—Oh, no! she moaned. I can't have appendicitis here!

But she was very sick, and within twenty minutes Mrs. Nisbet heard her, came to her, and also suggested appendicitis.

"I'll call the clinic right away," Mrs. Nisbet was saying in a downright cheerful tone. "There's always somebody there."

"Don't tell 'em she's a doctor," said Mr. Nisbet, who had joined the consultation. "She can't do a thing for herself in this matter. I know what to say," Mrs. Nisbet assured her husband. And trotted off.

Tracy moaned and rolled her head; she'd lived another twenty minutes, and she must get up—A strong hand pressed her shoulders down upon the mattress. "Easy does it, girl," said a deep, clipped voice. Tracy looked up in amazement. The doctor! So soon?

"Who're you?" she asked, the words blurred feverishly.

"I'm Haws," said the man whose fingertips at least knew about McBurney's point. "Senior Surgeon at the Indian Ridge Clinic."

She intended to smile, but she was too sick—and he probably thought the face she made was a symptom. Clinic indeed! Any three doctors working together called themselves a clinic.

"We'll fix you up," said the big man, straightening. He went out of the room, and next thing she knew she was being carried out to an ambulance, and within thirty minutes she was tucked into bed at what was told was the College Mount Hospital.

Tracy, professionally curious, investigated the local medical set-up while she recuperates. Be sure to follow her activities in tomorrow's installment of "The Doctor's Husband."

Infantrymen Will Still Be Needed

By NORMAN RUNNION
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS — No matter how much the NATO armed forces need ICBMs, they also need more old-fashioned infantrymen. Today, eight years after the NATO alliance was formed, the Allied have only 18 divisions facing 175 Soviet and satellite divisions across the plains of Central Europe.

Here's hoping that all your dreams for a joyous holiday come true, leaving you with only the happiest of memories to treasure.

The 50-year old American Air Force general will make this clear in all discussions he has during the NATO summit conference here.

His recommendations on strategy will call for an increase of Allied troop strength—despite the advent of the missile age.

30 Divisions Needed
Allied strategists believe 30 divisions would be able to contain a Russian onslaught for three crucial days. In these 72 hours, all the retaliatory power of the West, from hydrogen bombs to missiles, could be tossed at the invaders and thus slow down the attack.

THE WONDER OF THE INCARNATION
Philippians 2:1-11
In the genuine friendship of the Philippians, Paul felt a keen delight. He was delighted especially in finding a group of church members whose lives were patterned after the will of God.

Paul challenged the Philippians to imitate Christ in their way of thinking. He said, "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." "Mind" here has in it the idea of disposition. Christians should be disposed to think, to speak and to act as Christ did, since they are His followers. It is our privilege and duty to do so.

Knowing full well that a partisan spirit which engenders strife will distress any church and greatly handicap its work, Paul expressed the hope that it might never invade the church at Philippi. He was anxious to keep ambition and vanity from designing the harmony of this splendid church. He stressed the importance and tremendous

Good Humor Shrinks In Brazil

By LOUIS STEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

RIO DE JANEIRO — The normal good humor of the Brazilian housewife is rapidly dissolving under the pressure of the rising cost of living which is shrinking her husband's salary to little more than a subsistence wage.

The government statistical office announced last week that the cost of living was being held in line in a statement which showed that while it rose 24 per cent in 1956 the increase so far this year has been only 5.7 per cent.

is now known to be. He stands alone, unique and supreme. Concerning Christ's future exaltation Paul said, "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." What a glorious triumph awaits Him when every tongue shall confess that He is more than man; that He is truly Christ and Lord!

64-hour day also work in private clerical positions. Newspapers commented next Last Saturday night Finance Minister Jose Maria Alkmin went on the air to appeal to Brazilians to cooperate with the government and help hold down inflation by curbing Christmas buying. Alkmin's appeal came too late, since most families are already committed up to two years from now for time purchases of home appliances.
