BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Arise therefore and be doing, for the Lord be with thee. 1 Chronicles 22:16.

The Bible is full of trumpet calls. Uttered first thousands of years ago they are still pertinent. God wants us to do better than our best.

LESSON

By Dr. H. C. Chiles

JUSTICE AMONG NATIONS

It should be obvious to us in this era of national misunderstanding, tensions and strife that justice can and will prevail among the nations only where and when God is recognized as the Supreme Ruler.

MICAH 4:1-7

Micah was a fearless preacher of righteousness, condemning sin, denouncing idolatry and scolding the oppressors of the poor. God called Micah to be His messenger in those terrible days of spiritual declension in Israel and Judah. Being preeminently a prophet of the poor and a friend of the oppressed, he championed their rights against the wrongs of his age with an indelible and fearless heroism and fearlessness which may well be emulated by Christians today. Being a practical man, Micah stressed the fact that one's religion should manifest itself in upright and godly living.

Micah not only rebuked the wickedness of the secular rulers, but he also denounced the sins of the princes, the priests and the prophets. These religious leaders had failed to honor God because they were seeking their own personal benefit and advancement. Micah told them that God was not pleased with any more self-satisfied conformity with the outward forms of worship when the eternal principles of right and wrong were disregarded. He made it perfectly clear that for all their offenses against God and their fellowmen they were to be punished.

While Micah's message was mainly one of rebuke and judgment, he also gave much valuable information regarding future events. After warning the people that their rejection of God and His love would bring them sorrow and judgment, he broke forth in glowing prophecy of the glory that is to come during the reign of the Prince of Peace. Lifting up his eyes and looking beyond local circumstances, and with a God-given vision and inspiration, he promised coming glory and peace to the world which was yet to be. Micah did not picture conditions as they were in his day, but he portrayed them as they will be at the end of this age. The phrase "in the last days" refers to the time when the people shall go up to Jerusalem to hear God's Word, to discover His will and to learn to walk in His ways.

Naturally the predictive element is prominent in this message. Micah saw a glorious day in the future when sin and idolatry will not exist, but the Messiah shall reign, nations shall be blessed, and the havoc of war with no longer menace the world. While our age is characterized by materialism, this coming age will be noted for spirituality. True unity will exist among the nations. It will be a time of peace, of safety and of satisfaction. War will be abolished, and the weapons of destruction will be converted into instruments of usefulness. Men will give themselves to peaceful pursuits and there will be plenty for all. It will be a time of both individual and universal prosperity. Want and poverty will be banished. There will be perfect contentment. "They shall all say, Man under his vine and under his fig tree." This refers to the fruitfulness of the ground or agricultural prosperity. Micah made it plain that God's kingdom will be supreme, universal, Christ-centered, peaceful and prosperous. To this glorious time, when He shall reign whose right it is to do so, we look forward with anticipation and joy.

EPHESIANS 2:13-18

In this great chapter Paul reminds his Christian readers that in their former condition they were dead in trespasses and sins, disobedient to God, deserving of wrath, without Christ, without a place among God's people, without a share in God's covenants, without hope and without God. They had been in darkness and despair. They had been heathen and hopeless. Even though the world was teeming with evidence of God's wisdom, love and power, they had lived without any real knowledge of Him. From this passage of scripture we learn that it is a good thing for all Christians to recall their former condition when they were heathen, hopeless and without Christ. How marvelous that, while we were in that terribly hopeless condition, God loved us and made provision for us: Due to the atoning sacrifice of Christ on the cross, we are able to approach God and to enjoy a wonderful fellowship with Him. As Christians, we should be grateful for the wonderful change which has been wrought in us. The means by which this change was wrought was the blood of Christ. His blood is the only means that could effect such a change. Moreover, the blood of Christ does away with the barrier between Christian Jews and Christian Gentiles. It is a well-known fact that the unsaved Jews were exceedingly scornful of the Gentiles, and that the Gentiles naturally had a bitter hatred toward the Jews. Saved by the Lord Jesus Christ, their attitude toward each other was changed completely. This great change in them proves that Christ can abolish alienation, remove bitterness and unite contending forces.

public the government in London declared that a nuclear device had been touched off at the range.

France A Problem

The French government announced France would continue with planned atomic weapons tests in an effort to become a nuclear power despite any test ban agreement by the United States, Britain, and Russia. Khrushchev might insist France is an indispensable party to any test ban agreement.

But informed sources pointed out that it is within the capability of most advanced countries to build atomic weapons, provided they want to spend the huge sums necessary. They believe Khrushchev could not insist that every nation with the potential to manufacture atomic weapons be included in the ban.

Further, these sources said, Russian rejection of the West's plan would constitute a propaganda defeat for the Soviets, who unilaterally suspended testing last spring after conclusion of a massive test series in Siberia.

Western observers in Moscow predicted Russia would accept the Anglo-American offer but complain about the one-year time limit. No time limit was placed on the announced Soviet test ban last March, although Russia did reserve the right to resume tests if the West didn't follow suit.

students "will be effectively destroyed, the damage will be irreparable and the order of a federal court will in fact be whittled away."

In Little Rock, meanwhile, registration started Friday at Central High School, but none of the hundreds of students who registered for the fall term was a Negro.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas had planned to call a special session of the Legislature next week to deal with the 8th Court's original order to proceed with integration at Central even though President Eisenhower had warned he may send troops to Little Rock again.

But when the 8th Court stayed its own order, tension in Little Rock decreased. The stay gave the school board 20 days to present its own petition. By that time the fall term will be too far in progress for Negroes to enter this semester.

On the basis of the stay, school Superintendent Virgil T. Blossom warned Negroes not to try to attend the fall term. But the NAACP indicated it will try to register the students next week. Whitaker is not expected to revoke the stay because such a move would be unprecedented.

Some trouble also was expected in Virginia where schools will operate under a "pupil placement law." Virginia Atty. Gen. Albert S. Harrison conceded Friday night the Norfolk School Board could assign Negro students to white schools despite the new law.

HIGHER EDUCATION

LOS ANGELES — (UPI) — A number of bright students from Los Angeles high schools will spend an hour or two a day attending classes at the University of California this fall. This will give them a chance to speed up their training while still spending most of their time in high school with members of their own age group.

KILLED HIS MOTHER — Bruce Dale, 15, plays with a toy in Chicago during investigation of gunshot death of his mother. Finally, after police found discrepancies in his story, he admitted finding a .22 revolver in an upstairs suitcase, said, "I was coming downstairs when the gun went off." Two bullets struck his mother as she lay on a sofa. In the arm and head.

Terry And Sad Sam Came Close But Missed That Perfect Game

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International

Close, but no cigar. That's how it was for both Ralph Terry of the Athletics and Sad Sam Jones of the Cardinals.

Terry pitched a one-hitter and barely missed a perfect game in beating the Senators, 1-0, Friday night, while Jones came within six outs of a no-hitter and then had to settle for a three-hit, 9-1 victory over the Phillies.

The "villain" who spoiled Terry's bid was his pitching rival Russ Kemmerer, Kemmerer connected for a clean single in the third inning and was the only Washington runner to reach base as Terry did not walk a man and faced only 28 batters en route to his eighth win.

Jones Ties Record

Kansas City scored the only run of the game in the third on Bob Cerv's triple and Harry Simpson's double.

Jones, the free-wheeling, tooth-pick-chewing fireballer, tied the major league record of 14 strikeouts in a night game as he held the Phils hitless until Ray Reppulski led off the eighth inning with his 11th home run.

Jones was bidding for the second no-hitter of his major league career, having pitched his first against the Pirates, May 12, 1955, while still a member of the Cubs.

Gene Green hit a three-run homer for the Cards and Gene Freese belted one with the bases empty to help Jones record his 11th triumph. Stan Musial set a National League record for 2,167 total bases.

The Yankees, back on the right track again, ran their American League lead to 12 1/2 games with an 8-5 decision over the White Sox; the Red Sox defeated the Indians, 4-3, and the Orioles topped the Tigers, 2-1.

Bucs, Reds Win

Pittsburgh crushed Chicago, 8-2, and Cincinnati beat San Francisco 7-3. The Braves and Dodgers were idle.

Mickey Mantle clouted his 36th homer in the Yankees' victory while Elston Howard and Gil McDougald also homered. Sherm Lollar's homer in the sixth helped the White Sox to a 4-3 lead but the Yanks clinched the win when Jerry Lynch tripled and George Crowe singled to tie the score. Frank Robinson doubled and Ed Bailey followed with another double that drove in the tie-breaking runs.

The Redlegs won their game from the Giants with a five-run rally in the eighth inning. San Francisco led 3-2 until the eighth when Jerry Lynch tripled and George Crowe singled to tie the score. Frank Robinson doubled and Ed Bailey followed with another double that drove in the tie-breaking runs.

and he walked tall and straight as a young man should.

Again Ann had a strong feeling that she had met this man not once but many times.

"Howdy, Judge," he boomed.

"Oh, hello there, Mr. Stewart," Colin smiled as he came to them and shook the hand Ling extended.

"Want you should meet my wife, Judge Ann. This is Judge Colin Campbell."

Colin bowed, and Ann blushed because she could not remember when a man had extended such a courtesy. Fortunately, Ling distracted Colin's attention.

"I'd as soon split this ten with you, Judge."

"No, thank you, Mr. Stewart," Colin declined, laughing.

"Name's Ling—Ling for short. I just wanted to see if you was as fair and honest as I thought you were. You are," Ling explained.

Colin grinned. "I'm glad I passed the test," he said. "And I hope the citizens of Denbury and Buckshot counties will agree with you at the next election."

Ling was anxious to get onto a really interesting subject. "Speaking of Buckshot county," he said, "do you like to hunt? An' if you like to hunt have you ever been to Hobbs Creek?"

"I love to hunt, though I've done very little of it since I got a boy. And I've never been to Hobbs Creek."

"Then come! We got bucks in our woods an' I'll make the biggest one on these river flats look piddlin' as a yearlin' fawn."

"What else do you have, Mr. Ling?"

"Bears, catamounts, foxes, turkeys. Name it and we got it."

They were off on the enraptured conversation of two men who share a common enthusiasm. Ann waited patiently, watching the judge as he talked, looking for some clue that would tell her why she felt she had seen him before.

Suddenly they were startled by the sound of a very annoyed girlish voice calling, "Colin! Real! y!" They turned in the direction from which the voice came and saw the beautiful young lady staring out of the window of the coach, her blue eyes flashing.

The judge looked contrite. "Oh, Jeannie! I'm sorry. I got to talking with Ling Stewart here about bears and such, and I'm afraid I forgot that you were going to be waiting for me."

"I noticed that."

"I'll be right with you, Jeannie," To Ling he said, extending his hand, "I'll come to Hobbs Creek early next week for sure."

Usherling the Stewarts towards the coach, he called to Jeannie, "I want you to meet some friends of mine."

"Another time if you don't mind," Jeannie smiled but pure ice as she slammed the door of the coach and signaled to the coachmen. As the magnificent equipage disappeared around a corner, Ann glanced at the judge's distracted face and decided that Jeannie's heart was pure china.

By mid-afternoon the next day, Colin disposed of his final case, which involved a two-hundred-and-twenty-pound sailor who had allegedly stolen, of all things, a set of croquet hocks and a half-finished anticamasser to which they were attached. With an inward sigh of relief he went into his chambers, took off his judicial robe and sat down at his desk. Going through his mail, he found a note in his father's precise script:

Colin, I have news of the greatest importance and must see you some time today.—Ralph Campbell II.

Colin tucked the note into his pocket. His father was not in the habit of making mountain out of molehills. He would stop off to visit him at Quail Wings this afternoon on his way to see Jeannie Darr.

Before leaving the courthouse, he checked to make sure that the tiny postcard box was in the pocket of his topcoat. The box contained a garnet brooch, a peace offering, by no means the first he had tendered in the last three months, to atone for his responsibility for yesterday's quarrel. It was his fault. He had admitted that last night. He had known Jeannie was to be there waiting for him. But when anything interested him, and the Stewarts did, he devoted himself to it so wholeheartedly that he forgot everything else. Jeannie knew that. Of course he had apologized. She had forgiven him, happily that he had no right to keep her waiting while he exchanged pleasantries with his hilly friends.

Then she had made a remark which he interpreted to mean that it was Ann Stewart, rather than an interest in hunting, that had kept him so long in conversation. When he made an angry retort, she had promptly denied that she had ever even thought such a thing. The quarrel might have been shrugged off if there hadn't been so many disagreements lately.

Once more, Colin tried to reason it away. He had been working very hard lately; he had been very much preoccupied with the growing tension between North and South—debilities he hadn't been the pleasantest of companions. His imagination often ran away with him and probably he had been too quick to give a double meaning to an innocuous remark. At any rate, he must try a little harder to please his fiancée.

What Happened To

JERRY LYNCH—
Jerry Lynch of the Redlegs always said the Pirates would be sorry they let him go some day.

And Sunday was the day. Lynch's last played a key role in Cincinnati's 4-3 and 7-5 double header sweep over Pittsburgh, dropping the Pirates nine games off the pace and all but killing off any last pennant hopes they may have harbored.

The 28-year-old Lynch got three hits in the opener, and it was his third hit, a ninth-inning single, that drove in the winning run.

Then he came back to start a two-run homer off Vern Shoup in the third inning of the nightcap.

OUCH! thinks heavyweight champ Floyd Patterson, no doubt, as he takes this one (upper) in the kisser during an early round in the Los Angeles title bout with Roy Harris. But a bit later Roy was cut and by end of the twelfth he was all shot. They are shown (lower) after the fight. Said all shot. "I guess I'm not as good as I thought I was," the loser.

Altar Society Is Hostess To Party For Miss Fenton

Miss Anne Fenton, bride-elect of Robert G. Seyer, was honored at a party Monday evening, August 18, at the Murray Electric building. Hostesses were members of the Altar Society of St. Leo's Catholic Church.

Miss Fenton chose for the occasion a brown and white cotton fashioned with a bouffant skirt. She wore a corsage of white carnations centered with a miniature bird, a gift from the hostesses.

The group presented Miss Fenton with a pink blanket and a spray steam iron. Refreshments of punch, cake, nuts, and mints were served from a table overlaid with a white cloth. The punch bowl was placed at one end of the table. Directly behind the table was a large lavender umbrella with bouquets of violets pinned to it.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. B. L. Nail and Mrs. A. L. Koertner. Present at the party were Mesdames Nail, Koertner, Lee, Maher, Leonard Vaughn, Clarence Rohwedder, John Bryant, Robert Rowan, Bernard Harvey, Ed Fenton, A. M. Finley, William Jeffrey, John Reiss, Mac MacRaney, Grover Wood James, Shelton Kern, Ray Kern and Miss Clarice Rohwedder.

Miss Anne Rebecca Fenton Became Bride This Morning Of Robert George Seyer

MRS. ROBERT G. SEYER

St. Leo's Catholic Church was the scene today of the wedding of Miss Anne Rebecca Fenton, daughter of Mr. Harry J. Fenton, and Mr. Robert G. Seyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seyer, Chaffee, Mo.

The double ring ceremony beginning at 9:00 a.m., was performed by Fr. Edward Russell. He was assisted by Fr. T. A. Murphy and Fr. Clarence Pettit.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in full length gown of silk organza over satin. The sweetheart neckline was fashioned with an orchid design of brocade, tapering into a tightly fitted waistline. The skirt was accented with a satin brocade of featuring the same orchid design and ended in a chapel train. The fingertip veil of illusion stemmed from a delicate crown of seed pearls. Her full length milghos were of matching organza.

She carried a large white orchid surrounded by lilies of the valley with white satin streamers gracefully flowing from the base.

Mrs. John V. Resig, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Mrs. Ernest Glatteier, sister of the groom, was a bridesmaid. They were gown in lavender net-over-tulle dresses with fascias, cambrons.

They carried bouquets of purple orchids. Their veils attached to hand-ribbons, were of lavender net. Their shoes a d gloves were white.

Arthur E. Seyer acted as best man for his brother. Ushers were Ernest Glatteier and Arthur J. Long, brother-in-law of the bride.

Special nuptial music was played by organist, Miss Clarice Rohwedder. Her selections were "Flowers of the Field," the processional, and "Our Lady of Providence." A violin solo, "Ave Maria," was played by Mrs. Ed Fenton.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was held at the Collegiate Restaurant at 10:30 a.m. for the wedding party and the immediate families.

The bride's table was centered with a miniature bride and bridesmaids dolls dressed in costumes matching the dresses worn in the wedding. Arrangements of white flowers completed the table decorations.

The large four tiered wedding cake was decorated in lily of the flowers and was topped with flowers of a matching design. The couple left following the breakfast for Chaffee, Mo., where this evening they will be honored at a reception and dinner at the St. Ambrose Church Hall. Hosts will be Mr. Seyer, parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seyer.

Out of town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seyer and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Seyer and family of Chaffee, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Edlrich and family, Maplewood, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Seyer and family, St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fenton and family, Los Altos, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. James Lynd and family, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Long and family, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. J. W. McGee, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Frances Edwards and a daughter, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Flynn, St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Farley, Los Angeles, Calif.

Rehearsal Dinner
Friday evening, August 22 at 5:00 a rehearsal dinner was held at the Kentucky Lake pavilion. Miss Fenton and Mr. Seyer presented their attendants with gifts.

Present at the dinner were Mr. Harry J. Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Resig and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Seyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Glatteier and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. ## Hymn-Loving Ohioan Gives Away Organs

CLEVELAND, Ohio — (UPI) — Claud Foster, 86-year-old inventor and manufacturer who has given away seven million dollars, is getting his biggest thrill out of passing around his last $500,000.

Each Wednesday, Foster's small office here is packed with ministers and their families, mostly from small Ohio communities, who have come to pick up a check for a free organ.

Foster will give away 15 organs each week until the total reaches 700. Then he'll tour the state to "see and hear how those organs are being used."

The organ giveaway started this way: "I used to drive around in the country on Sunday, stopping off to attend services at small churches," Foster explained. "I heard some fine sermons, but it grated on my nerves to hear people singing to the accompaniment of an old piano that usually was out of tune."

"I decided to give those churches a good organ when I could afford. Now I can, so I'm doing it," he added.

A visit to one of the first recipients of a free organ stirred a mild uproar from the white-haired inventor when he discovered that the instrument was not being used.

"We have no one who can play it," the minister said. "It was no excuse for Foster. 'Anyone who can play the piano can play this organ,' he said. And before he left, the minister's wife had begun mastering the keyboard."
