THE NEW MYSTERY THE APRIC By CRAIG RICE and ED McBAIN

Out in the car, he yawned. The day was half gone. They had a roof over their heads and it was a roof that could stand a little disploring. It wasn't just a matter of finding a hint as to where Julien Lattimer's body was hidden, assuming that he had become a body. It had suddenly become a matter of finding out just what had happened to Pearl Durzy, and why.

They decided, after a whispered conference, that they each wanted three prints of each pose. And this, Bingo reminded nimself, was the day that had started off badly!

A plump woman in a gaudy lied displayed a gangling teenager forward and said, "Go on, Harvey, right-up by the doorway. This'll be a nice picture to send your father."

MOONSHOOT-These diagrams illustrate the U.S. Army's scheduled weekend moonshoot at Cape Canaveral, Fig. Although the Juno II rocket will be aimed at the moon, Dr. Wernher von Braun, Army's chief missile scientist, says there is only a slight chance it will reach the lunar sphere. The job of the 30-pound payload, he said, is to explore the deadly radiation band around the earth. Note the three possible paths the WAC Sergeant setup could take, illustrated at right.

HANGING COMMUTED-Guido Grassi, 78, listens solemnly as Father Di Lia tells him in prison at Walla Walla, Wash. that Gov. Albert D. Rosellini has commuted his sentence to hang for a murder committed 35 years ago. Grassi was to have gone to the gallows Dec. 5. When he was convicted he was adjudged insane, thus postponing his death sentence. At a recent sanity nearing he was found sane, which inwoked the sentence. Grassi hopes for a don so he can return to his native Italy to live out his remaining years.
