Snake Causes Furor Saturday At L&T Office

A furor was caused Saturday at the Ledger and Times when Ernie Collins, Benton resident and former snake handler with the Metropolitan Shows walked in with a live snake which he said was 22 feet long and weighed 200 pounds.

Ernie Collins ... and big snake

Collins, a husky bronze young man handled the obviously healthy specimen with ease as it was coiled about his body. He said that he had camped in the bottoms near Crossland for several days, where large snakes have been sighted over the past few years. Make Erwin of the Crossland community reported seeing a large snake about six years ago and another resident spotted one sixteen years ago.

Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

MANCHESTER, England — Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's best-known space scientist, commenting on the launching of two Russian cosmonauts into orbit:

"The most remarkable development man has seen."

NEW YORK — Mrs. Rae Spelman, a New York housewife, when asked about the latest Soviet space achievement: "I don't think it matters to us, I don't even know why anyone wants to go out there anyway. Can somebody tell me that?"

ALBANY, Ga. — Martin Luther King, Jr., discussing the refusal of the Albany City Commission to meet with Negro leaders to talk over racial problems.

"We feel that a special meeting is necessary to discuss this issue. If they continue to ignore this simple request, then we will have to resume our demonstrations, possibly on a mass scale, to call attention to the gravity of the problem and lay the issue squarely before the conscience of Albany and the nation."

RAVELLO, Italy — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, when asked if her husband might be coming over to join his family during their vacation here:

"The poor President, he is very busy at home."

Ten Years Ago Today

Murray Woman's Club has selected as one of its main objectives this year an Americanism Campaign to get-out-the-vote in November. Mrs. Ed Griffin, president of the club, is chairman of the campaign.

Air-conditioning systems have been installed in the dining rooms at two of Kentucky's most popular State Parks, Kenlake Hotel and Kentucky Dam Village, according to Commissioner Henry Ward.

Murrayans quickly and generously opened their hearts Saturday after an appeal was made in the Ledger & Times for aid to two little boys whose father is in the Murray Hospital, helpless with a broken back.

Carroll M. Rogers of Murray was today named to membership in the American Hereford Association, the world's largest purebred registry organization.

THE DARK RIDER

A Racing Novel of Suspense by GERALDINE TRAVEN

CHAPTER 23

AS THEY always did just before an important race, Julie Pendleton and her father talked it out.

They considered the other entries in the Derby, disregarding the obviously weak horses and then taking up the strong points of the possible winners. The jockey was going to need last-minute instructions, which he would not follow, according to the breeders. If things went well, he'd carry out the owner's orders.

Templar was a fast horse, but he couldn't stand a drive of more than a quarter. If he were up to the three-quarter post, then he could be nudged into an amazing burst of speed.

Other horses running against him usually tried this also, but Templar had that small edge of power, of strength, and perhaps the desire to win.

They clocked off the other important entries, even to the Morgan Stables' Lazy Luck, who was going to give Templar a hard race, but they knew his weakness. He was a consistent effort; moving too far out, hating to be crowded. They worried about him, but not with alarm.

Then there was Lysander, the unknown quantity. The horse won as much mystery surrounding him as Casey Jeffrey's bid behind.

"All the evidence I have indicates Lysander was allowed to win a couple of races at Santa Anita," Ira Pendleton said. "Given his head, he sailed home with no questions asked. In his other races I have a feeling he was held back."

"But why would Lorne Fabian hold back a good horse, one he intended to enter in the Derby? It doesn't make much sense, Daddy."

"It does from the viewpoint of the gambler. When you and I discuss Templar, we don't think of him as a horse who'll win us a lot of betting money. We can get more from him than all the bets we could lay—and win. But we don't need fast money and Lorne does. His farm hasn't done too well lately."

"Yes, I know. Winning the Derby would be a big break for him."

"The biggest," Ira said. "I heard Lorne even had trouble raising his entry fee. So—if he wanted to make some very fast money, he'd lay all he had on Lysander to win. A make-it-or-break-it attack on his troubles. The longer the odds, the more he'd stand to make if Lysander won, so it would be to his benefit if Lysander's performance wasn't too well known. The bookmakers, couldn't be in on it and drive the odds down. That's why Lorne had been so mysterious about his horse."

"How well did Lysander do in the trials?" Julie asked.

"I don't think they let him out—and from what I hear, he can beat anything on the track. We've got to expect to lose this year, honey."

"We've lost before and, anyway, if Lysander wins, it's just as if it's in the family."

"Yes, that's true enough if you marry Britt. However, I've raised and trained Templar and I want him to win. It's a matter of ego, my dear, and I have an enormous one when it comes to proving my horses are the best. Now run along and let me stew awhile. I like to do my worrying the night before the race. I can't enjoy the worry tomorrow—I'll be too busy to think about it."

She drifted into the kitchen and helped Della with the dinner dishes. She felt nervous and lost and Della did nothing to calm her. She talked about nothing but the race and what those in the know expected of Lysander. She mentioned Templar often enough, but usually with a degree of sadness, as if Templar had already lost the race.

Upstairs, Julie changed to warm slacks and a sweater, for the May nights were chilly. She thought about calling Fallon, but decided against it.

She did phone Claude Barton's home just after seven, but there was no answer. Under normal conditions this night before the race was a time of leniency, but tonight there was much more than a horse race on her mind.

BRITT arrived and she was exceptionally glad to see him—until she remembered he was to blame for Casey's trouble. If Britt thought this indicated her, he gave no indication of it. He jumped out of his car and came loping toward the porch. He swept her into his arms and kissed her.

"It's in the bag," he gloated. "Everything's settled. Lysander's tamed exactly right. He'll win in a breeze. I feel very sorry for Templar and his beautiful mistress, but those are the fortunes of a horse race, sweetheart. And then there's the most important thing of all—I've got you. What more could a man expect of a fine day in May, even in Kentucky?"

She laughed at his exuberance, but tempered it with a sudden frown. "Britt, did you

EXPENSIVE JEST

NEW YORK — A plane passenger's jest about carrying a bomb and a $500,000 insurance policy cost him $500 Friday in federal court.

Laurie Tremain, 52, of Sioux City, Iowa, pleaded guilty to violating the Bomb Hoax Act by giving the false report to a stewardess as he stepped aboard an Omaha-bound jet last June. He was fined $500 after his attorney described him as a "respectable churchgoer" who had taken a few drinks before the flight.

AVOIDED ROYAL WELCOME

NEW YORK — Ocean vessels on their maiden arrival here usually get a royal welcome with tugboats blasting their horns and fireboats spraying water.

But nobody gave a toot when the new 11,900-ton Japanese freighter Tacoma Maru arrived Friday on its first New York visit. That's the way the ship's owner wanted it.

A spokesman for the Osaka Shosen Kaisha Line explained the firm was "too busy" to detour the ship toward the traditional reception area.

ATLANTIC GAME CANCELLED

BOSTON — The Boston Patriots and New York Titans of the American Football League have cancelled their scheduled exhibition game at Atlanta on Aug. 25 because of poor attendance in the Georgia City.

Bill Sullivan, president of the Patriots, said Sunday that he and Titan president Harry Wismer were considering another site for the game, preferably in New England or New York state. Two previous AFL exhibition games in Atlanta have drawn a total of only 20,000 persons.

INJURY LESS SERIOUS

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco third baseman Jim Davenport, who was feared lost for the season when he was hit in the hand by a Don Drysdale fastball Saturday, now is expected back in 10 days.

"He will not be out for as long as we had feared," said Giant manager Alvin Dark. "But I don't know yet in what capacity we will use him."

layed and 88.3 for Popovich. Break Titov's Record
Within two hours after Popovich went into orbit at 4:02 a.m. EDT Sunday, Nikolayev broke Gherman Titov's record of 17 orbits of the earth.

The cosmonaut's radio chats with each other marked the first known time any human beings had conversed in space.

News of Popovich's launching into an orbit almost precisely the same as Nikolayev's jolted U.S. space scientists who had thought they were closing in on Russia in the space race. The dial launchings were the third and fourth orbital flights for the Russians. The United States has put two men into three-times-around orbits and two into suborbital space hops.

James A. Chamberlain, director of the U.S. Project Gemini, said in Houston, Tex., that it would be 1964 before the United States could duplicate Russia's dual manned orbit. And then, he said, two men will be in one spacecraft.

In that launching, which also will involve an unmanned spacecraft, the United States will be trying what obviously—Russia did over the weekend: Begin the study of rendezvous techniques by which men can be speeded to the moon from a space platform high above the gravity and atmospheric friction around earth.

Carpenter, Seams Amazed
"Wow!" exclaimed America's most recent orbital astronaut, Scott Carpenter, when told of the Russian achievement.

President Kennedy, vacationing at Boothbay Harbor, Maine, hailed the tandem trip as an "exceptional technical feat." He said he was sure all Americans wished the Soviet spacemen a safe return.

In Washington, three legislators connected with the U.S. space program praised the Russian achievement but saw no need to re-examine current U.S. policy on space exploration.

Today's editions of the Communist party newspaper Pravda, the government newspaper Izvestia and most other Soviet papers were devoted to the spectacular space feat.

Russians regarded the achievement with pride, wonder and pleasure, but did not put on any unusual demonstrations.

GREGORY TAKES RACE

KARLSKROGA, Sweden — Master Gregory of Kansas City, Kan., drove his British Lotus over the 35.923 miles in 42 minutes, 51.32 seconds Sunday to win the Swedish Grand Prix auto race for formula one cars.

TRUMAN SINGS OUT PRAISES FOR HOOVER — "Sing it out" shouts former President Harry Truman as he leads group striking up "Happy Birthday" for 88-year-old former President Herbert Hoover in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Truman, who praised the former President as "one of the greatest men in the world," later joined Mr. Hoover for the dedication of the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library in West Branch, Iowa.
