SENATE PASSES INCOME TAX CUT BILL

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Things look good for Murray State. If they can just hurdle two tough ones, Tennessee Tech and Morehead State, the OVC crown will be theirs.

They could probably lose one and still do it; but it would be nice to "turkey out" on the series.

The lot where the Calloway County Lumber Company used to be has been all cleared off and a bulldozer was at work yesterday smoothing things down.

We are glad that Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Vaughn were not injured any more seriously than they were. They hit an icy spot on the highway and overturned near London, Kentucky.

Jailor Clyde Steele is back on the job, again. Had the flu.

W. D. Shoemaker says get your license plates now.

Middle-aged son built a cage yesterday. Asked him what he was going to put in it and he replied that he didn't know yet, but he would find something. He will too.

Teacher: "Name three collective nouns."
Pupil: "Dust pan, waste basket and vacuum cleaner."

You're a modern person if after meeting a crisis face to face—you take a pill.

"Be careful of the books you read, as of the company you keep; for habits and character will be as much influenced by the former as by the latter," Paxton Hood.

A peasant in a small Russian village went to the polls on election day and was given a sealed envelope and told to drop it in the box. He began tearing the envelope open, and the Soviet official shouted: "What do you think you are doing?"

The peasant said he wanted to see for whom he was voting. "Are you crazy?" exclaimed the official. "This is a secret ballot."

Murky Waters Of Lake Give Up Evidence Of Tragic Crash

By I. J. VIDACOVICH
United Press International
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Bodies of the main fuselage and the mystery of an Eastern Air Lines DC8 jetliner crash that carried 58 persons to their deaths were sought today in the murky waters of Lake Pontchartrain.

The four-engine craft made a pre-dawn dive into the lake Tuesday, just minutes after reporting "okay" from take-off at the New Orleans Airport.

One whole but battered body and scattered debris were recovered by rescuers. Several human skulls and other parts of bodies were found.

No information on the cause was reported by William Lamb, spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). He emphasized that the main wreckage had not been found. Lamb called a news conference for 12 noon EST today.

Vanished From Radar
The Mexico City-to-New York flight took off without incident on the second leg of its trip. Just five minutes later, it vanished from radar screens and the alarm was sounded. Searchers converged on a north shore, snake-infested swamp area before an oil slick, then wreckage were sighted four miles from the shore of the 28-by-40 mile lake.

A chatty letter, a check on a Massachusetts insurance company, a first grade reader, parts of wreckage and pieces of bodies were found.

The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) sent 20 investigators to the scene to determine cause of the first crash at New Orleans International Airport in 20 years.

The FBI sent a disaster team to identify the victims.

Died On Impact
The 51 passengers and seven crewmembers apparently died from the impact. There was no evidence of fire or an explosion.

Lamb was asked about evidence of a bombing, anonymous telephone calls, or any passengers with large sums of insurance but answered: "We have no information to all of these questions."

A tape of the final control tower to plane conversation showed the last words to earth were: "EAL-304 okay."

Air traffic control men worked feverishly to contact the plane, but there was only silence.

Average For Tuesday Takes Hike Of $2.04
The average for Tuesday sales of Type 33, dark fired tobacco, rose $2.04 over the Monday sales of $175.34 with the average being $197.38. The average for Monday was $184.02 which was still above the average of other area markets.

The season average for the Murray market through the four weeks' period ending last Friday is $197.10 with the total pounds sold through that day being 5,661,824 for $2,096,631.72, Barnett said.

Government Takes Too Much Credit Says Ellington

PARIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Former Gov. Buford Ellington said here Tuesday that government agencies take too much credit for progress which results from free enterprise.

Ellington told a Kiwanis Club industry appreciation meeting that the principal factors behind industrial growth and progress were "proper businesslike government, good educational systems, churches and church communities, recreation facilities, transportation and people."

"I am not willing to accept that idea that all of this progress is the result of government agencies," he said. "I suggest that competing taxpaying business, which believes in the free enterprise system has created what we know today."

Ellington, a possible candidate for a U. S. Senate race, said he did not know of an appropriate term to describe his political philosophy.

"I've never given a hoot whether anyone thought I was a conservative or liberal," he said. "I've always wanted to be an American."

Easter Seal Drive Will Begin March First Over State

The 1964 Easter Seal Campaign, benefiting thousands of crippled children in Kentucky, will be conducted by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children from March 1 through March 29, Easter Sunday.

Contributions to the annual drive help support a statewide program of services, including hospitalization, out-patient therapy, and resident camping. The program provides for children crippled by accidents, birth defects or diseases, such as polio or cerebral palsy.

Approximately 450,000 letters containing Easter Seals will be mailed this year to residents in all of Kentucky's 120 counties. In addition to the mail appeal, volunteer workers throughout the state plan to hold special events to raise funds to support the Society's programs.

The 1964 Easter Seal design features the stylized Easter lily, official emblem of the Easter Seal Society, in alternating green and orange against a white background. "Easter Seals" is lettered across the top and "Help Crippled Children" is in two lines at the bottom.

The slogan this year is "The first step is yours—your gift to Easter Seals."

Last year the Society helped 4,542 Kentuckians—4,109 of whom were children, reported Dr. Kelly Thompson, Bowling Green, state campaign chairman.

"The number of physically handicapped in the state is becoming greater each year," he said. "Our goal is to provide more of the necessary treatment for more crippled children in Kentucky."

Bro. Jay Lockhart, minister of the Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Calloway County 4-H Teen Club held Monday at 7 p. m. at the City Hall.

The subject of the interesting talk by Bro. Lockhart was the "Parent-Student Relationship."

Glen Sims, assistant county agent, discussed the resource project which is on the development of the area between the lakes.

The group planned a tour of the area for Saturday, February 29, for members of the project and also for those who wish to join. They will tour the Wildlife Refuge, Old Iron Furnace, Pearl Forest, and have lunch at the Holiday Restaurant.

For the best essay written about the development of the area, a trip to Fontana Village will be awarded to a boy and a girl.

Miss Carolyn Murdock, president, presided and Miss Marsha Hendon read the minutes and called the roll. Miss Connie Evans led the 4-H pledge and Miss Nancy Scull read from the Bible.

The Talent Show committee appointed included Connie Evans, Johnny Kelso, Suzanne McDougal, and David Watson.

Or if the mischief-making crew
Could be reduced to one or two
And they were painted red or blue,
That everyone could know them."

Doctors and nurses were feeding him intravenously.

York was reported "alert" as compared to a semi-comatose state when he was admitted here for the same ailment several weeks ago.

His physician, Dr. Guy Pinckney, however, said York was "not doing well."

President Expected To Sign Bill Late This Afternoon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today passed decisively and sent to President Johnson a landmark $11.5 billion tax cut bill that means an average $4-to-$5 weekly paycheck boost for millions. And it'll begin showing up next week.

The sweeping election-year tax reduction—biggest in U. S. history—for individuals and corporations was whisked to the White House where Johnson was expected to sign it quickly, possibly by late afternoon.

If signed today, the benefits of the bill will be felt starting with checks received next Wednesday.

Payroll withholding rates will drop eight days after it is signed from 16 per cent to 14 per cent, resulting in faster paychecks averaging about $4 to $5 a week for many taxpayers.

Johnson is counting on the American consumer to act naturally and spend 97 cents of every $1 he gets in tax cuts, thereby pumping $27 million a day into the economy.

In sum, the sweeping tax reduction and reform program is the cornerstone of the administration's entire fiscal year and the foundation for Johnson's forecasts of good times ahead.

Two-thirds of the cuts for individuals are effective this year retroactive to Jan. 1, and the remainder on Jan. 1, 1965. When fully effective, the average U. S. taxpayer will have tax bill cut by about 19 per cent.

Breathitt Ready To Sign His $1.42 Billion Budget Bill

By ROBERT WESTON
United Press International
FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt was ready to sign his $1.42 billion budget bill into law today after the measure was given speedy passage in the Senate Tuesday.

The Senate approved the bill with two amendments by a 37-1 vote and sent it back to the House, which readily concurred in the amendments by a 4-0 vote. The House passed the budget, 96-5, last Wednesday.

One of the changes transfers $500,000 into the governor's contingency fund from the Kentucky Industrial Development Finance Authority. The industrial authority, of which Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield is chairman, would obtain the funds necessary for it to function from a portion of funds accumulated by the retirement systems for teachers and state and county employees. This requires additional enabling legislation.

School For Deaf Benefits
Breathitt told the House Tuesday that the additional $500,000 in his emergency fund will be earmarked for construction of new facilities at the School for the Deaf at Danville.

The other amendment, inserted at the instance of Waterfield and several legislators, provides for a "de-escalator clause." This empowers Finance Commissioner L. Felix Joyner to scale down budget appropriations "without discrimination" if not enough revenue materializes to meet the budget.

Both amendments were made by the Senate Appropriations Committee, which rejected four other proposed changes to the budget in committee Tuesday.

Lone vote against the bill was cast by Sen. Pleas Mobley, R-Manchester.

Mobley inveighed against the budget as "conceived in iniquity, dedicated to partisan politics and certain to lead us to bankruptcy and a welfare state."

The Clay County lawmaker said he particularly objected to an appropriation of $1.1 million for five hospitals in the Appalachian region system.

Sees Appropriation Unfair
"It's just plain unfair to give that money to those hospitals and not do anything for the other hospitals that are struggling to get along—like two in my own county," Mobley declared.

Sen. Durham Howard, R-Pineville, also found fault with the budget on the hospital issue, but voted for the measure because "its good outweighs its bad."

Howard complained, "I can't see that the five hospitals in the Appalachian system have made an honest effort to turn them over to the individual communities to operate. That was the idea behind appropriating state aid and it has not been pursued as diligently as it should be."

Loud laughter greeted an inquiry by Sen. John Billy Swope, R-Boyle. He asked if he could split his vote. "I don't want to be called an obstructionist on the one hand, but there's still some things I don't like about it," he said.

OSTROV GREEN-BELL is the name of an island 650 miles south of the North Pole in Soviet held territory. That's the Russian version of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone. The island was named for him after its discovery in 1899 by an American expedition.

EVER WONDER WHAT HAPPENS TO WORN-OUT TELEPHONE POLES? Lots of interesting and useful things. Churches have used them as bumpers in parking lots. Playgrounds use them to make forts and log cabins for "pioneering" youngsters. And probably most fascinating of all, the Lummie Indians of Washington carved them into totem poles. Morrie Alexander, who has been carving totems for 35 years, is shown here with a piece of his art work made from an old telephone pole.

New Name Bestowed On Decendents

By MARGARET SAVILLE

United Press International
LONDON 49c — The head of Britain's royal house of Mountbatten-Windsor will celebrate his birthday Wednesday Feb. 19 with a special cake and candy at tea.

Prince Andrew, 4 this year, is the first to bear the new family name his mother, Queen Elizabeth, has bestowed on her junior descendants.

He is already inquisitive to meet the second member of his house, the baby the queen expects early in March.

Prince Charles, 15, and Princess Anne, 13, the queen's other children, bear her family name of Windsor. But just before Prince Andrew was born the palace announced all her descendants henceforth would carry the surname Mountbatten-Windsor. It was a tribute to her husband, Prince Philip, because he is a Mountbatten.

Active Child

As befits the head of a royal house, Prince Andrew is an active, strong-minded child with intense tenacity and willpower. Not the "little ray of sunshine" type, he always knows exactly what he wants and goes straight out to get it. He's a cutie," is what an American mother might say of him.

It is Prince Andrew who takes the lead in games, often shared with Princess Margaret's 2-year-old, David Lord Lindsay, a smaller and quieter lad who is Andrew's unquestionable slave. When the two small boys ride up and down the long corridors of Buckingham Palace in a red and grey model car, Andrew holds the wheel and David clings on meekly behind.

The blue-eyed, brown-haired prince, with a firmly jutting jaw, is fearless with all animals. He romps around with the three lively palace corgies and has been known to pick up one of his mother's hats and use it for a target, with him on one side and the dogs hanging on to the other. He already rides his little black pony with a plumb and is demanding "a full-sized horse now."

He also has a passion for "seeing how it works," and has dismembered at least two clocks as well as a whole series of mechanical toys.

KENTUCKY WINS DEVELOPMENT AWARD

A special trophy was presented recently to Kentucky by the national Society of Industrial Realtors at a Washington, D. C. luncheon for excellence of its industrial development program. Kentucky was runnerup three years in a row (1961-63) in competing for the top annual trophy. Shown presenting the award, at left, is Clinton B. Snyder, chairman of the SIR awards committee. Receiving the trophy, from left, are former Lieutenant Governor Wilson W. Wyatt, Kentucky Commissioner of Commerce Miss Katherine Peden, and James H. Nutter, Jr., associate commissioner of Commerce. It was the first time the special award had been made. Competition in the contest is open to all 50 states and the provinces of Canada.

Later on, like Prince Charles, he will enter a "public school"—really a private one—for three years. Contrary to popular idea, there is no special tuition in royal duties for the queen's children. They learn such things by example, the way children naturally copy their elders.

"I AM THE KING" CLAY YELLS AS HE BECOMES WORLD CHAMPION; LISTON REFUSES TO CONTINUE

Sonny Liston Stays In Corner As 7th. Begins

Cassius Clay

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tuesday night was the night that was for Cassius Clay.

He became heavyweight boxing champion of the world — just like he said he would.

He didn't do it so much with his fists, or his fast talk for which he is noted, but with an "injury" to his opponent, Charles (Sonny) Liston.

Liston, the first ex-convict ever to hold boxing's greatest crown, called it quits after the sixth round because he no longer could lift his left arm.

Liston said he hurt it after the bell sounded ending the first round in one of boxing's greatest upsets. Neither fighter apparently heard the bell and both continued throwing punches. Liston tried to ward off a Clay punch at the same time trying to throw a blow of his own. There was a pain in his left shoulder and Liston said it grew worse as the fight progressed.

Examination indicates injury.

A team of eight doctors said Tuesday night at St. Francis Hospital where Liston went immediately after the bout that Sonny had suffered injury to the shoulder sufficient to justify terminating the bout.

But the Miami Beach boxing commission asked for proof of the putting.

It ordered Liston's purse withheld until it satisfied itself that Liston's injury claim was legitimate.

There were a lot of eyebrows raised when the bell signalling the end of round seven sounded.

Clay stood up in his corner, lifting his arms aloft, as though he were champion.

Liston sat on the stool in his corner, surrounded by his handlers. Referee Barney Felix went over to his corner to find out what was wrong. Jack Nilon, one of Liston's managers, said his boxer could not continue because he was hurt.

So it went down in the records as a seventh-round technical knockout victory for the 22-year old Lipp from Louisville.

Breaking developments.

Immediately, there were some suspicious voices. Then in rapid succession came:

—Clay shouting in his dressing room, "you hypocrites (meaning boxing writers) can't say it was a fix."

—Cal Gardner, vice chairman of the Miami Beach Boxing Commission, announced that Liston's purse was being withheld until two orthopedic surgeons could examine Liston's shoulder to determine whether his withdrawal from the fight was justified.

—The Miami Beach City Council said it was considering whether an investigation was in order.

—It was revealed that International Continental Promoters, Inc., of which Liston is part owner, had a contract with Clay to stage his next fight under its promotion. It gave Clay $50,000 for that commitment.

Nilon, who took Liston to the hospital right after the fight, exploded when he was informed that Liston's purse was being withheld and demanded that the orthopedic surgeons desired by the Miami Beach Boxing Commission examine Liston immediately.

Loss of feeling.

One, Dr. Lester Rusin, went to the hospital and examined Liston. The other surgeon was expected later.

Liston's personal physician, Dr. Robert C. Benoit, examined the ex-champion in his dressing room right after the fight and said Liston had no feeling from his neck to his left elbow.

Asked why Liston's purse was ordered withheld, Morris T. Klein, chairman of the Miami Beach Athletic Commission said "We just want to make sure everything was all right."

At the weigh-in Tuesday, Klein had fined Clay $2,500 for causing a disturbance when Clay refused to shut up.

The rising doubt of many ring-siders that something may have been amiss increased when it was announced that the Miami Beach City Council was considering an investigation.

"I don't think we will investigate," said Miami Beach Mayor Melvin Richard, "but if any council member asks for one, we will conduct one."

So when the loud-mouth Clay woke up today he was sure of only one thing — he was the new heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

"You guys just wouldn't believe me but I mean it all along when I kept saying Liston will go down in eight and it will prove I'm great. Now I'm the greatest."

But Liston wouldn't buy that.

Liston Doesn't Agree.

"He doesn't belong in the same ring with me," Liston claimed. "He beat me only because I was hurt and Clay didn't do the hurting. I did it myself so I can't blame him. But the next time around, I'll get him for sure."

Clay said it would be all right with him if he had to fight Liston again.

Garland (Bill) Cherry, attorney for Liston's International Promotions, disclosed the $50,000 contract with Clay.

"Under it," Cherry said, "we can name the date, the site and the opponent."

"It figures," he added, "that the opponent will be Liston."

Cherry's disclosures did nothing to stem the sweeping indications that perhaps Clay did not become the new champion on merit.

But in the books today, it was Clay on top of the boxing world.

For Liston, who learned to fight while in jail, it was a $1 million payday — if his purse is released by the Miami Beach Boxing Commission.

Hold Only Part.

Actually the commission only had the power to hold up Liston's share of the live gate — about $200,000. It could do nothing about the $500,000 which Liston is expected to net from the closed circuit television of the bout and radio rights.

The live gate drew only 8,297 persons to the Convention Hall here, netting receipts of about $402,000.

That means that promoter Bill MacDonald had the most expensive seat in the hall to see Clay live up to his post. It cost him something like $450,000, for he needed a gate of $850,000 to break even.

The theater television brought in the loot. It was estimated that $50,000 of the 1,100,000 seats available throughout the United States and Canada were sold. That put $5 million in the kitty.

Clay's total share of the take will be approximately three quarters of a million dollars.

Three Hold Semi-Final Spots In KIAC. Western Is Winner

by United Press International Georgetown, Union and Villa Madonna held semifinal berths today as form stood up all the way Tuesday night in the first round of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's unique "home floor tournament."

Bellarmine automatically advanced to Thursday night's semifinals on the strength of a bye, and will play at Georgetown, conqueror of Pikeville on Tuesday night, 96-53.

In other first-round games, Union trounced Transylvania, 79-66, at Barbourville, and Villa Madonna ousted Berea, 82-76, at Newport.

All tournament games are played on the floor of the team which finished highest in the regular season standings. Villa Madonna will play at Union.

In other Kentucky college action Tuesday night, Western Kentucky outgunned LaSalle, 107-96 at Bowling Green, and Morehead fell to Ohio University, the apparent Mid-America Conference champion, 85-67.

Georgetown uncovered a new scoring threat against Pikeville in the form of freshman Dave Evisizer, who netted 24 points, matching Dick Vories for the scoring honors. Cecil Tuttle had 22 for the Tigers, but Pikeville's senior guard, Ira Joe Lewis, was the game's high man with 30.

The Western Kentucky-LaSalle game produced the anticipated shoot-out between Western's Darel Carrier, who bucketed 32 points, and LaSalle's Frank Corcos, who topped that with 33. Carrier also topped both teams in rebounds with 14.

Morehead's great scoring threat, Harold Sergeant, continued in his late-season slump, being held to 13 points by Ohio University, which had all five starters scoring from 12 to 20 points. Henry Akin of Morehead tallied 31.

Only one game is listed for Kentucky college teams tonight, Louisville playing host to DePaul. The Cardinals own one of the only two victories scored over the Chicago team by anybody this season.

DePaul is headed for the National Invitation Tournament, while Louisville is bound for the NCAA Mid-East regionals next month.

LITTLE LEAGUE BASKETBALL

In the first game Monday afternoon the Royals defeated the Celtics 19-16. Ronnie King led the winners with 14 points, while Allen Grogan had 8 for the Celtics.

The Warriors led by Bob Taylor, defeated the Lakers by a score of 27-19. Taylor led all scorers with 14 points but Terry Hurt was close behind with 13 for the Laker.

In the big game of the afternoon the Bullets came back in the second half to defeat the Hawks 32-16. The win enabled the Bullets to clinch the league title as their record is 8-1, while the Hawks are 6-3 with only 1 game remaining. Dana Gish led the scoring for the Bullets with 11 points. Chip Veal had 8 points for the Hawks.

Game Saturday Is Important To The Racers

The Murray State Thoroughbreds, streaking toward the Ohio Valley Conference championship, could sew up at least a part of the title by beating Tennessee Tech here Saturday night.

The Racers overcame one of their biggest hurdles of the season Monday night by blasting East Tennessee 96-76 on the East Tennessee floor. The Buccaneers had administered one of the three conference defeats suffered by Murray, winning on the Racers floor 62-61. However, since losing that game, the Racers have swept seven straight conference games and lead the league with a 9-3 record. East Tennessee is in second at 7-4. Murray has two OVC games remaining, East Tennessee three. All other league teams have lost at least five games.

But for Tennessee Tech, Murray could already be assured of a tie for the championship. The Eagles edged the Racers in the closing seconds on their game at Cookeville 79-67. That loss marked the first straight time that Tech had beaten Murray. The last Racer win came in 1961 when they beat the Eagles at Murray 79-59.

Couch Cal Luther who called the East Tennessee win one of the "finest away-from-home efforts" he had ever seen, warned that beating Tech would take a strong effort. "They've been the only team we haven't been able to hold our own with the last few years," he said. "We're not even going to think about championships now. We're just going to take these last two games one at a time."

Dear Abby . . .

It's Hearsay, Lady!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor who has been my friend for many years told me the other day that my daughter-in-law passed the remark, "I will be worth a lot of money when my husband's old lady kicks the bucket." I am 58, in good health and have no plans for "kicking any bucket" for a long time. I have quit speaking to my daughter-in-law, but this doesn't seem fair to my son. Should I see my son without my daughter-in-law and continue the cold war? Or should I start speaking to my daughter-in-law?

ALIVE AND KICKING

DEAR ALIVE: What kind of "friend" would have repeated a remark such as your neighbor quoted? It is even possible that your daughter-in-law never said it. I think you quit speaking to the wrong woman. Talk to your daughter-in-law and straighten it out. Life is too short.

DEAR ABBY: May I put in a good word for beards? My husband has a beautiful beard. Let's face it. Some men can grow beards and others can't. Mine can, and I wouldn't make him shave it off for the world. Some men envy him because they can't grow one and others because their wives won't let them. A man who is a real man will grow a beard if he wants one. Besides, he is very distinctive. Not one person who has ever met my husband has forgotten him.

PROUD WIFE
DEAR PROUD: You are proud with good reason. A bearded man must be above reproach at all times because he is easily identified by the hair of his chinny chin chin.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write an original story for English composition and I had so much other stuff to do I didn't get around to it until the last minute. To make a long story short, I asked my father to help me with it and he wrote the whole thing. I copied it word for word and thought it was great. My father happens to be a writer. He has written some pretty good stuff. They even made some movies of a couple of his books. Well, I got my paper back and the teacher had a "C minus" sign on it. When my father saw it he was boiling mad and asked me to ask the teacher what was wrong with it. I'm afraid if I do she will find out I didn't write it and then I would be in trouble. What should I do?

WRITER'S SON
DEAR SON: Tell your teacher that the story was not your best. (It's true—it wasn't.) And ask her if you can submit another one. Then, do it yourself, son.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AN ANNY-MOUSE" IN DAYTON: Misers are very difficult to live with, but they make the best ancestors.

CHAPTER 28

"COLONEL Julius Schatzmann's great bulk swayed as he walked across the room and towered himself in silence into a seat opposite Charles Hart.

There was a half-smile on his face, but his black button eyes were as hard as steel and as devoid of meaning.

"Good day, Herr Konsul," he said.

"Good morning," said Charles. "Is it you or your master that I have been brought here under armed escort to talk to?"

"The Hofrat asked for you."

"Asked is one way of putting it."

"But I am glad you have arrived in good time, since it enables me to have words with you first."

Colonel Julius turned, and the chair creaked under him.

"There are aspects of this matter which are unfortunate. It would have been much better for all of us if your sister had said nothing."

The black eyes waited for comment, but Charles said nothing. His diplomatic training told him that an offer of some sort was in the wind.

Colonel Julius sighed. "I have reached an age," he said, "when all I seek is a quiet life. Nationalistic and racial aspirations are a fine thing—for the young. Between those two walls—and I shall, of course, deny it if you repeat it—but between these four walls, I consider the South Tyrolese are very happy as they are, and I do not think the either side will find a thing worth of advantage in this coming Anschluss."

Charles said, "You speak of it as a certainty."

"Let us say a distinct possibility. But the point of my remarks is this: Where a prize of that magnitude seems to be within reach of a man like my master, he will not be scrupulous in disposing of obstacles."

"No," said Charles. "I imagine not."

"Your sister is an obstacle."

"I fail to see it."

Colonel Julius said, "It is indeed difficult to understand how a charming and intelligent—"

Charles interrupted him. "I mean that—our intelligent girl can have allowed herself to get into such a position. But it is undoubtedly true. So many people have now heard her story—so many more people will soon hear it."

Charles looked up sharply, but the Colonel's face remained bland.

"—that if we fail to call her as a witness at Boschetto's trial, it will be imagined that what she says is true. And it will not be easy to get the verdict we require. For if Boschetto is not found guilty, the spark will be lacking, the people will not march."

"I accept your judgment on the matter," said Charles. "But I fail to see what I can do about it."

The Colonel looked at his watch. "We must go in now," he said. "A proposal will be made to you. I urge you most strongly, to accept it. It is my official duty to do so, and here he came and sat on the corner of the table, and his voice sank to a soft, rumbling purr—"If you are quite unable to do so, I might be able to suggest an alternative. Come—" He got up and his voice rose to its normal pitch. "We must not keep the Hofrat waiting."

Henrich Humboldt was alone in his office. He did not get up or offer to shake hands. He indicated a chair for Charles to sit in. Colonel Julius remained standing.

"I leave to inform you," he said, "that yesterday a very serious thing occurred. An American journalist, Keller, had apparently arranged with a photographer, Hofratracker, to forge a photograph purporting to show a gun being fired from the front of the Hofrat. He seems to have done this in an attempt to support your sister's story. It is suspected that he is an agent of the CIA."

"The evidence of it is the unscrupulous way in which he has behaved. He appears to have quarreled with the photographer Hofratracker over the division of the profits. He killed him, and burned down his shop to conceal the crime. He then hired a car, drove toward the Italian border, and climbed the mountain track leading to the frontier. There he encountered, and killed, a member of the frontier control."

"I trust," said Charles, "that he was apprehended before he entered Italy."

"Unfortunately, no. Strong representations will be made to the Italian government."

"It would be most improper of them to harbor a murderer," agreed Charles.

"Two of Keller's accomplices have been traced and are under arrest. One is the Lienz representative of the Trans-World Press Agency, Sandholmer. The other is the proprietor of a garage which supplied him with a car. The latter may have been acting innocently. Sandholmer, I am certain, knows more than he has told us—as yet."

Charles said, "I know neither of these men. Nor, in fact, have I ever met Mr. Keller."

"No? He has visited your flat on one occasion at least, and would appear to have been on friendly terms with your sister."

"You may be right. Is it important?"

"It is of considerable significance, in the light of the latest developments. Yes."

Now were coming to it, thought Charles. He said, in a voice of polite interest, "What developments are those?"

"Yesterday the assassin Boschetto made a full confession."

"Yes?"

Humboldt looked at Charles sharply, and said, "What was more interesting was that he revealed to us something of the background of the crime. It was planned in Italy—to be precise, in Rome. Boschetto himself was selected as a supposedly patriotic, with a grudge. But he was only the hand, not the head nor the heart of the killing."

"He must have been a very simple man," said Charles. "No performance, in front of a crowd of witnesses, an act which must inevitably result in his own destruction." And, to himself, as he spotted the gleam of triumph in Humboldt's eye, damn it, I believe that's what he wanted me to say.

"Quite so," said Humboldt. "The plotters had, of course, considered the point. They had arranged for an accomplice to be present. An accomplice who would distract suspicion from Boschetto by swearing that he was not the killer—that the shooting was done by a mysterious assassin concealed in the theater."

Charles found himself staring at the Hofrat. He crossed his mouth, but no sound came.

"Boschetto's confession has made your sister's part in the matter all too clear."

"You cannot be serious."

"Do you know who your sister associated with in Rome?"

"No—but—"

"Did you know that one of her closest friends was Lorenz Vignari, a notorious Communist intriguer?"

"It seems that you really know very little about your sister's activities."

Keep your temper, said Charles to himself. Whatever you do, don't start believing, in a voice that he hardly recognized as his own he said, "If you have any proof, any independent proof, of this outrageous allegation, I should like to see it."

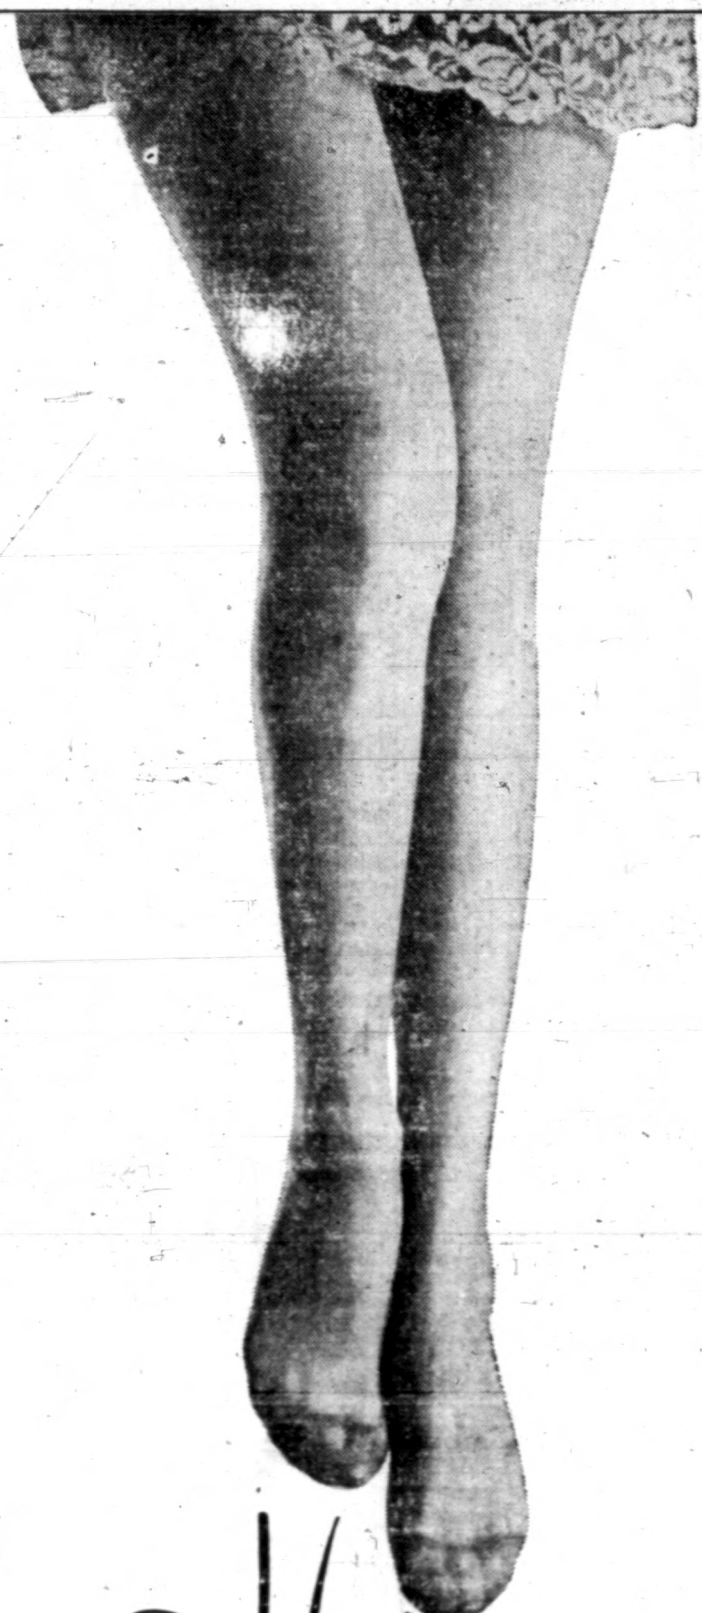

"Unfortunately, we have no time for independent proof—Boschetto's trial starts tomorrow. We have, however, prepared a short statement for your sister to sign."

"I can assure you that she will do no such thing."

"There is only one alternative," said Humboldt. "Boschetto, to and your sister, being accomplices, will have to stand trial together."

Charles visualized headlines: "Consul's sister aids assassin." The story reaches a climax here tomorrow.
