Calloway Loses Last Night; Semis, Finals To Be Today

Calloway County High was knocked out of the Calloway County Invitational Tournament last night by Carlisle County 88-72 and Ballard County reached the semi-finals by downing Symsonia 71-62.

Sedalia will meet Mayfield at noon today and at 2:00 p.m. Ballard and Carlisle will tangle in the lower bracket play. The championship match will be held at 9:00 tonight and the consolation play will begin at 7:00 tonight.

Ballard Memorial and Symsonia met in the first game last night and Symsonia moved into a first quarter lead of 19-14. The lead switched at the half with Ballard holding a one point 30-29 margin.

Ballard led again at the three-quarter mark 47-43 and in a late rally pulled ahead to win.

Harold Hicks sharp shooter for Symsonia pressed Ballard, but the Bombers managed to pull away to win.

The game could have gone either way, for the most of the game, but in the final stanza Symsonia was in the position of having to fight for the ball which caused their commit more fouls than usual. This gave Ballard an added advantage which they put to good use.

The Bombers of Ballard County surged ahead at the third quarter as Neil Giles dumped points through the net, but Symsonia closed the gap in the fourth quarter, only to have Ballard pull away again for keeps.

Giles hit the net for 26 points with Rollins netting 14, Matlock 12 and Canada 19.

Hicks hit from all over the court last night, pouring in 24 points for the losers. The Symsonia cause was aided by Dodson with 10, Simmons with 18 and Heath with 8.

The second game of the night was a thriller also, as the Lakers of Calloway County pressed hard to win, but were found short on the final count.

A one point difference separated Carlisle and Calloway at the end of the first quarter, but Calloway was holding a 10-point deficit at the half time 41-31.

The Lakers came back in the third canto to close the margin by one point, and at the three-quarter mark they were on the short end of a 61-54 score. In the third quarter surge Sammy Housden and Phil Lavender poured the points through in closing the gap.

The final quarter of the Carlisle game was a thriller, Carlisle with its lead formed the Lakers to foul, but many good shots by both teams highlighted the final canto play.

Carlisle dumped in 27 points while Calloway dropped in 14.

Summers paced the Carlisle Countians to victory with 23 points with his teammate Thomason next with 21, Davis got 16 and King 15.

Three Lakers moved into double column figures Housden with 22, Lavender with 19 and Patterson with 10.

Bennett Is Coordinator Of Area

PARIS, Tenn. (AP) — J. Gordon Bennett of Paris, site planner for the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) Division of Reservoir Properties, has been named planning coordinator for the 170,000-acre "Land-Between-the-Lakes" recreation area effective January 6. It was learned today.

Bennett, a former landscape architect for the National Park Service, has been site planner for TVA for 17 years and helped plan 22 national and state parks in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi.

Paul Russell of Webb, Miss., has been named to replace Bennett as site planner for TVA.

Bennett said TVA plans to spend $33 million during the next five years on the area located between Kentucky Lake and the new Barkley Lake on the Cumberland River.

TVA announced Friday work would get underway this spring on the facilities with about 250 persons expected to be employed during 1964.

Included in the area in west Tennessee and Kentucky is the Kentucky Woodland Wildlife Refuge, operated by the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Three New Divisions Are Created By Governor Breathitt

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt Friday approved the creation of three new divisions of investment management positions in the state Finance Department.

Reorganization of the department, recommended by commissioner L. Felix Joyner, was approved "in order to properly carry out more efficiently its functions," Breathitt said.

Joyner named former Finance Commissioner David H. Pritchett, a native of Madisonville, to the new post of deputy commissioner for investment management in the state Finance Department.

Traffic Deaths Seared To Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic deaths on the nation's streets and highways soared to a record high during the first 11 months of the year, the National Safety Council said today.

The safety council said 39,280 persons died in traffic accidents through November. The fatality rate was 54 deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles.

The November toll of 4,070 also set a record, jumping 11 per cent from last year and eclipsing the previous peak in November 1936.

Among cities with more than one million population, Los Angeles remained in first place with the lowest registered vehicle death rate, Chicago was second, Philadelphia third, New York City fourth and Detroit fifth.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A woman found dead in a parking lot here Friday night was identified by police today as Mary Louise Haley, 34, of Louisville.

Her body was discovered at about 9 p.m. after police had received an anonymous telephone call reporting that it was in the South End parking lot.

Police said the only apparent injury was a bruise on the right foot, but it appeared the body had been dragged a short distance. They believed she had been thrown from a car in the lot about 8 p.m.

Russia May Begin Regular Air Service

By ROBERT J. SERLING United Press International

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians are ready to begin negotiations for regular flights from Russia to America, it was reported today. Naheeb Halaby, FAA chief, indicated today that the technical problems involved, could be worked out in five or six months. These consist principally of making sure that the Russian state airline, Aeroflot, will be able to navigate safely in the congested airspace around New York's Kennedy (formerly Idlewild) Airport and use U.S. navigational aids.

The FAA chief said he told Aeroflot officials their planes must satisfy New York noise abatement standards and be equipped to fly safely within the American air traffic control system. He said the Soviet Union is behind this country in development of the latest electronic navigation aids.

Halaby said that if an agreement is signed, it probably would call for two flights a week in the summer by both Aeroflot and Pan American World Airways, with the schedule reduced to one flight a week by each airline in the winter months.

Use Giant Airliner

The Russians are planning to use their giant prop-jet TU114, the world's biggest commercial airliner with a capacity of 224 passengers and a gross takeoff weight of 850,000 pounds. This compares with the long-range version of the U.S. Boeing 707 which carries 187 passengers and grosses 314,000 pounds for a transoceanic flight. The TU114, which is not a pure jet like the 707, is much slower and shorter-ranged.

"They're even willing to change the props on the 114, which are pointed and create considerable noise," Halaby added. "I asked Aeroflot's top official why they were so eager and his reply was: 'To make profits.'"

Kentucky Travel Council Division Starts Campaign

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The Kentucky Travel Council division of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce has announced a concentrated campaign during the first two weeks of January to "sell Kentucky" to selected groups in other states, such as travel editors, automobile club counselors, and local officials.

The travel promotion mission will be carried out by groups of "Travelin' Colonels," Kentucky businessmen wearing Kentucky Colonel costumes.

The group will be headed by Malcolm Mason, Lexington, vice chairman of the Kentucky Travel Council, and will originate from the central Kentucky area.

It will visit Cincinnati, Middletown, Hamilton, Columbus, Chillicothe, Washington Court House, Dayton and Toledo, Ohio; Detroit, Mich., and other points between those cities.

Husband Shot After Attack On Wife

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — Mrs. Myrtle Dean, who told police she shot her husband after he threw dishes, puppies and a cat at her, was charged with murder Friday.

Mrs. Dean said she shot Jude Dean, 49, with the same .32 caliber pistol which he had fired at her.

Hamilton County Sheriff Frank Newell quoted the woman as saying in a written confession that she and her husband "had been fighting for a day or two."

She said her husband fell to the floor after breaking dishes and throwing the animals at her. She said she then grabbed the pistol and shot him twice in the chest as he lay on the floor.

Necessity For Peace Felt By Major Powers, Secretary Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk predicted in an interview released today that "1964 will be a period of probing for the possibilities of peace" between East and West.

My impression is that there is a certain soberness in the attitude of the principal governments of the world; that there is a recognition that crises such as the missile crisis in Cuba in October 1962 must be avoided if possible," Rusk said.

He declared that one of the "more interesting aspects" of the recent NATO meeting in Paris "was the feeling that we ought to continue to explore possibilities of further agreement with the Soviet Union."

Rusk's remarks were made in the course of a lengthy interview with a Japanese broadcaster for release in that country today. The interview was recorded last Tuesday.

The secretary warned that Berlin, Germany, Cuba, South Viet Nam were "still explosive points that have to be dealt with and managed." He said, however, that he thought there was "a general feeling on the part of the peoples of the world that somehow a way to peace

Military Spending Comes In For Review, Close Scrutiny

by Alvin Spivak United Press International

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson today strengthened his drive for federal economy especially in military spending and indicated he wants a close consultative relationship with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Johnson said Friday he had discussed almost five to one in favor of the action.

In his sixth on-the-record news conference, Johnson also announced:

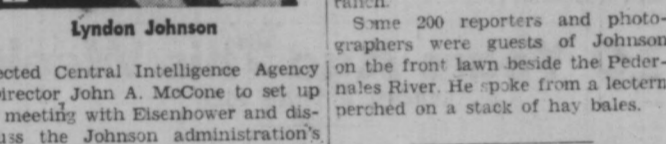

He will meet Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos at Los Angeles and Palm Springs, Calif., Feb. 21-22.

—Teodoro Moscoso had been relieved of duties coordinating the Alliance for Progress. Thomas C. Mann, recently designated assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, will assume the responsibility. Moscoso, with the rank of ambassador, will be a special advisor to Mann.

—The President disclosed that cabinet departments had cut their budget requests by $731 million and 10,000 jobs only three days after he told them to trim their spending plans. He said federal employment dropped largely through attrition, by more than 1,000 jobs in November. He noted a 3,500-job drop in federal employment since November, 1962, but said the record of eliminating non-essential jobs must be improved.

Johnson answered questions by newsmen at a barbecue at the LBJ ranch.

Some 200 reporters and photographers were guests of Johnson on the front lawn beside the Pedernales River. He spoke from a lectern perched on a stack of hay bales.

Lyndon Johnson directed Central Intelligence Agency Director John A. McCone to set up a meeting with Eisenhower and discuss the Johnson administration's economy drive.

Cassius Wins Title Over Sonny Liston

By JACK CUDDY, UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Cassius Marcellus Clay, boxing's golden gasser, defeated heavy-weight champion Sonny Liston in their first head-to-head contest for the Ring Magazine's title "fighter of the year" that publication announced today.

Despite Liston's remarkable repeat first-round knockout over ex-champion Floyd Patterson, Liston finished second to young Clay in the ring-staff's voting because of the lively lift that Cassius gave the fight game as he lapped and laughed his way to the challenger's role.

Clay also was credited with participating in the "fight of the year" because of his victory over Doug Jones on March 13 before a turn-out crowd of 18,722 at Madison Square Garden as he "drove Doug out of his path to a heavyweight championship shot" in their thrilling and controversial bout.

Despite those accolades for the "Louisville Lip," the magazine admitted frankly "Clay is not considered likely to win the championship from Liston at Miami on Feb. 25."

In Clay's other two fights this year, he stopped Charlie Powell 3 at Pittsburgh on Jan. 24 and climbed off the canvas on June 18 to knock out England's Henry Cooper 5.

Champion Liston was credited with participating in the "round of the year"—that 210 of the first round in which he knocked out ex-champion Patterson at Las Vegas, Nev., July 22. It proved that Sonny's title-winning first-round knockout Patterson in 1962 was no fluke.

No Deal On Hornung Is The Report

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Rooney, general manager of the Pittsburgh Steelers, today branded as "purely speculation" reports that defensive end and placekicker Lou Michaels was involved in a trade that would bring halfback Paul Hornung to Pittsburgh from the Green Bay Packers.

Rooney said a local sportscaster reported last week that there was more to come in surprising trade which sent the Steelers' flanker back back Buddy Dial to the Dallas Cowboys for the rights to University of Texas All-America tackle Scott Appleton.

The Steeler executive said a local television station expanded on the report Wednesday, contending that there was a three-way deal between the Packers, Steelers and Cowboys.

The report was that the Dial-Appleton deal was the first segment of the trade. The report said if Dallas would send offensive end Frank Clark to Green Bay, the Steelers would then send Michaels to the Packers and get Hornung. Hornung was suspended from the National Football League last year for gambling and it has not been determined whether he will be permitted to play next year.

Rooney said the Dial deal was a separate trade. "Any other deals to be made will be apart from the Dial deal," he said. "The talk about Hornung is purely speculation." Rooney said that Packer Coach Vince Lombardi also has denied the report.

Loyola And Michigan Fall To Give Kentucky An Opportunity To Move Into Top Cage Spot

By GEORGE C. LANGFORD, United Press International

Loyola of Chicago and Michigan, the two top-ranking college basketball teams in the nation, fell victim to the lost art of defense—giving coach Hank Iba a couple of extra reasons to smile Saturday.

Iba has been head coach at Oklahoma State for 30 years and in an age of astronomical scoring he has been the last titan of the defensive game.

"Give me a team that can play defense and I'll give you a winner," Iba's strategy has worked for him nearly 700 times. Friday night his Cowboys executed it as usual, 73-61, over Iowa State in the Big Eight tournament, but the surprise came when two other teams applied it.

Little-regarded Georgetown (D. C.), held Loyola, the No. 1 team in the nation, to 58 points (almost half its 102-points-per-game average) for the most shocking upset of the young season, 69-58, in the Quaker City affair at Philadelphia.

Press Rattles Michigan Fifth-ranked UCLA, unbeaten in eight games, rattled second-rated Michigan with a full-court press and deft ball thievery to race past the Wolverines, 96-80, in the semifinals of the Los Angeles Classic.

UCLA's speed and finesse dumped Michigan from the unbeaten ranks. Gail Goodrich scored 30 points for the UCLA, who never trailed in the contest.

The UCLA fast break turned the game into a rout early in the final session and its defense stopped high-scoring Cazzie Russell with 11 points. Sub Oliver Durden led the Wolverines with 25 points.

Others Do Better The other two members of the top ten in action Friday might were more successful.

Vanderbilt, No. 8, knocked Memphis State from the unbeaten class; 85-79, for its eighth consecutive victory this season in its own invitational tourney.

New York University, No. 10, pulled away from a smaller Yale team in the first half and scored a 96-82 victory in a consolation-round game in the Los Angeles Classic. Happy Hairston scored 27 for the Violets.

Southern California won the other consolation game, 81-65, over West Virginia.

Illinois entered the final round of the Los Angeles Classic against UCLA with a 82-76 win over Pittsburgh. Skip Thoren's 29-point scoring and rebounding paced the Illini.

Undeclared St. Bonaventure edged past Bob Cousy-coached Boston College, 77-74; LaSalle conquered Northwestern 91-69, and Drake trimmed Temple, 58-54, in other opening round games of the Quaker City Tournament.

Sets New Record San Francisco established new scoring records in whipping Loyola (Calif.) in the West Coast Athletic Conference playoff, 102-67, and University of Pacific beat Pepperdine, 74-60, in consolation games.

Kansas defeated Colorado in the Big Eight Tournament, 74-67; top-seeded Wichita beat Texas A&M, 70-56; and Oklahoma City upset and Miami outlasted Army 79-71 in the Orange Bowl Tournament at Miami Beach; and Evansville, the top-ranked small college team, slugged Columbia 96-60 and Arizona came from behind to defeat Maryland, 57-54, in the Evansville Holiday. South Carolina romped over Western Kentucky, 75-60, in the Vanderbilt Invitational.

Tense New Western RIM of the RANGE by Archie Joscelyn

Copyright 1963 by Archie Joscelyn. Distributed by Klug Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED may not like and the devil of it is don't like it myself. Johnny Masolin, the range foreman, and others at the wagon wheel riders turned with disbelieving eyes and anger as the ranch owner, Howard Deane, told them of his decision after the roundup was over. He was going to sell his cattle and try to make a profit on his dry range with sheep. He believed neighboring cattlemen, who believed sheep ruined the cattle range. The wagon wheel crew expected trouble at the sale, and were not of one mind about whether they wanted to be in the middle of it.

Johnny Masolin was first to have to make up his mind. Finding the range in search of stray steers, he was the target for a rifle shot. He was moving on warily the wall of a baby drew him to an old abandoned cabin. There he found the baby and a young woman...

CHAPTER 4
WITH a sense of shock, Johnny Masolin stared down at the girl in the bank. It was Myra, the daughter of Old Man McGinnis, who had a small spread of his own just out of town. At least he'd had it until a short time ago, when he'd died—some said of a broken heart.

That was hard to believe of so hard-shelled a man, but it might be true. He'd been harsh and overly protective of his daughter, perhaps because she loved her but hardly knew how to care for a girl-child.

Nearly a year before, she had run away to town and had taken a job in the Mercantile, clerking, against her father's wishes.

Like most of the men on the range, Johnny had found excuses to drop into the Mercantile more frequently than in the days before Myra had gone to work there. She had been friendly with him, as with others, but never more than that. It hadn't taken long to understand why. She was deeply infatuated with Leavitt Vascom, the worthless nephew of Old Barney.

Johnny had liked her, even as he'd felt sorry for her. Old Man McGinnis had warned the Vascoms that he'd empty a double-barreled shotgun, loaded with buckshot, into any one of them who dared set foot on his land. That, probably, had been the reason Myra had left home and refused to return. A woman in love could see no evil in the object of her affections.

Later, both she and Leavitt Vascom had disappeared. It had been rumored that they had eloped. And McGinnis had died—perhaps of a broken heart.

And it was to this that Johnny saw her lips move and bent lower. Her voice was hardly more than a whisper.

"John! Thank heaven you've come!"

He dropped on his knees, filled with a sense of outrage, also a feeling of helplessness.

"Myra! What's happened?"

"Could you get me a drink?" she asked. "And the baby—it's starving."

"I'll get you some water," he promised. "And I'll try to do something for the baby," he added desperately. He hurried to the spring, filled a bucket and returned.

He found a cup and held the water to her lips. She drank slowly, swallowing with difficulty, but her eyes expressed her gratitude as she sank back.

"Thanks, John," she breathed. "That was good. You were always good—always kind—"

She broke off, coughing, and if he had not already known it, he would have been sure that she was desperately ill. "How long since you've had anything to eat?" he demanded.

"I don't know," she seemed to consider. "I can't remember. That doesn't matter now. But the baby—she must be starving."

He nodded and went out again. For the next few minutes he worked with a sort of repressed desperation, gathering wood, building a fire in the old stove.

JOHNNY heated water in a battered kettle, emptying a can of tomatoes into it, along with chunks of bacon. It would make a soup in the least possible time, not too strong, yet reasonably nourishing.

He found the can of condensed milk, thankful now that it had gone unopened. After rinsing the tomato can, he poured some milk into it, diluting it with water, and warmed it. That would be the best he could contrive for the baby.

He saw a small, empty bottle among the few articles which passed for dishes and household utensils in the makeshift cupboard. He washed it with hot water, pondering, then hurried to his duffel bag again. He brought out a new, unused pair of fancy riding gloves, sliced off one finger, cut a small hole in the end, and pulled it over the neck of the bottle.

The baby was fretting again, crying, a wall of hunger and despair. He picked her up, blanket and all. Clumsily he cradled her in one arm, holding the bottle with the other, thrusting the makeshift nipple into her mouth. Her wall rose louder, then subsided, and all at once, as some of the warm milk ran into her mouth, she began eating hungrily. She choked a few times, by which he guessed that it flowed too freely, but by tipping it back, drawing fresh walls of outrage, he managed fairly well.

She ate with a sort of starving desperation, and her eyes, very blue, came open and fixed on his face. She seemed to be

Dear Abby . . .

Pay The Piper!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The daughter of my husband's boss was married recently and someone in the office said a collection should be taken up for a wedding present. My husband said that since we were not invited to the wedding, and didn't socialize with the boss, he didn't want to chip in on the present. The girl collecting the money said he was entitled to his opinion, and she let it go at that. Well, it seems a gift was bought for $90, and through some mistake, my husband's name got on the card. He got a nice personal "thank you" from the boss himself, but he didn't tell the boss that his name got on the card by mistake, and he didn't deserve any thanks. The office people think my husband should kick in with five dollars since he got credit for being on the gift. What do you think?

DEAR GANG: It wasn't the cold shoulder.

DEAR READERS: The Houston Police Department prepared Ten Easy Rules for Raising a Delinquent. And here they are:

1. Begin at infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living.
2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. This will make him think he's cute.
3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21, and then let him "decide for himself."
4. Pick up everything he leaves lying around—books, shoes, clothes. DO everything for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.
5. Quarrel frequently in his presence. In this way he will not be too shocked when the home is broken later.
6. Give a child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as long as you had them?
7. Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. Denial may lead to harmful frustrations.
8. Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. They are all prejudiced against your child.
9. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying "I never could do anything with him."
10. Prepare for a life of grief. You are bound to have it.

Mobility In Churchgoing Exemplified By President Johnson; Denomination Line Cut

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In his churchgoing habits, President Lyndon B. Johnson exemplifies the "mobility" which is characteristic of U.S. Protestantism.

In the jargon of religious sociologists, "mobility" refers to the widespread American tendency to move casually from one church to another, ignoring denominational lines.

President Johnson has exhibited it to such a degree that it is difficult to pin an accurate denominational label on him, or to identify any particular local congregation as "the President's church."

Officially, he is still a member of the First Christian Church of Johnson City, Tex., a small white frame church near his ranch which he has attended off and on since boyhood.

It has a congregation of 70 members, all of whom Johnson knows by name. It does not have a full-time minister, but services are conducted weekly by a lay preacher, Roy Akin.

"Mr. Johnson takes an active interest in our church, and contributes to its support," Akin told a UPI reporter. "He is a devout man with strong convictions."

Attends At Austin

When he is staying at his LBJ Ranch, Johnson sometimes drives into Austin, Tex., on Sunday mornings to attend services at the Central Christian Church, which has a congregation of 1,100 persons.

Its pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Barclay, described the President as "a very religious man who has a deep faith."

Dr. Barclay added that Johnson is "not an every-Sunday churchgoer."

"His chief expression of religion is his service to his fellow man through his government work," said the Austin minister. "He has a passionate devotion to this."

Both the First Christian Church of Johnson City and the Central Christian Church of Austin are affiliated with the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ), a major Protestant body which has 5,000 local congregations and more than 1,800,000 members in all parts of the United States. It is particularly strong in Texas and in the South and Midwest.

The Disciples of Christ movement grew out of the great religious revival which swept America in the early 19th century. It should not be confused with the Churches of Christ, another large Protestant group with a similar name.

Share With Baptists

Disciples share with Baptists an insistence on baptism by total immersion. They observe the Lord's Supper every Sunday. Like most Protestants, they lay great stress on the Bible, and believe that each church member should be free to interpret it for himself. The only time of Abraham Lincoln.

The Rev. William MacN. Baxter, rector of St. Mark's, probably has the closest pastoral relationship to Johnson of any Washington clergyman. He acknowledged, in reply to a reporter's question, that Johnson has taken a more active interest in religion since the burdens of the presidency descended on his shoulders," said the Rev. Mr. Baxter. "He is presently the most powerful man in the world, and in this perspective, he knows himself to be someone in need. He is open and humble and deeply serious about seeking God's help."

When he participates in public worship in the nation's capital, it is usually at an Episcopal church. His wife, Lady Bird, and both of their daughters are Episcopalians.

When Johnson was in the Senate, his wife and daughters regularly attended services at St. Mark's Episcopal Church on Capitol Hill, and he sometimes accompanied them.

While he was vice president, Johnson and his wife sometimes attended Washington Cathedral, the headquarters of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington. The cathedral was close to their home in the Spring Valley section of northwest Washington, and their younger daughter, Lucy Baines, is enrolled in its school for girls.

Every Sunday
Since his inauguration as President, Johnson has attended church every Sunday, alternating between St. Mark's on Capitol Hill and St. John's Episcopal Church on Lafayette Square, opposite the White House. St. John's is the historic old "church of presidents" which has served as a place of worship for White House occupants since the

TV CAMEOS: Victor Borge Droll Dane Works Up Yearly Video Show

By ED MISURELL
"THIS is a show I've wanted to do for a long time. It has simplicity, intimacy and lots of music," said Victor Borge the other day as he sat in a midtown New York rehearsal hall.

The droll Dane between puffs on a cigarette holder clenched between his teeth, continued in light vein, "The show will be called—let me see—oh, yes, 'Victor Borge at Carnegie Hall' and it will be telecast by ABC on Thursday, Jan. 2, from 9 to 10 p.m. EST. End of commercial."

Tenor Sergio Franchi (top) and Victor Borge rehearse for the latter's ABC-TV show, "Victor Borge at Carnegie Hall."

"We will have more music than on the previous yearly specials I've done. I hope to achieve what might be called 'new sound.' That means we will have no big, blaring orchestra. Nor will there be any big production numbers."

The pianist and comedian said he was especially pleased about doing the show from Carnegie Hall. "Last year I did my show from the new Philharmonic Hall in Lincoln Center, but they are getting outrageous as far as costs go. When you bring in a TV program they expect a tremendous donation."

"SINCE we kid concert music and artists on our show, what better place could I find to do this than from Carnegie Hall, the hall so revered by artists and music lovers for so many years. I will have everything I need there as opposed to doing the show from a studio.

"I'll have a large audience to play in the proper atmosphere. Our cameras can be placed strategically to pick up realistic backgrounds as we perform before them. This authentic atmosphere will heighten the comedy portions of the program."

The format of the show and the dialogue that will be heard has been written solely by Borge. "If it flops," he said with a quick smile, "I will be completely responsible for it. But I think it will be a hit. When you do one show a year, everything—the music, comedy and situations—must be unique, do it with our show."

Participating in the musical melange will be guest star Sergio Franchi, internationally known opera, concert hall and recording tenor, and pianist Leonard Hambro of the New York Philharmonic. Musical accompaniment will be supplied by a 16-voice choir directed by Eugene Lawell, and a chamber orchestra conducted by Hambro.

Borge pointed out that he doesn't look at TV as a prime medium for him. "I employ it when I feel I am good and ready," he said, "and when I think the audience is ready for me. Comedy has to be true, humor has to be true. You magnify it and put a twist to it here and there and then it is funny. It can't be forced."

During most of the year, Borge makes concert tours. "This year," he said, "I've given some 230 performances, not including benefits. These appearances each run an average of two and a half hours. I never do the show the same way twice. If I did, it would lose its spontaneity. The basic procedure is the same, naturally, but if the audience responds to a situation, I instinctively elaborate on it in a comedic vein."

Denmark-born Borge came to the U.S. in April 1940, shortly after the Nazis declared war on his native land. His satiric wit on stage would have won him an engagement in a concentration camp if he hadn't fled.

A one-shot appearance on Bing Crosby's radio show delighted the Old Groaner that he brought Borge back for 53 more weeks. In succeeding years he became a naturalized U.S. citizen and toured the country widely.

Of particular note in his career was his one-man show "Comedy in Music," which opened on Broadway. It ran for a fantastic $49 performances within a three-year period.

When he isn't performing, Borge lives on a 450-acre farm in Southbury, Conn., with his wife, Sanna, 19; twins Ronald and Janet, 18; Victor Bernhard, 9, and Fredrikke, 8.

Ever the comedian, Borge concluded, "Sometimes I forget their names, but they don't always come when I call them anyway."
