Turks Continue Air Raids Even After A Cease Fire

By RAY J. MOLONEY
United Press International

NICOSSIA, Cyprus (U.P.) — Turkish planes were reported to have raided Cyprus today for the fourth straight day despite agreement on a ceasefire.

Cyprus announced acceptance of a United Nations appeal for suspension of the hostilities that flared anew last week, and Turkey conditionally agreed to call off its air attacks.

But Cyprus reports said Turkish planes again hit the Greek Cypriot village of Polis this morning.

In London a spokesman for the Greek Cypriot high commission said the Turkish government had explained that the planes were part of a forward attack and had not been notified of the cease-fire.

In Ankara, the Turkish government acknowledged that its planes flew over Cyprus this morning but said they did not attack Greek Cypriot positions.

Conflicting Casualty Reports
Reports of casualties in Polis this morning were vague. The Cyprus news agency said 50 were killed and 50 wounded, but the Cypriot high commission in London said 10 civilians were wounded.

Diplomats worked feverishly to smooth out the Cyprus crisis that threatened a direct clash between Turkey and Greece, fellow members of the North Atlantic Alliance.

In the background of the threatened widening of the conflict was Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announced support of the Greek Cypriot position. Khrushchev told Greek Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios that "the sympathy of the people and the government of the Soviet Union is on the side of the people of the Republic of Cyprus."

The United Nations Security Council was deeply concerned with the crisis. Britain's Prime Minister Douglas-Home appealed to Turkey and Greece alike to bring about a cease-fire, and President Johnson conferred with top aides over the fighting.

The U.S. Sixth Fleet carrier task group moved into positions in the Mediterranean, presumably off Cyprus.

Mrs. Robert Brown up at Scott Drug looking over some pictures she took. Some of them were pictures of a snow here in Murray. It developed that the roll of film was several months old.

This made us feel better because we developed a roll recently that we found in a drawer at home. It had some pictures taken three years ago when on vacation.

We had been wondering what ever happened to that picture of a close-up of a pelican made somewhere in Florida.

Marvel of this age, the Bookmobile. It literally is a traveling library and goes to places where there is no library or at the best, a small one.

This is a service unheard of fifty years ago. You should really make it a point to visit the local library. You would be pleasantly surprised at what they have to offer there.

People are using the library and children use it extensively. It is a far cry from the library here even fifteen years ago, as far as books and services which are offered.

The summer reading program at the library has been a big success, as it has been for the past several summers.

The kids are reading books and they are taking books home with them too. You may have the idea this is just a "leisure time" activity for the children, and in some respects that is correct.

But, this is a fact, if a child cannot understand what he is reading in school, he will make poor grades. One way to correct this situation is for him to read a lot and his understanding and comprehension will increase with a corresponding betterment of his grades.

So this summer reading program serves a real purpose. There are many other benefits such as an increase in vocabulary, just plain pleasure from reading, an increased backlog of history, geography and social studies. This could go on and on of course.

Stuffed it to say that a good education can be achieved by reading a lot, whether you are 6, 16 or 60.

All tobacco growers are invited. Adjournment will be not later than 2:30 p.m.

Reports Of Red Chinese Movements

By CHARLES R. SMITH
United Press International

OAP S. JACQUES, Viet Nam (U.P.) — Prime Minister Gen. Nguyen Khanh said today he had "definite reports" of Communist troop movements in North Viet Nam.

Khanh said a news conference also reiterated that at least 15 fighter planes from Red China had moved into Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital. But he said he was uncertain whether they were piloted by Chinese or Vietnamese.

Khanh was asked if he had actual reports of Chinese Communist troop movements in North Viet Nam.

"No exactly on the 17th Parallel the former with South Viet Nam, but let's say in North Viet Nam," he replied.

He said the reports were from "intelligence" sources.

Asked how the Chinese Communists were moving, Khanh replied, "they move by any kind of route. They have railroads coming from Yunnan a province in southwestern China to Hanoi."

He declined to estimate the number of Red Chinese troops he thought were involved.

There was no word, meantime, on the first U.S. civilian official ever to fall into Communist hands here, Joseph L. Granger of Sumner, N.C., was captured by Viet Cong guerrillas on Saturday.

Move Underway To Save Cabin

A log house is said to be the first Calloway County courthouse. It stands at Fourth and Elm and is being moved to make way for a Black-Coleman Funeral Home parking lot. Efforts are underway to preserve the house but it must be moved this week. This view is from the rear.

A campaign was being organized today to save an old log house, which tradition says was the first Calloway County courthouse, from its threatened destruction by a parking lot project.

The old house, 20 feet square, now stands at 4th and Elm Streets here, but is believed to have been erected originally at Wadesboro, in 1822.

Wadesboro, a community long since defunct, was the site of the land offices for the Jackson Purchase.

Mr. Jim Williams, Editor
The Ledger and Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Jim:

This letter is in the nature of an appeal to the people of Murray and Calloway County to rally to the support of Judge Miller and Mayor Ellis in their endeavor to save an historic structure. The building being razed at the corner of 4th and Elm seems to be the authentic first courthouse of this county, first built at Wadesboro in 1822. It is significant therefore not only as the first seat of government of this county, but as one of the oldest (if not the oldest) structures in the area. Because settlement in the Purchase Region does not date back much before this time, it represents an example of original pioneer architecture of our section.

The gentleman dismantling the building has offered to sell it for a modest sum, I hope that our people will show enthusiasm for purchasing it and removing it to a more appropriate permanent spot for such a significant monument to our hardy pioneer forefathers.

Sincerely,
Frank Steely, Prof. of History
President, Jackson Purchase Historical Assoc.

chase when that territory was opened for settlement, and when Calloway County was formed in 1822, Wadesboro was the county seat.

In 1842, Marshall County was carved out of Calloway, and Calloway had to find a new county seat. A new community named for lawyer Thomas L. Murray was being formed, and it was designated as the new county seat.

It is believed the log cabin courthouse then was moved from Wadesboro.

Several organizations have indicated an interest in preserving the structure.

Paul Bailey Shows Top Animal In The On-Foot Contest

OWENSBORO, Ky. August 10 —

One hog farmer from Calloway County showed 2 hogs in the fifth annual Meat Hog-Carcass Contest, August 6-8. The event, which was sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the State Agricultural Extension Service, the Division of Agricultural Education, Field Packing Company, and the Owensboro-Davies County Chamber of Commerce, was conducted at Field Packing Yards in Owensboro.

Of the total of 2 hogs exhibited by Calloway County in the contest, both animals were accepted in the carcass class held Saturday, August 8.

The Owensboro contest drew a total of 163 hogs from 10 Kentucky counties to compete for the $2,000 offered in premiums. Of the 163 entries, 24 complied with the certification standards of the National Association of Swine Records (39 inches minimum length, 16 inches maximum backfat, 4 square inch minimum loin-eye). Both hogs from Calloway County met certification requirements.

The grand champion carcass came from a commercial entry that was exhibited by O. R. Joan, Fern Creek, Ky. In the on-foot show the top animal was a commercial hog owned and shown by Paul Bailey, Murray-Calloway.

Five are Killed
In McKenzie Crash

MCKENZIE, Tenn. (U.P.) — A fiery, three-car crash near here Saturday night which claimed five lives was the worst on Tennessee highways during the weekend.

The state highway patrol said the victims — three children and two adults — were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wainwright of Weakley County and Dianne, 6, Ronnie, 5, and Darrell, 3, all the children of Almon and Mrs. Eugene Edwards.

The patrol said the children were riding in the car driven by their mother when it apparently dropped off the shoulder of the road. They said the vehicle apparently swerved out of control when the woman attempted to bring it back.

Officers said the Edwards car then, struck a second car, driven by J. T. Quill, and burst into flames as it slammed into the Wainwright car. Quill, assistant county farm agent for Obion County, and three 16-year-old boys in his car were among the injured. Mrs. Edwards was also critically injured.

Officers said Edwards, recently transferred from Alaska to Ft. Campbell, Ky., was not in the car with his family when the accident happened.

The Calloway County and Marshall County school teachers will meet on August 18 at Calloway County High School for in-service training. The keynote speaker will be Mrs. Carolyn Self, Psychiatrist Social Worker with the Mental Health Department. ## Heat Broken In Some Areas By Cool Rains; Rest Normal

By United Press International
Temperatures dipped toward record lows in the Northeast, today while steady rains drenched the Gulf Coast states. Thunderstorms swept across Kansas during the night with hail and high winds.

A cool front that broke records in the upper Midwest Sunday was sending the mercury plummeting over the northern Appalachians and New England early today.

The weather bureau said the chilly temperatures would break or equal records in many areas.

The rest of the nation recorded more normal midsummer weather, with heavy thundershowers hitting the South and nighttime storms belting the southern plains. Temperatures simmered back up into the 80s through the Southwest.

A barn and several buildings were blown down during the night at Sterling, Kan., when violent thundershowers dumped about an inch of rain across the central part of the state.

Nearly 2.50 inches of rain fell at Columbia, S.C., in six hours, with more than an inch recorded in only one hour. Glynnco Naval Station, about 70 miles south of Savannah, Ga., reported 2.45 inches of rain. Alexandria, La., was drenched with 2.12 inches in six hours and Barks (Continued On Page Four)

Sidewalk Sale To Be Held On Weekend

The Murray Chamber of Commerce announced today that the Second Annual Murray Sidewalk Sale will be held Friday and Saturday August 14th and 15th.

This grand sale was a spectacular success last year, in spite of a heavy rain on the second day. This year, indications are that almost all of the downtown merchants will participate in the sales event.

The Sidewalk Sale features merchandise at prices far below the usual prices, and is different in that all merchandise is placed on tables and counters on the sidewalk and in the parking places on the street.

Sales clerks will be dressed in costumes of their choice. Last year many of the shoppers wore costumes. In addition to the big bargains offered, the merchants will offer free lemonade, and the cast of "Stars in My Crown" will visit the city on both days.

The participating stores will feed the parking meters in front of their stores to avoid having their tables tagged for overtime parking.

The sale will run from 8 to 5 each day, and is expected to draw thousands of tourists and visitors who wish to take advantage of the extremely low prices and fun that is offered. New bargains will be added to the tables from time to time.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Aug. 10th, the 223rd day of 1964 with 142 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Mars and Venus.

The evening star is Saturn.

Those born today are under the sign of Leo. Former President Herbert Hoover was born on this day in 1874.

On this day in history:

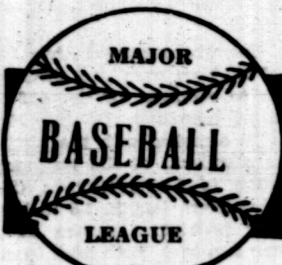

In 1776, a committee of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson suggested the U.S. adopt "e pluribus unum" as the motto for its great seal.

In 1821, Missouri was admitted to the nation as the 24th state.

In 1943, President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at Quebec for their sixth conference of World War II.

In 1961, 34 London school boys were killed when their plane crashed in Norway.

A thought for the day — Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

Oriole Skipper Moves As If He Is Sure Of Team's Ability

By CURT BLOCK

UPI Sports Writer

Baltimore skipper Hank Bauer doesn't want to appear over-confident but consider some of his moves over the past weekend:

—He brought Steve Barber out of the bullpen to successfully pitch

the opening game of the crucial series against the Yankees.

—Bench regulars Boog Powell, his leading home run producer, and

Norm Sieben in Saturday's contest which the Orioles came from behind to win 6-5 in 10 innings.

—Inserted Earl Robinson into the lineup for the last three games and was rewarded with five hits and flawless fielding.

—Withheld his winning pitcher,

Wally Bunker, from the four-game set but used youngsters Dave Vineyard and Frank Bertone effectively in relief in Sunday's doubleheader in which the Orioles split, losing the first 2-1 and taking the nightcap

4-2.

Orioles Win Series

In short, the crucial series which the Yankees "always" rallied to win went to the Orioles, who games to one and set the Birds

1 1/2 games in front of Chicago in the American League race.

Meanwhile, Yogi Berra, Bauer's counterpart suffered on the home team bench Sunday with some thoughts of his own.

—Whitely Ford is out indefinitely with a calcium deposit on his right hip.

—Mickey Mantle's fragile condition remains a day-to-day affair.

The switch-hitting centerfielder was limited to a pinch-hit appearance

Sunday due to a pulled groin muscle.

—Unlike years gone by, there is no Joe Page, Louis Arroyo or even

Marshall Bridges, Berra can sum-monstrate from the bullpen in the late innings.

Downing Hurls Four-Hitter

The major league's largest crowd of the season, 58,102, saw southpaw

Al Downing hurl a four-hit win in the opener while fanning 10

Singles by Bobby Richardson and Elston

Howard accounted for the Yankees run.

In the nightcap, Powell's 20th home, a two-run belt in the third.

Giants Keep Pace

The Giants kept pace with Philadelphia by downing the Cincinnati

Reds 7-5, the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Houston Astros 5-2, the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0, and the Milwaukee

Braves turned back the Los Angeles

Dodgers 5-2.

Baltimore hung on to its 1 1/2-game lead in the American League by beating New York 4-2 after the Yankees won the opener 2-1, second-place Chicago split Boston, whipping the Red Sox 4-1 after a

6-3 setback, Detroit swept Kansas

City 4-2 and 5-2, Cleveland blanked

Minnesota 7-0 but dropped the nightcap 3-1, and Washington edged

Los Angeles 6-5.

The Giants scored four runs off

John Taitelhorst 7-9 before two were out in the first inning with the help of successive homers by Willie

Mays and Willie McCovey. Mays wound up with four hits and three

RBIs while McCovey had three hits and two RBIs. Billy O'Dell 4-5 was nicked for only one run—a solo home by Frank Robinson—in 5 1/2 innings of excellent relief.

offer, Yankee blasts by Roger Maris and Johnny Blanchard and helped Robinson to his 267th career victory and ninth of the season.

Elsewhere in the American League:

Washington nipped Los Angeles

6-5 in doubleheader action, Boston beat Chicago 6-3, then lost 4-1;

Cleveland blanked Minnesota 7-0 before dropping a 3-1 decision; and

Detroit swept two from Kansas City

4-2 and 5-2.

In the National League, Philadelphia shut out Chicago 2-0; Philadelphia stopped the Mets 6-0; Houston lost to St. Louis 8-3; San Francisco slipped past Cincinnati 7-5;

and Milwaukee defeated Los Angeles 6-2.

Graham Says

Beathard Could

OB Game

By ED SAINSBURY

UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Coach Otto

Graham said today Pete Beathard of Southern California would start at quarterback Wednesday night when his College All-Stars clash with the Chicago Bears at Soldier

Field.

Beathard got the nod over two other All-Stars who performed moderately in training camp—George

Mitro of Miami and Jack Concannon of Boston College.

Mitro, who is rounding into shape

after an army injury, and Concan-non are expected to see their share of action, however, since

Graham has been a great believer in trying all his passers until he finds the right one for the right night.

Graham broke with tradition in releasing his starting lineup, an announcement he habitually withholds until the day of the game.

This time, however, a rash of injuries has trimmed his roster, knocking many of his thules out of competition for starting assignments.

Tony Loric of Arizona State and

Willis Greenhaw of Kansas State are Graham's selections to start the game as his running backs.

If Loric is unable to make it because of a knee injury which has hampered him in training, the All-

Stars can call on a few other fleet sprinters such as Mike Smith of

Ohio State, Charlie Taylor of Arizona State, and Bobby Smith of North Texas State.

Graham listed his starting pass

outers as Paul Warfield of Ohio

State at flanker, Chuck Logan of Northwestern at the split end, and

Ted Davis of Georgia Tech at the right end.

The interior of the starting ofensive line consists of tackles Lloyd

Voss of Nebraska and Ernie Borg-hetti of Pittsburgh; guards Hatch

Rosdahl of Penn State and Dick

Evey of Tennessee; and center Ray

Kubala of Texas A & M.

Tentative starters listed by Graham for defense are: George Beals of Missouri and Ed Lothamer of

CHAPTER 34

"Marianne, the gun," said Mark Maulever, holding the sword at Ralph Urban's breast.

Swaying on her feet, she contrived to get across the room to where it lay, and pick it up. "I have it," she knew that he had not taken his eyes off Urban.

"Good. Can you use it?" How strange it was to remember. "Yes. My father taught me."

"Then do so, if he moves. I do not recommend it, Urban. You cannot see her, I know, but Miss Lamb means business as much as I do."

"Not Miss Lamb." Leaning against the wall to steady herself, she held the sword pointed at Urban's back. "Miss Urban."

"He is your cousin?" Very slowly, still keeping his sword at the ready, Maulever was maneuvering his way around his defeated adversary to join her. "You have remembered?" He was at her side now.

"Yes—everything. What are we going to do with him?" From their throats, Urban might already have ceased to exist.

"For the moment, tie him up, Urban, your hands behind your back. Marianne, the cords from the curtains, I should think."

The room was full of silence and hatred as she fetched them. "Darna you both," said Urban, but he stood still while Maulever tied his hands and then allowed himself to be drawn backward into a big wooden armchair. Maulever tied him to it securely.

Marianne's memories were sorting themselves out now, into a pattern of villainy that she still found hard, in spite of all the evidence, to believe.

"He really is your cousin?" Maulever's question tied in with her thoughts.

"Oh, yes. We grew up together, he and I. It is no wonder, when he came to me and told me we were married, that I was deluded by a feeling of familiarity. No wonder he knew so much about me."

"Tell me, dear cousin," said Urban, "now that I have played and lost, what do you intend to do with me?"

It was Maulever who answered. "For some curious reason," he said, "I continue to have a certain regard for Lady Heverdon's feelings. Besides, she bears my family's title. For her sake, I should be sorry for an open scandal. But I am not to be the judge in the matter."

He turned to Marianne. "It is for you to decide. But, before you do, I must confess I should be glad to understand just what has been going on."

"I am only now beginning to understand it myself," she spoke slowly, ordering her thoughts as she went along. "To begin with—how odd it seems—I am—may be something of an heiress." She had herself colored as she spoke. But it was impossible not to remember that Maulever had lost a fortune by the discovery that little Thomas was Lord Heverdon. And she had, perhaps, found one.

She knew him well enough to be horribly certain that this was the end of any faint hope there might have been of a reconciliation between them. She hurried on, afraid that he might misinterpret her pause.

"My uncle—and, Ralph Urban—is Lord of one of the Channel Islands—quite a small one, Barsley, perhaps you may not have heard of it. He is an old man, and childless. I am his younger brother's child, and Ralph the youngest sister. We were both orphaned as children and my uncle brought us up. He always said that Ralph should be his heir, rightly, I think. They're a rough lot, the islanders, and, besides, Barsley is the nearest of the islands to France. Its lord needs to be a fighter—certainly did in Bonaparte's time. My own mother was a refugee from France."

"Of course," Maulever said. "Your name; your perfect French. But what happened to change your uncle's mind?"

"He was angry with Ralph and said I would prove the better man of the two. He wanted me to come to England and earn my keep for a year—to prove myself a man, he said, without help from him. If I did that, he would make a new will in my favor. But I thought he would have forgiven Ralph before that. Truly, I did, Ralph."

Her voice had an odd note of appeal in it. "I never wanted to be Darna of Barsley. Oh, it's a beautiful island, if you care for wild scenery, but I was glad to come away. Ralph helped me to find a position with his friend, Lady Heverdon. He said we had best not tell her about being cousins."

Urban's face darkened. "It should all have been so easy. With you and that wretched little boy burned in your beds, I'd have been heir to Barsley, and Lady Heverdon's—his voice softened on the name—" "we thought she would be free at last to enjoy the fortune she had earned by marrying that worthless cousin of yours." This, angrily, to Maulever. "The lawyers had not thought fit to tell her how he had tied up his estate against her."

"I begin to suspect that he had his reasons," said Maulever.

"What did he expect? A dirty, decrepit old man marrying a young beauty like her? We've had the devil's own luck, she and I. Tell me"—he turned his head to glare angrily at Marianne—"how did you and the child come to escape that night when I set fire to your wing?"

She looked at him, almost with pity. "Do you remember, that Lady Heverdon pleaded the headache as an excuse to send Thomas and me away early? I felt sorry for her—she was kind to me, you know, in her way. When I had got Thomas to bed, I came back to her rooms to ask if I should try and massage the pain away for her."

"The door of her room was not shut fast. I heard you talking as I came down the hall—and what I heard made me stay to listen. I don't think I quite believed my ears at first, but then, do you remember, you laughed, and kissed her, and told her not to worry. 'You'll be in mourning tomorrow.' That was enough. I went back to our wing and packed my box."

"It was very early still. I knew you would be back to tell all the servants we were in bed. I told one of the footmen I was running away. I took good care that he had no idea I was going to take the child with me; that's why I dared pack so few of his clothes. I put bundles of clothes in our beds and stole away with him to the coaching inn. I was coming to you, of course."

Marianne turned to Maulever. "I knew you were the child's guardian. You seemed the only hope of safety for either of us. We reached London in the middle of the night and found that a coach was starting almost at once for Eton. We changed coaches there and I began to think our flight could not have been discovered, for anyone traveling post would have caught us long before. I drowned out, I remember, and was waked by screams, and the coach tipping over, then darkness. But tell me"—sadly, she found herself slipping into the old tone of irritated affection when she addressed her cousin—"was it you who came after the coach at Pennington Cross?"

He stared at her blackly. "Do you mean to tell me you were there all the time?"

"Yes, hiding in the gorse."

He swore an oath. "And I believed that scoundrel coachman! He told me he had let no one down since Eton. It had only been on the faintest chance that I followed. I had heard a rumor of a mysterious woman and child who had boarded the midnight coach on the night of the fire."

Urban has something more to say. "Do not delude yourselves that I will spare any one if I am brought to trial. Continue the story tomorrow."

Woman's World

Dear Abby . . .

When—And If!!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl. I had two dates with an 18-year-old boy I've had a secret crush on him for a long time. He was an hour late both times, but I didn't say anything. Then he took me to a "big party," and wandered away. Nobody even knew who I was with. I had a horrible time. Later he took me to the Senior Prom and I never had a better time in my whole life. He said he had a great time, too, and I know he did. That was the last time I saw him. I heard that he is practically rushing another girl off her feet. I want him to know that after all I took from him, he can't treat me this way and get away with it, and if he were to call me up and beg me for a date I would turn him down. How can I let him know how I feel?

DEAR WHO: When he calls up and begs you for a date, tell him!

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old

Miss Patsy Wilkins Complimented With Prenuptial Events

Miss Patsy Wilkins, August 15th bride-elect of Thomas D. Forrest, has been complimented with several lovely prenuptial events.

A tea shower was held at the home of Mrs. Otto Winchester on Broad Street with Mrs. Winchester and Mrs. W. A. Forrest as the hostesses.

Mrs. A. B. Crass and Mrs. William Smith entertained with a luncheon open shower at the Crass home on North Seventh Street.

A coffee-shower was another lovely bridal event given by Miss Ruth Cole at her home on Main Street.

Miss Wilkins and her fiancé were the honored guests at a dinner party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Max Carman on South Eleventh Street.

The bridal couple were also presented gifts at a picnic held at Kentucky Lake with Mrs. Vernie W. Parker and Miss Evelyn Lann as the hostesses.

daughter has been married three times. The first marriage was a mistake because they were both too young. (The boy's mother had to sign for him.) They called it quits after a year. At 19 she married a 29-year-old man. She had known him only a month and, after she married him, she found out that he hadn't even been free to marry her. It was a mess! Now she is back home and has started to date. She has no special training and has never worked a day in her life. Her father supports her. I think, under the circumstances, we should have some say about the company she keeps, don't you? Some of the characters she goes with would make you ill. She is our only child and we do love her. What can we do?

DEAR TROUBLED: Tell your daughter she is old enough now to support herself, and that she must be still young enough to acquire "special training" if she wants it. If she will accept professional guidance, it would be worth the effort. It will have to come from outside, however, as she quit listening to you years ago.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man who likes dogs, but he can't stand cats. I have always had a cat. I love cats. At the present my mother is keeping my two cats, and when I told my husband I wanted to bring them home he said, "NO CATS in this house!" He says cats are for old maids and lonely widows who have nobody to love them. I don't agree with him on this, but don't want to make an issue of it. What can I do? This is my first marriage and his third.

DEAR LOVES: Leave your cats at your mother's and go to visit them when you get home. Your husband sounds tough enough to live with WITHOUT an excuse.

Heat Broken . . .

dale Air Base at Shreveport, La., received 1.91 inches.

Light showers fell across the Midwest. Firefighters near Kerhonkson, N. Y., reported they were making headway against a roaring forest fire burning out of control during the night. The blaze was burning along a five mile front and was being fought by every fire company in Ulster County. Strong winds helped shift the flames away from the exclusive Lake Minnewaska resort, but hampered firefighters' efforts in other areas.

Tropical storm Brenda, packing winds up to 60 miles an hour, churned far out into the Atlantic Ocean today. The weather bureau said the second tropical storm of the season posed no threat to Bermuda or the U.S. mainland.
