Christians Gather For The Joyous Triumph Of Easter

By United Press International

Christians throughout the nation gathered together today in solemn vigil for the joyous triumph of Easter.

A quiet reverence marked services from logging hamlets deep in the still forests of New England to sparsely populated towns overlooking the thundering Pacific surf.

The passion over and the promise yet to be fulfilled, Christendom commemorated the ageless word of the Gospel.

"Now in the place where He was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never a man yet laid. And the Sabbath drew on."

Easter- eve vigil rites, including the lighting of new fire and the paschal candle, start early this evening in Chicago's Roman Catholic churches. The first Mass of Easter follows at midnight.

Eastern Orthodox congregations assemble shortly before midnight for resurrection festival liturgies centered on joyous anticipation of the risen Lord.

At Los Angeles, a stain black Holstein cow bedecked with white gardenias and a crown of roses headed a solemn procession down historic Olvera Street in the traditional blessing of the animals.

All religious activity was shrouded with watchful waiting for sunrise, when mighty choirs will burst forth with alleluias.

From hillsides to caves, and even in sanctuaries towering high above deserted city streets, Christians will celebrate the rising of the Lord.

Mountain Services Held

Easter sunrise services will be held for the 27th year atop Bad Knob Mountain in Southern Illinois. A busload of students from Indiana, doing graduate work in agriculture at the University of Missouri, will attend the celebration deep in the heart of the apple and peach country.

The lovely fanfare of a trumpet whistled the morning air at the exact moment of sunrise on Mt. Davidson at San Francisco, with more than 14,000 persons expected to attend Easter services beneath a towering cross.

A sunrise service at Burlingame, Calif., will climax with the whirling of 100 doves of peace around a giant white cross. Each worshiper will bring a flower to the service and place it at the foot of the cross. When the service has ended, he will pick up another flower from the cross and take it with him as a symbol of shared fellowship.

Easter services will also be conducted deep underground in two Missouri caves. The Rev. Lyman Riley will conduct the services at Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo., and in Onondaga Cave, Leasburg, Mo.

Easter Seal Fund Boosted To $798.25

A whopping $72.67 from the Kirksey Elementary School and a $10.00 contribution from the Murray Woman's Club along with donations from many other has raised the Easter Seal fund to $798.25 according to the chairman of the current Easter Seal Sale.

"These contributions are deeply appreciated," James C. Williams, chairman of the drive said today, "especially since so many special drives have taken place during this year."

The Easter Seal Sale is usually the last drive of the spring and it is for this reason that contributions are especially appreciated. Williams continued. Many people are tired of giving by Easter, but crippled children need help just the same, he said.

Ninety per cent of the money received in Calloway County will remain in Kentucky for the help of Kentucky's crippled children.

Fortune In Uncut Diamonds Taken

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Police today sought a thief who stole about $25,000 worth of uncut gems from Rutgers University, which if cut correctly could be worth $100,000.

One of the stones was a six-sided emerald of several hundred karats, for which Rutgers once had been offered $14,000. The stone, about 1.5 inches wide, is the largest emerald ever taken from the Muzo mines in Colombia, South America.

Professor Helgi Johnson of the university Geology Department said "A representative of the mine once jokingly said the stone could be cut into $60,000 worth of emeralds. It wouldn't be fair to quote him as saying that, because he was joking, but the stone was worth a considerable amount of money."

The emerald was a part of the Albert Chester collection, willed to the university 60 years ago by the famed geologist's widow.

Another of the missing stones is an aquamarine worth about $4,000 in its uncut state.

Johnson said he discovered an unknown number of stones missing from mineral cases in the unguarded Rutgers University museum Friday.

"Whoever stole the stones knew what he was taking," Johnson said. "He was very selective and took the mineral specimens with the most value."

He said the thief used a screw driver or chisel on several of the glass cases. The exact amount of the theft will not be known until inventory is taken Monday, he said.

Fire Danger Running High Says Roberts

Fire danger in Calloway County is running exceedingly high, Forester Wade Roberts said today following a rash of fires this week that has burned over several hundred acres of land in the county.

"We have had a fire every day this week and the danger of fire breaking out is higher than I can ever remember," the forester said.

A fire was brought under control about six o'clock last night after having burned for a day and a night and scorching 900 acres of timberland.

The huge fire was located about four miles east of New Concord in the vicinity of Morgan's Boat Dock. The fire actually was sighted on Thursday night and each time that the flame was controlled it broke out of hand again, Roberts stated.

The firefighters used two crawlers clearing a line 14 feet wide but even this did not stop the blaze on the parched timberland. On four separate occasions the fire jumped the cleared line after it appeared the blaze would be contained.

A below average rainfall for the past several months has resulted in both timberland and grassland becoming exceedingly dry and the fire hazard has increased accordingly.

Roberts appealed to all the citizens of Calloway County today to be extra careful with matches and cigarettes. If you must burn trash or brush please be extremely careful and use every precaution to keep the fire under control, the forester asked.

Citizens are reminded that if fire breaks out it may burn for days and over several hundred acres of land consuming everything in its path before it is stopped.

Search Still On For Submarine

By WILLIAM J. EATON

United Press International

ABOARD THE USS HAZELWOOD (SS) — Four scientists will try to transfer to the marine research vessel Atlantis II today to map part of the North Atlantic's floor where the sunken nuclear-powered submarine Thresher may be lying with 129 men aboard.

The tricky transfer in the turbulent ocean will be attempted in a canvas sling across 30 yards of rope stretched from this destroyer to the Atlantis.

Five slingshots of delicate scientific equipment in waterproof containers were moved by this method late Friday. But the sea was too rough for the four men from the Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institution, needed to operate the sensitive echo-sounding gear, to make the "highline" trip.

Sydney Knott, head of the expedition, said they would make the transfer "when the seas are calmer."

Chandler Slashes At Combs Policy

HAZARD, Ky. (AP) — Former Gov. A. B. Chandler, who campaigned in Breathitt, Knott and Perry counties today, has predicted that Gov. Bert Combs will reduce the whiskey tax assessment for the second time since 1962 after the May 28 primary.

Chandler, who made the prediction in a speech at Stanford Friday was scheduled to speak at Jackson and Hindman today before addressing a rally at Hazard tonight.

Chandler, who seeks nomination in the Democratic primary to a third term as governor, said that Combs cancelled the order for reducing the whiskey tax assessment from $28 to $27 a barrel because, "He knew the public would slaughter him."

But he predicted that Combs would restore the cut after the primary election because "His (Combs) commitment to reduce the tax is a firm one."

Chandler said Combs put the whiskey tax in 1962 without a public hearing and that the reduction was twice as much as the current reduction.

Early Season Play Indicates New Rule Achieving Purpose

By FRED DOWN

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Siebers Slams Homer

The evidence of the first five days of the major league baseball season indicates that the new strike zone rule is achieving both objectives for which it was instituted.

The rule—enlarging the size of the strike zone—was designed to improve the effectiveness of pitchers and to speed up games. The idea was that the pitchers were becoming homer-punchy and that long games were resulting in unfavorable fan reaction.

Statistics Back Objectives The first five days of a six-month long season represent only a tiny sample, of course, but the statistics speak loud and clear at the moment.

Pitchers already have pitched five shutouts and 13 one-run games. They have achieved one one-hitter, three two-hitters and two three-hitters.

There have been only two three-hour or longer games played in the National League and none in the American League.

The 1963 pattern of well-pitched, briskly played games was continued in the only two games played on Good Friday — the Kansas City Athletics beating the Minnesota Twins, 6-0, in a two-hour and 19-minute American League game and the Houston Colts defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-1, in a 1 1/2-hour, three-hour-and-nine minute National League contest.

Ed Rakow, 14-17 last season, pitched a two-hitter for the Athletics who scored their first victory of the season after two losses to the New York Yankees. The slim right-hander gave up a lead-off double to Lenny Green in the first inning and a scratch single by Vic Power in the eighth. It was the first two-hitter he ever pitched in the majors although he did pitch a one-hitter last August 26.

Siebers Slams Homer

Norm Siebers provided the big blow for Rakow in the first inning when he hit a three-run homer off the left field foul pole. The blow came off Jack Kralick with Gino Cimoli and Ed Charles on base. Chuck Essegian's two-run single was the key blow of another three-run uprising by the As in the seventh inning.

Dick Farrell, who last September dealt the Dodgers one of the crucial defeats of the NL season, fumbled a four-hitter and struck out 11 to give the Colts their first win of the young season. Tommy Davis made three of the Dodger hits including a single that led to Los Angeles' 1-0 lead in the top of the ninth inning.

Pinch-hitter Carl Warwick singled home the tying run for the Colts in the bottom of the ninth, however, and they went on to win the game in the 12th on Howie Goss' single with the bases filled. Ed Roebuck, who pitched the last two and two-thirds innings, was the losing pitcher.

The races resume in earnest Saturday with Baltimore at New York, Detroit at Cleveland, Chicago at Los Angeles, Minnesota at Kansas City and Boston at Washington in the American League, and San Francisco at Chicago, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, New York at Milwaukee and Los Angeles at Houston in the National League.

The races resume in earnest Saturday with Baltimore at New York, Detroit at Cleveland, Chicago at Los Angeles, Minnesota at Kansas City and Boston at Washington in the American League, and San Francisco at Chicago, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, New York at Milwaukee and Los Angeles at Houston in the National League.

The 1963 pattern of well-pitched, briskly played games was continued in the only two games played on Good Friday — the Kansas City Athletics beating the Minnesota Twins, 6-0, in a two-hour and 19-minute American League game and the Houston Colts defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-1, in a 1 1/2-hour, three-hour-and-nine minute National League contest.

Ed Rakow, 14-17 last season, pitched a two-hitter for the Athletics who scored their first victory of the season after two losses to the New York Yankees. The slim right-hander gave up a lead-off double to Lenny Green in the first inning and a scratch single by Vic Power in the eighth. It was the first two-hitter he ever pitched in the majors although he did pitch a one-hitter last August 26.

Siebers Slams Homer

Norm Siebers provided the big blow for Rakow in the first inning when he hit a three-run homer off the left field foul pole. The blow came off Jack Kralick with Gino Cimoli and Ed Charles on base. Chuck Essegian's two-run single was the key blow of another three-run uprising by the As in the seventh inning.

Dick Farrell, who last September dealt the Dodgers one of the crucial defeats of the NL season, fumbled a four-hitter and struck out 11 to give the Colts their first win of the young season. Tommy Davis made three of the Dodger hits including a single that led to Los Angeles' 1-0 lead in the top of the ninth inning.

Pinch-hitter Carl Warwick singled home the tying run for the Colts in the bottom of the ninth, however, and they went on to win the game in the 12th on Howie Goss' single with the bases filled. Ed Roebuck, who pitched the last two and two-thirds innings, was the losing pitcher.
