Reality Of Christmas Is Needed

EDITORS: The following United Press extra for publication in Christmas Eve papers, was written by William S. Lea, dean of St. John's Episcopal Cathedral, Denver, Colo. Reflecting current concern over the invasion of space by Soviet satellites, it discusses the meaning of Christmas as an "invasion from eternity."

Written For the United Press
The reality of Christmas with its eternal message of hope and victory was never more desperately needed than in this year of uncertainty, nor was it ever more relevant to our human situation. It was upon another uncertain and dark period of history that the light of the first Christmas shown forth. To most of the (Continued On Back Page)

139 Rendition Of Beloved Song Is Planned In Austria

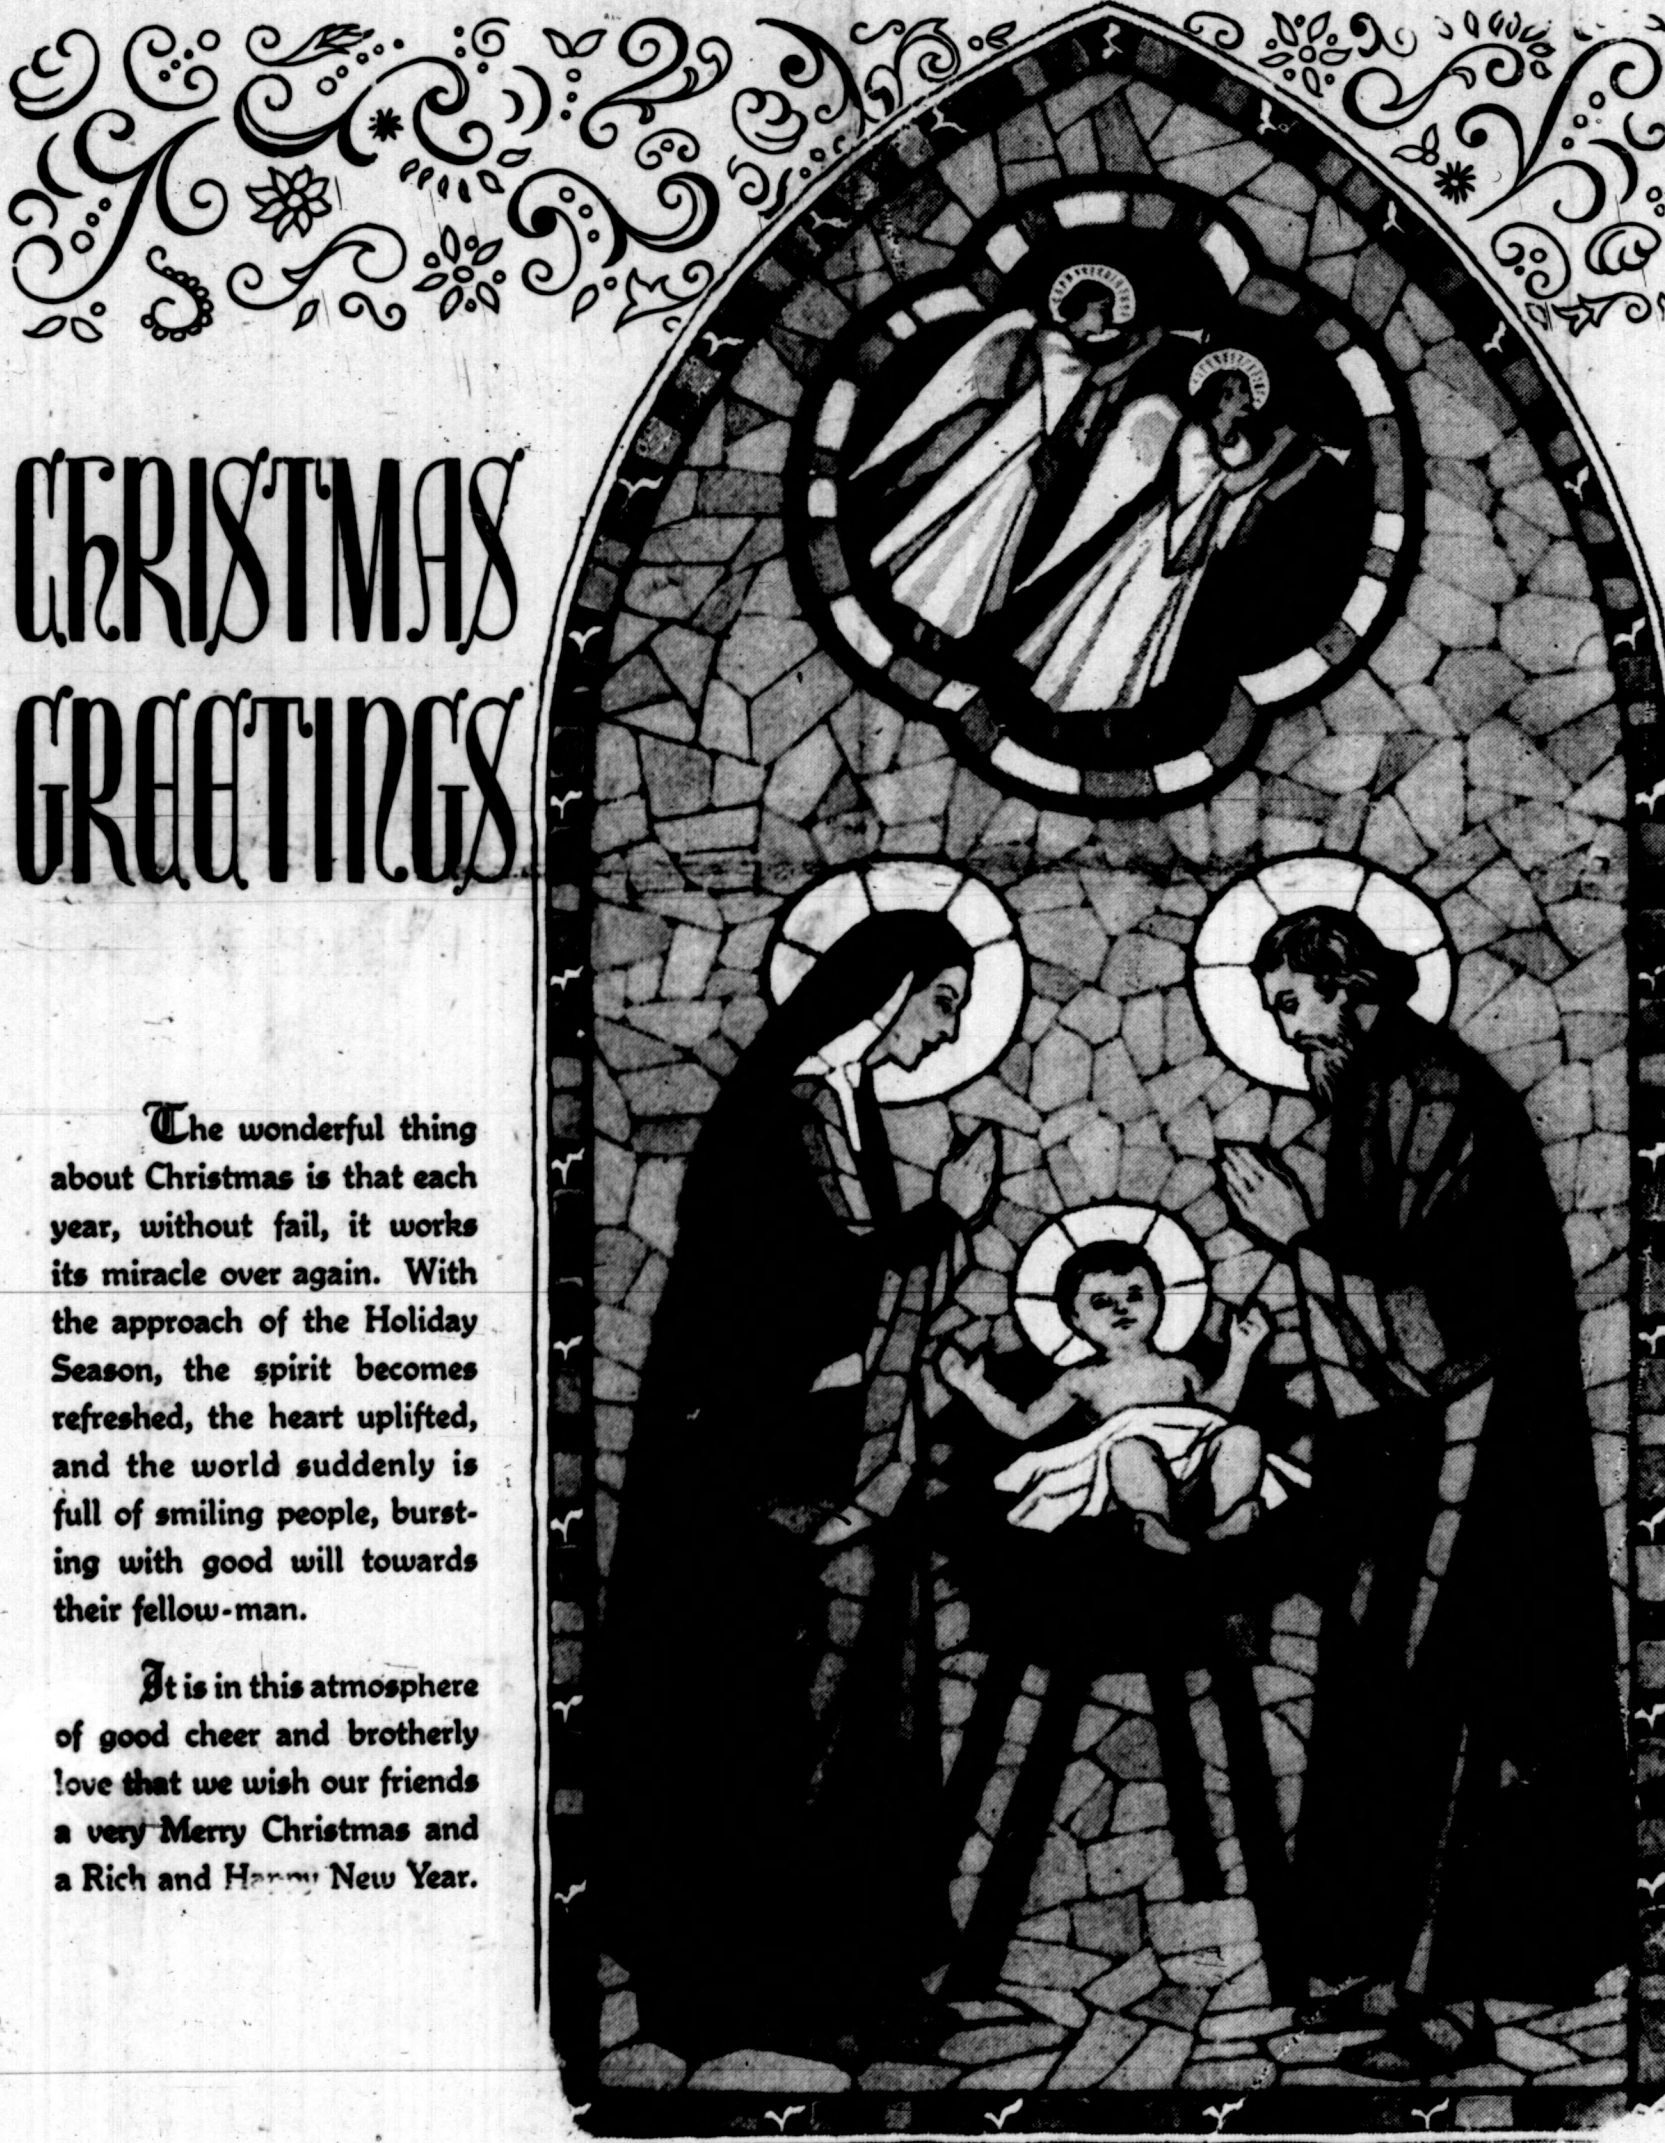

OBBERNDORF, Austria — "Silent Night, Holy Night. All is calm, all is bright." These words, beginning the most beloved of Christmas carols, will be sung here for the 139th time this Christmas Eve. And, as it was on that cold and wintry day in 1818, they will be sung by the villagers of this little community to the accompaniment of a peasant-type 12-string guitar. It was in this mountain town that Josef Mohr, the parish priest, and Franz Xavier Gruber, the schoolmaster and church organist, gave the world one of the finest of Christmas presents. According to the legend handed down through the years, the two men were plodding through gale-swept Oberndorf on Dec. (Continued on Back Page)

Barrier Of Hate Lifts

BETHLEHEM, Jordan — The barrier of hate dividing the Holy Land lifted at dawn today in Jerusalem and Christian pilgrims embarked on the road to Bethlehem—the birthplace of the Prince of Peace. Israeli and Jordanian border guards obeyed orders to stand aside for 36 hours to let Christians from Israel and other parts of the world pass through the Mandelbaum Gate. About 1,700 were expected to cross no man's land into Jordan. (Continued On Back Page)

Prosperity, Peace For Christmas

By UNITED PRESS
The nation today prepared to celebrate Christmas, 1957 with an abundance of peace and prosperity.
Only the northern reaches of the Midwest and the western mountain regions were expected to enjoy a white Christmas, but there was no lack of other traditional aspects of the season.
Merchants around the country reported a huge business volume, in some cases record sales, indicating gifts will be piled high around the Christmas tree.
Christmas Starts with Church
For millions of devout Americans, Christmas will start tonight with midnight church services. Family get-togethers will feature the day's activities, topped off with a sumptuous Christmas dinner.
But, inevitably, tragedy in the form of traffic deaths will cast a somber cloak over the holiday celebration, but since Christmas falls in mid-week the highway slaughter is not expected to be as great as on holiday weekends.
The National Safety Council estimates as many as 180 persons will be killed during the 30-hour holiday period from 6 p.m. on Christmas Eve until midnight.

Mild Weather Is Predicted

WASHINGTON — The Weather Bureau predicts fair mild weather over nearly all of the nation Christmas Day. It said above-normal temperatures are expected generally with temperatures ranging from the 30s in the northern border states to 60s and 70s in the South.
The only sections where Christmas is likely to be white is in the northern portions of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the higher mountain areas in the West.
Last week's record warm spell melted all snow from the north-eastern states and none is in sight for Christmas, the bureau added.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Trust ye in the Lord forever, for the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength.

Isaiah 26:4.

There are two hundred billion cells in our bodies, they have the power to mend wounds and multiply and divide and perform functions we do not even understand. An intelligence directs these cells while we are asleep as well as when we are awake. We trust the Infinite with the multitudinous tasks that mean life and health. Why should we doubt Him in any circumstance?

Annual Cry Goes Up Again This Year

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON 24— This is the time of year when church people go to brooding about what happened to Christmas. Some raise the perennial cry that commercialization has ruined the great Christian holiday. Others say that pagan customs have obscured its religious significance. Nearly all agree that something should be done to "Put Christ back into Christmas."

But how? The United Press put that question to three clergymen — an Episcopalian, a Catholic, and a Presbyterian. Here are their answers.

The Rev. Robert F. McGregor, a canon of Washington Cathedral and dean-elect of Trinity Episcopal Cathedral at Newark, N.J., said it is "not so much what we do at Christmas, as how and why we do it," that matters.

Instead of wringing hands over Santa Claus, office parties, greeting cards, and other secular aspects of the modern Christmas celebration, McGregor said, churchmen should seek to "invest these popular customs with Christian meaning."

Sincere Expression Urged

For example, sending Christmas cards can be treated as an annual nuisance, "something we have to do to keep from offending people"—or it can be "a real expression of friendship."

An office party can be a slush of gossip and drinking, or it can be a time to establish a needed sense of community among people who work together all year long.

For churches to suggest that God is interested only in "the specifically religious aspects of Christmas," is present wherever there are human beings wrestling with human problems," he said.

"The wise men found him wrapped in swaddling clothes in a smelly stable, and men still find him wrapped in the ordinary realities of human existence, which include the so-called secular aspects of Christmas."

"He does not ask his followers to withdraw from the customs, but to use them in a Christian way and for Christian purposes."

Customs Are Symbols

The Rev. William J. Awalt of St. Matthews Catholic Cathedral here said most of the customs that have grown up about Christmas—singing carols, giving presents, decorating homes—are meaningful only as "expressions of a deep sense of joy."

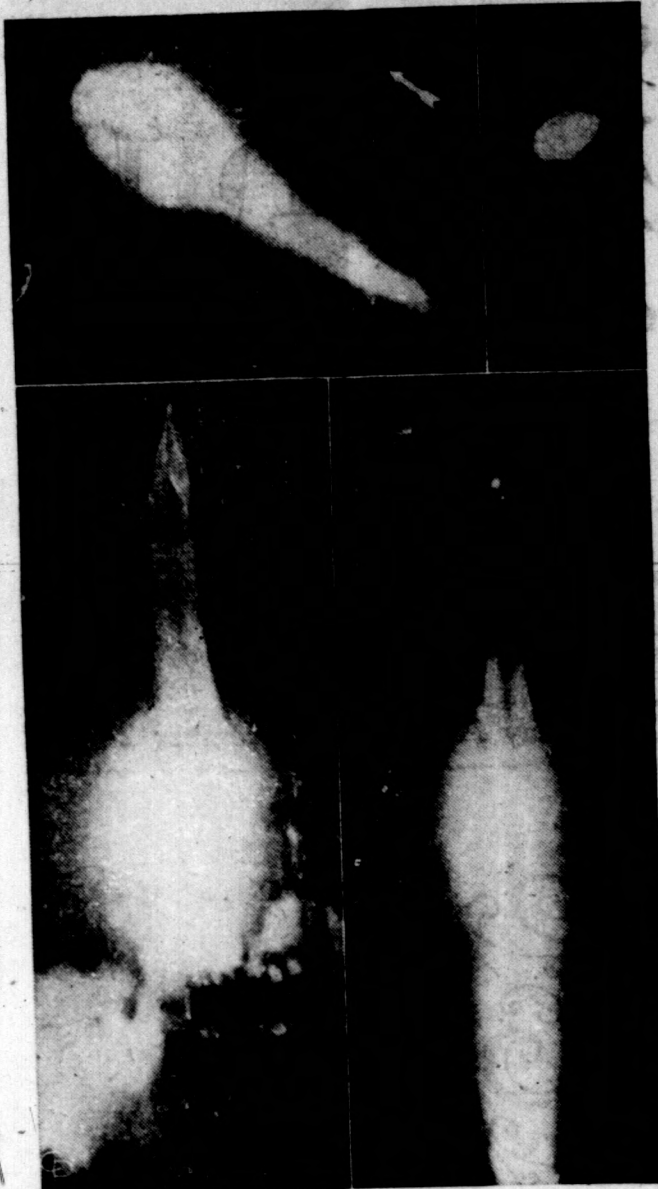

Many people, he said, have a "hedgehog" feeling at Christmas because they expect these "symbols" to produce "happiness, rather than merely reflect it."

"There is only one source of genuine joy at Christmas," he said. "It is belief in the good tidings which the herald angels proclaimed: 'That Christ has come into the world to redeem men from the bonds of sin and death.'"

"In our attitude toward Christmas, each of us answers the ancient question: 'What is the meaning of Christmas?' If we think of him as a 'great human teacher' who lived nearly 2,000 years ago, it is simply not possible to work up much genuine enthusiasm for celebrating his birthday."

Solution Brings Joy

"If we know him in our own lives as 'our Redeemer,' as the prayer of God unto salvation, it is quite natural to feel joyous and reverent and thankful on the day that commemorates his coming."

The Rev. Dr. George M. Dochery, pastor of Washington's New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, said there are two ways of "missing the point of Christmas."

"The most obvious, he said, is to 'let yourself become totally preoccupied with Santa Claus, jingle bells, and the tinsel on the tree.'"

The more subtle temptation, he said, is to treat Christmas as a time of "slushy sentimentalism" in which the changing figure of Christ can be forgotten while we concentrate on the baby lying in the manger.

"Whatever else Christmas is, for the Christian it should be a time of reassessment of his own personal need of Christ as Savior," he said.

Planes Had Field Day

In the capital, Sidani, the rebels had to be closed to regular commercial traffic. Reinforcements were rushed south from Spain, and the Spanish air force went into action with its old German World War II planes based in the Canary Islands.

The exact number of troops on airplanes involved has never been disclosed. Spain was believed to have 2,000 to 3,000 troops in Ifni when the trouble started. It probably has double that number now.

The Spaniards said the first rebel attack was launched by 1,200 men. But the rebels spread out so far and wide many observers believe ten times that number joined in the advance.

Moroccans Want Ifni

Perhaps more difficult than the military outlook is the political aspect. Even if Spain wins the battles, it is not likely that the Moroccans will give up their demands for the return of Ifni.

Spain already has turned down one official Moroccan request for the territory earlier this year, but said it was willing to submit the matter to the Hague Court or some other international tribunal.

Spain claims Ifni as a sovereign possession by virtue of an 1860 treaty.

There are various reasons why Spain does not want to yield Ifni. If Spain loses Ifni, it would give Morocco a boost to put on pressure for the return of the strategically important and prized parts of Ceuta and Melilla.

The Spanish situation in the zone to the south of Morocco, Rio De Oro, also would become difficult. There are persistent reports that oil might be found there.

Science Is Wonder Over Eel Find

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Science Editor NEW YORK 24— Imagine the astonishment of a scientist when a newly captured eel turned out to belong to the most mysterious of the eel families, Anguilla Obscura.

If you were an eel scientist and had been in his place, you would have been astonished, too. He was in South Africa; his specimen had been taken in the headwaters of a South African river.

But Anguilla obscura is a Pacific Ocean eel. Never before had one of them been taken west of New Guinea, which is some 7,000 miles east and north of South Africa.

Dr. R. A. Jubb, ichthyologist of Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa, reported the find.

Travel Far To Breed

Science had known eels travel great distances to breed and their offspring, while still in larval form, repeat those journeys in going to the places where their parents came from.

But science hadn't known the distances could be anything even approaching 7,000 miles — 2,000 to 3,000 miles are the established routine distances for family-minded eels and the resulting young.

For instance, the common American eel (Anguilla Chrysoptera) goes no farther than the waters southeast and south of Bermuda after leaving the coastal rivers in which they spent their adult lives.

Perpetuating the eel is a fatal business for eels. What triggers the desire is unknown. After a number of years of growing and maturing in fresh water, eels suddenly stop eating.

Fat Provides Eel's Energy

They're gorged with their own fat, even to the point of changing their color. These "silver eels" slip down the rivers into the sea. Their fat provides the energy for a long journey and for breeding, and then they die.

The larvae are tiny and transparent which preserved them from enemies. They spread out over the ocean, feeding on animals smaller than they. Slowly they grow as slowly they cover distances.

Spain Takes Chances On Enclave

By PETER KNOX

United Press Staff Correspondent MADRID 24— Spain is taking no chances in the African enclave of Ifni. It has more at stake than a few thousand square miles of worthless desert land.

Its ancient traditions of breeding a race of tough fighting men, its future in Africa, its foreign policy, and, maybe, its economic strength could all be affected by the way the desert war goes.

Spanish officials claim it is going well, and that the 700-square mile enclave carved out of Morocco on the West African coast soon will be firmly under their control again, with the army of attacking Moroccan irregulars beaten back.

But the violence and effectiveness of the rebel sweep early in the morning of Saturday, Nov. 23, will not be quickly forgotten.

The rebels punched deep into Spanish territory, encircling Spanish garrison outposts and inland villages.

stick you two or three times, Margaret," she said, with a reassuring smile at the mother. "No, I'm not a surgeon!" She felt sick, she looked sick. "But I had to be one, today! And I'd do the same thing!"

"Without testing?" "Michael," Tracy sat erect, and faced him, her cheeks red. "If you're saying I should have sent Margaret to the hospital so you have your cinders out, I'll agree with you. But if you are saying I should have let that child die because I'm not a heart surgeon, I'll have to say no! And no, again."

"You took a terrible chance, Tracy." "What would you have done under those circumstances?" "They wouldn't have been the same for me. I've done surgery, and plenty of it. As you would have done, had you served a residency of two."

He was right, and yet— Before she could do more than consider it, however, another crisis arose, and again it concerned a child and his heart. This was no coincidence. A fixed percentage of a pediatrician's cases are children afflicted by some sort of heart irregularity.

It was such a case that Michael had, and of which he talked so freely. "They wouldn't have been the same for me. I've done surgery, and plenty of it. As you would have done, had you served a residency of two."

The Star of Ivan

A Christmas Poem by Ken Woodman

"It does not move," the boy observed. "Of course it does," the father railed. "It circles earth twelve times a day. But as he watched the father paled, 'I can see it move at all.' The girl insisted as she stared, 'It has to move! That's Moscow's plan. Some fool has goofed.' The father glared. "Perhaps," the boy said soothingly. "This is some new-type stratagem!" The girl hissed: "Father, could it be the actual star of Bethlehem?" Grim Ivan, feeling weak and chill. Now quickly turned his head away. He'd hoped to launch it. It MUST move! If only he had learned to pray. . . . Quite suddenly he heard a sound. And gazed his eyes to heaven again. From near the star sweet voices sang: And on earth, peace, good will to men."

Estatically, the boy leaped high. "This is our super stratagem!" The father knelt and told his son. "This is no deed that man has done. For shining in his daughter's eyes. He glimpsed the faith of Bethlehem."

Weekly News Letter

TVA announced today that a 547-acre recreation resort site adjacent to the Hiwassee Dam, in western North Carolina, will be sold at public auction. No date has been set for the sale, but one will be set as soon as the first firm bid is entered. The minimum acceptable price is $190,000, and the final price will be determined by the bidders at the auction.

The site, long known as Hiwassee Village, served as a construction camp during the building of the Hiwassee Dam, 1936-1940. Located at the site are 42 permanent type frame houses; 13 other houses; a frame building suitable for remodeling for use as offices, crafts or concessions; and other buildings. Some of the buildings have only salvage value. The area has a black top road system, and an underground distribution system for water and sewage.

The site is composed of several tracts. One of these contains 105 acres and improvements are located on this tract. It will be stipulated that this tract shall be used for recreation purposes only, and that it shall be developed and operated for public commercial resort purposes for at least 20 years. TVA also will stipulate that the successful bidder be required to invest a minimum of $200,000 in rehabilitation and expansion of the properties within five years from the date of purchase, of which $80,000 may be invested within two years of purchase.

Immediate road access to the site is over paved North Carolina State Highway 294. The site is 110 miles from Asheville, 98 miles from Knoxville, 138 miles from Atlanta, 110 miles from Fontana Dam, 110 miles from Gatlinburg, and 77 miles from Cherokee, southern entrance to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The site is adjacent to Hiwassee Dam, second highest in the TVA system, and affords access to two lakes, Hiwassee and Apalachia.

The auction, when held, will be at the Edey Building, Chattanooga. Robert J. Coker, of TVA's Land Branch, Chattanooga, will be in charge of the sale.

TVA today announced the top construction personnel who will have charge of building the 500,000 kilowatt generating unit at the Widows Creek Steam Plant in northeast Alabama. Hendon R. Johnston will be project manager, William W. Aydelott, construction engineer, and H. Daniel Towers, construction superintendent. They now are serving in these capacities at the John Sevier Steam Plant at Rogersville, Tennessee, and will be transferred to Widows Creek in March 1958.

The unit will be one of the world's largest.

Reports reaching TVA's Fish and Game Branch indicate that there were an estimated 147,400 ducks and geese on TVA lakes at the start of the 1957 hunting season. Of these 107,000 were ducks, and 40,400 geese (38,500 Canada, and 1,900 Blue and Snow). Most of the geese were in north Alabama and east Tennessee, while most of the ducks were in west Tennessee and north Alabama. TVA said that waterfowl had not moved into Tennessee Valley this year in great numbers owing chiefly to a mild winter in the North. Those that did come were scattered due to high water. Last

Try Small Portion Of New Varieties

LEXINGTON, Ky. — When a farmer learns of a new variety of a crop, he should try this new variety on only a part of his acreage, says B. W. Fortenberry, Kentucky Seed Improvement Association.

Don't plant entire acreages to new varieties until you have tested, he continued. Simply because a farmer fears a new variety is better than the one he has been using is no particular reason to make a complete switch in one season. Soil and weather conditions, as well as the individual's management of variety, affect performance which is not grown on different farms.

Also, Fortenberry says, farmers grow different varieties of one crop for special reasons. One farmer may like corn with a tight, well-developed husk, covering to prevent insect damage, while another will like one with a loose husk covering that can be harvested easily with a picker. One farmer may use a wheat variety that gives a good grain crop and straw to bedding, but another may prefer a wheat of short straw and early-maturity to get a good, early grain crop, etc.

Don't be in a rush to convert to a new variety.

Kentucky Rolls Over Utah State

LEXINGTON — The University of Kentucky rolled to a 92-64 victory over Utah State before 7,500 fans Monday night.

Kentucky, making its first appearance since finishing third in the University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament last weekend, got off to a slow start and could gather no more than a three-point advantage for the first half of the first period against sharpshooting Utah.

With five minutes remaining in the first half Kentucky pulled out to a 49-32 lead at intermission.

Coach Adolph Rupp used substitutes for most of the second half after Utah State lost Harold Theus and Bob Ipen on personal fouls.

It was the Wildcats' sixth victory against three defeats and Utah State's seventh loss in eight games.

Kentucky played without the services of regular forward John Crigler who sprained his ankle in a game last weekend.

Johnny Cox, Wildcat guard, was the game's high scorer with 21 points followed by Adrian Smith with 20.

Are Married Sunday

Mrs. Charles Gordon Warner

The First Christian Church, Princeton, Ky., was the setting Sunday, December 22, at 3:00 p.m. for the wedding ceremony uniting Miss Deborah Martynne Cressay and Dr. Charles Gordon Warner, Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cressay of Princeton, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Warner of Murray.

The Rev. Robert Fulcher performed the double ring ceremony. The entire decor of the church expressed the yuletide season. The vows were exchanged before an altar elegantly bedecked with white satin and candleabra banked with greenery. The chancel was adorned with a bank of red and white poinsettias before a background of green and white spruce trees. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. Everett Cherry presented a program of nuptial music and Miss Millicent King, accompanied by Mrs. Cherry sang "Because". The traditional wedding marches were used. Throughout the ceremony "Claire de Lune" was softly played. Miss King sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple reverently bowed for the benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white wedding gown of satin peau over nylon tulle over tulle. The princess' bodice was fastened with miniature silk buttons. The décolletage heart neck was completed with dainty silk roses and leaves which continued in double garlands on the front panel of the skirt to the hemline. Long sleeves buttoned from elbow to petal points over the hand. The gathered skirts corded the bodice developing over Southern Belle petticoats into voluminous fullness extending into the chapel train. Her double tiered fingertip circular veil of misty bridal illusion fell from a silk Juliet cap edged with peaked orange buds. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Lydia Hall served as maid-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. William Haghey and Miss Patricia Foley. Her attendants were identically attired in red velvet princess of cocktail length, detailed with short sleeves and a scoop neckline enhanced by dainty white fur. The loveliness was heightened by long graceful streamers flowing from a flattering bow at the center of the back neckline. Their bandeaux were of matching red velvet and they carried white fur muffs on which red poinsettias were artistically arranged.

Mr. John Warner, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers were Mr. Don Johnson, Mr. Charles Andrews and Mrs. Fred Pittard.

The bride's mother chose a Dior blue wool crepe with matching velvet hat. Her accessories were black, and she wore a corsage of white roses. The mother of the bridegroom chose a powder blue crepe with matching satin trim and a pink satin hat. Her accessories were black, and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. For her wedding trip, the bride chose an oyster white wool jersey sheath with matching satins and black accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

The bride was graduated from Butler High School. She is now attending Murray State College where she is a senior.

The bridegroom was graduated at the University of Kentucky and received his degree from the College of Veterinary Medicine at Ohio State University. After graduation, he served two years as a captain in the United States Air Force Veterinary Corps in the Far East.

After a short wedding trip south, Dr. and Mrs. Warner will be at home in Murray where he is practicing veterinary medicine.

Visiting their mother, Mrs. J. T. Sammons, Main Street, for the holidays will be Mr. and Mrs. Ted Koenigsmark and son, Stan, of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krenshaw of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vaughn of Birmingham, Ala.; and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Edwards of Evansville, Ind. ## Russians May As Well Give In

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK — The Russians beat us to the launching of an earth satellite but they're bringing up the rear in another department.

Dispatches from behind the Iron Curtain report women of East Germany and restore areas of southern Russia are demanding the right to wear slacks. But at the moment, their progress is negative.

Well, I have news for Soviet officialdom. It may as well give in. When woman is determined to wear the pants, man eventually accedes.

It took some doing in this country, too, before slacks and other types of trousers became accepted for lounge, sports and even street wear. German women also are in the act, but seem to be gaining ground. A group of girls in a public school in Odenburg defied the principal's ban on long pants, but went to court when he sent them home. The ruling: What the girls wore was none of the principal's business.

Fined On Spot
The East German girls haven't fared so well, but some just ignore official opposition. One report from Moscow says that in a resort town on the Black Sea coast, women are fined on the spot if they appear in public in slacks.

I suggest the Russian women who want to wear trousers line themselves up a few paces like the West's Mrs. Amelia Bloomer or Marlene Dietrich. And, point out that pants aren't new in women's apparel. Joan of Arc put on boy's clothing in the 15th Century. George Sand was a famous exponent of trousers in the early 19th Century.

In 1849, along came Mrs. Amelia Jones Bloomer, who campaigned for temperance, woman suffrage, and a reform in women's dress. Her followers became known as the Bloomer girls.

Rosie The Riveter
Came 1913, and a New York style authority, Ethel Traphagen, now head of the Traphagen School of Fashion, shocked Fifth Avenue with her variation of pants for street wear. She donned a taffeta dress with trouser skirt, as a protest against the then-fashionable hobbles.

Marlene Dietrich glamorized them in the 1930's, and it wasn't long until slacks topped by mink coat became a standard costume in Hollywood.

Rosie the Riveter and World War II assured them a permanent place in the American woman's wardrobe, says one leading manufacturer, Evan-Picone. The women wore trousers to the factories and kept on wearing them at home after the war.

Miss Jane Baker has arrived home to spend the holiday season with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Baker. Jane has been attending the college of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Washington.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Jordan

The wedding of Miss Martha Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Rodman, Wichita, Kansas, and Lt. James G. Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Jordan, Murray, was solemnized December 1 at 3 o'clock in the Benjamin Franklin Village Chapel, Mannheim, Germany.

Officiating at the ceremony was Col. Mausey Hundley. The double ring ceremony was read before an altar of poinsettias set in pine.

The bride, given in marriage for her parents by Captain Carlisle B. Cox, Jr., wore a dress of white swiss lace with a wide V neckline and full skirt. A white cummerbund was placed at the waist and was fashioned with a wide satin sash at the back. Her hat and veil were of white swiss lace. The bride carried white carnations and lilacs.

Holland green and tied with white ribbon. Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Julian G. Hunt. Mrs.

Hunt wore a dress of green taffeta in princess styling. She carried a bouquet of red carnations set in pine.

Lt. Julian G. Hunt acted as best man for Lt. Jordan. Groomsmen were Lt. George La Hood and Lt. Edward Keeler.

A reception was held following the wedding at the Benjamin Franklin Officers Club. The brides table was centered with the traditional wedding cake surrounded with white carnations and greenery. A silver candleabra was placed on each side of the cake beside a silver decor. Serving tables were decorated with white carnations and greens.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Vera Malohnsky and Miss Corrine Holband, Mrs. Carlisle B. Cox, Jr., and Mrs. Marcello Bordley, Jr. Immediately following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to Switzerland.

CHAPTER 19

MICHAEL HAD seen the first of the year. But three days before Christmas, Tracy received a telegram saying that he would reach St. Louis some time that night, by air. Would she meet him?

Would she not!

Instantly she was in a flurry of plans, arranged for none of these things. She must finish up the patients now in the office and then she scooped them up. It was already four p.m., and four more children were on her list.

Today she thought in bubbling happiness. He would meet her!

It was almost six before Tracy still out of breath when she parked her car at the airport and ran for the building; she was breathless when she saw Michael coming toward her, tall and dark, his face weathered, his smile flashing. Air Force blue was very becoming to him. He scooped Tracy into his arms as if very glad to see her.

They both talked at once and broke off at once to smile at each other; the snow was coming down in great plopping flakes.

For the drive in, he took the wheel and made a teasing comment upon her thrifty choice in cars. "It's all paid for," she assured him.

And he laughed and nodded. "I'll bet." On the way to the hotel he talked about Greenland, and Tracy talked about the office. "Do you know we're going to work together?"

"O'Connell wrote me. Sounds swell."

Arm in arm, they went up to the suite, and Michael said, "Oh, in a pleased way to see a ribbon-tied wreath on their door and candles inside, as well as a tiny tree with gaily wrapped packages around it.

"Home again!" he said, sounding completely happy and content. Then he turned to take Tracy into his arms. "You smell sweet. You feel sweet. You are sweet."

Now she was a woman complete, a wife with pride restored. After months of hurt and humiliation, and even more months of doubt and hope and courage repeated endlessly, to find herself now beloved and desired.

Christmas was wonderful. And immediately after Christmas, the two doctors in the Loren family took up their medical work together in Dr. O'Connell's office.

Phil Silvers—Sgt. Ernie Bilko and that wacky, wonderful CBS-TV platoon.

The Silvers' show is now in its third year.

Tuesday night's episode was a typical essay in insanity. The plot was almost cynically absurd—a balloon excursion into the ionosphere, a Sgt. Bilko discovery that he is really a lieutenant, a mixup over some back pay and some other narrative so complicated to put into English, Algebra maybe. But not English.

Calls it Funny Anyway, it was funny. Silvers' Bilko is the most perfectly realized character in TV. And Silvers plays it with the casual ease of the blessed.

Are Married Sunday

Mrs. Charles Gordon Warner

The First Christian Church, Princeton, Ky., was the setting Sunday, December 22, at 3:00 p.m. for the wedding ceremony uniting Miss Dolores Martine Creasey and Dr. Charles Gordon Warner, Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Creasey of Princeton, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Warner of Murray.

The Rev. Robert Fulcher performed the double ring ceremony.

The entire decor of the church expressed the yuletide season. The vows were exchanged before an altar elegantly bedecked with white satin and hollyhocks banked with greenery. The chancel was adorned with a bank of red and white poinsettias before a background of green and white spruce trees. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. Everett Cherry presented a program of nuptial music and Miss Millicent King, accompanied by Mrs. Cherry sang "Because." The traditional wedding marches were used. Throughout the ceremony "Claire de Lune" was softly played. Miss King sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple reverently bowed for the benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white wedding gown of satin peau over nylon tulle over taffeta. The peissess basque was fastened with miniature silk buttons. The decollete heart neck was completed with dainty silk roses and leaves which continued in double garlands on the front panel of the skirt to the hemline. Long sleeves buttoned from elbow to petal points over the hand. The gathered skirts corded the bodice, developing over Southern Belle petticoats into voluminous fullness extending into the chapel train. Her double tiered fingertip circular veil of misty bridal illusion fell from a silk Juliet cap edged with pearly orange buds. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Lydia Hall served as maid-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Warren Hughes and Miss Patricia Foley.

Her attendants were identically attired in red velvet and pink. The ushers were Mr. Don Johnson, Mr. Charles Andrews and Mrs. Fred Pittard.

Russians May As Well Give In

By GAY PAULEY
 United Press Women's Editor
 NEW YORK (U.P.) — The Russians beat us to the launching of an earth satellite but they're bringing up the rear in another department.

Dispatches from behind the Iron Curtain report women of East Germany and restore areas of southern Russia are demanding the right to wear slacks. But at the moment, their progress is negative.

Well, I have news for Soviet officialdom. It may as well give in. When woman is determined to wear the pants, man eventually accedes.

It took some doing in this country, too, before slacks and other types of trousers became accepted for lounge, sports and even street wear.

West German women also are in the act, but seem to be gaining ground. A group of girls in a public school in Odenburg defied the principal's ban on long pants, but went to court when he sent them home. The ruling: What the girls wore was none of the principal's business.

Fined On Spot

The East German girls haven't fared so well, but some just ignore official opposition. One report from Moscow says that in a resort town on the Black Sea coast, women are fined on the spot if they appear in public in slacks.

I suggest the Russian women who want to wear trousers line themselves up a few paces like the West's Mrs. Amelia Bloomer or Marlene Dietrich. And, point out that pants aren't new in women's apparel. Joan of Arc put on boy's clothing in the 15th Century. George Sand was a famous exponent of trousers in the early 19th Century.

In 1849, along came Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who campaigned for temperance, woman suffrage, and a reform in women's dress. Her followers became known as the Bloomer Girls.

Rosie The Riveter

Came 1913, and a New York style authority, Ethel Traflagan, now head of the Traphagen School of Fashion, shocked Fifth Avenue with her variation of pants for street wear. She donned a taffeta dress with trouser skirt, as a protest against the then-fashionable hobbles.

Herieine Dietrich glamorized them in the 1930, and it wasn't long until slacks topped by mink coat became a standard costume in Hollywood.

Rosie the Riveter and World War II assured them a permanent place in the American woman's wardrobe, says one leading manufacturer, Evan-Picone. The women wore trousers to the factories, and kept on wearing them at home after the war.

Miss Jane Baker has arrived home to spend the holiday season with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Baker. Jane has been attending the college of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Washington.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Jordan

The wedding of Miss Martha Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Rodman, Wichita, Kansas, and Lt. James G. Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Jordan, Murray, was solemnized December 1 at 3 o'clock in the Benjamin Franklin Village Chapel, Mannheim, Germany.

Officiating at the ceremony was Col. Maury Hundley. The double ring ceremony was read before an altar of poinsettias set in pine.

The bride, given in marriage for her parents by Captain Carlisle B. Cox, Jr., wore a dress of white swiss lace with a wide V neckline and full skirt. A white satin cummerbund was placed at the waist and was fashioned with a wide satin sash at the back. Her hat and veil were of white swiss lace. The bride carried white carnations and lilacs-of-the-valley set in Holland green and tied with white ribbon.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Julian G. Hunt, Mrs.

Roman Catholic patriarch Alberto Gori headed the traditional procession of the clergy from Jerusalem to Bethlehem at 5 a.m. e.s.t. to begin services beneath the Church of the Nativity in the cavern where Christ was born.

The route of the procession wound from the Mandelbaum Gate down the Valley of Cedron, past the Garden of Gethsemane and the Mount of Olives and then along the winding road to Bethlehem.

It was watched by shepherds who guarded their flocks today much as shepherds did in the time of Christ.

Consuls-general of seven nations, including the United States, planned to attend a pontifical midnight Mass here.

Protestant ceremonies for Christmas were led by a carol service in the field of the shepherds two miles from Bethlehem this afternoon.

The glory of Christmas is that it is a tale but the world's greatest truth, that God has "visited and redeemed His people."

For millions of people across all the continents of earth the truth of Christmas is a living reality. In them the risen Christ lives today and continues to bear his ageless witness.

The council pleaded with motorists to stay sober and obey traffic laws, pointing out that most traffic fatalities are caused by drinking drivers and road hogs.

The council's plea will be backed by all-out crackdown on motorists in most states by state and local authorities who will give up the day with their families so that others may live to enjoy the holiday with their loved ones.

Eisenhower, like most Americans, will spend today at work, and tentative plans call for the President and Mrs. Eisenhower to spend Christmas Day at the White House, and then leave for a long weekend at their farm home in Gettysburg, Pa.

139 Rendition... 23, 1818, depressed by the discovery that mice had eaten the bellows of the church organ.

Suddenly the wind died and the skies cleared. Looking out from the mountains, pristine in their coat of new snow, Mohr murmured, "silent night, holy night."

After a moment, he added, "all is calm, all is bright." Then, the legend goes, Gruber exclaimed, "that would make a fine Christmas carol."

Their depression wiped out by the exciting thought, the two men hurried to Gruber's house and spent the rest of the night painstakingly adding verses and working out the melody.

Dinner Ruined So Hostess Wants Contractor To Pay

MUSKEGON, Mich. - The North Muskegon City Council received a claim for property and damages resulting from storm sewer construction from Mrs. Louis Simpson, who asked $10 to cover cleaning of sand from a water line serving her home, and $25.00 for five dinners at a local cafe.

Councilmen, questioning the later, were told that Mrs. Simpson had guests for dinner and was preparing a meal for them when the water was shut off during excavation work.

Without water, she couldn't cook the meal so she packed her guests off to a cafe for dinner and figured the sewer contractor ought to foot the bill.

Here's Interpretation Of Rodeo Lingo

PAMPA, Tex. - Persons at a rodeo who overhear the cowboys talking, may wonder if it's English or another language they're using. Here are some definitions: "Hoothanning" is a term a cowboy uses when he leaps on a steer in such a way that the animal's head and horns are driven into the ground.

"Choking the apple" is for a cowboy to grasp the saddle horn while contest bronc riding, which disqualifies him.

"Fishing for a loop" is when a cowboy doesn't make a clean catch on a calf and has to flip his rope around until the loop finally stays put.

"Blowing a stirrup" is to lose a stirrup, and a "high-roller" is a horse that leaps high in the air when bucking.
