You should be able to get a first rate education from government documents.

We get a brochure from the U.S. Government printing office, listing some of the booklets available.

Flex, How to Control Them, Survey of Multiple Charged Ions and the Economic Feasibility of a Travel Service Center in Henryetta, Oklahoma are some of the titles.

We imagine the latter booklet would be of interest to folks in Henryetta, Oklahoma, but it does not move us too much.

Here is one for egg heads, "Calculations for Comparing Two-Point and Four-Point Probe Resistivity Measurements on Rectangular Bar-Shaped Semiconductor Samples".

We don't even know what it means.

Here's another "A Fortran Program for Analysis of Ellipsometer Measurements and Calculation of Reflection Coefficients from Thin Films".

Getting back to earth there's "Growing Raspberries", and "Spraying Mimosas".

Here is one that might interest some folks. The Inaugural Address of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It is suitable for framing, has his picture on it and measures 15 1/2 x 21 inches.

Write Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. Zip Code 20402.

They have a booklet on most any subject, from raising nasturtium chickens to how to dehorn cattle.

Two productions are scheduled at the Kentucky Amphitheater. Billy Ed Wheeler has written a musical "Once Then, Something". This will be produced on August 17 at 8:30.

The other is a Gilbert & Sullivan comic opera Rusdgor, directed by Mike Wilson.

This one is scheduled for August 24 at 8:00 p.m.

Both productions grew out of a Stars in My Crown Drama Workshop.

Both productions are free of charge to the public and "are being offered free of charge to you and your friends as an expression of our gratitude for your invaluable support" according to Max E. Hurt, president of the association.

Bobby Knight, seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Knight received an award in the first grade for reading 92 books. This summer in the Summer Reading Program at the library he read 45 books.

That's a lot of reading for anybody. Bobby's brother, Steve Knight, is a Ledger and Times carrier. That was Steve's class at Robertson School, year before last, that contributed to the Buster Seal drive.

Lyon Jury To Hear James Yager Case

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Lyon County grand jury next Monday will consider escape charges against James Earl Yager, the con man de luxe who escaped while on a trip to Paducah for eye treatment last May.

Yager was recaptured in Chicago and was returned to state prison here last week.

County Attorney James E. Story conceded he wasn't too happy about having Yager back in Eddyville.

The Louisville convict is an industrious "prison lawyer," who keeps both himself and the Lyon County courts busy with a steady stream of writs, pleas, petitions and other pleadings aimed at getting himself or other prisoners out of the penitentiary.

Yager walked away from a Paducah doctor's office, copied the Sheriff's fellow prisoner out of $50 by telling them he could get a writ of habeas corpus to free the other convict, and used the money to rent an ambulance that carried him to Nashville, Tenn.

He was picked up later in Chicago, selling a rental car, and staved off his return to Kentucky for 2 1/2 months by legal maneuvers.

Frozen Body Of Boy Found In Railroad Car Of Melons

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) — The frozen body of a boy was found Monday night in a refrigerated railroad car full of honeydew melons from California, police said today.

Detective Sgt. Ted Semanski said the boy, about 12, apparently from the Midwest, was found in the car during the cross-country ride in the sealed car.

The car was part of a shipment from the Rose Valley Produce Co., Woodland, Calif., Semanski said. The shipment left Fresno, Calif., for Hialeah about July 28 and arrived here last Saturday.

The body, huddled against a crate of melons, was discovered late Monday night when fruit inspectors opened the car.

Semanski said temperatures in the car were kept between 30 and 40 degrees during the long trip and the boy was clad only in a light-weight blue plaid shirt and patched dungarees. He had no jewelry and no identification, Semanski said.

He said a businessman named Ladin was in the car with the boy. Ladin was 5-foot-2, weighed 105 pounds and had brown eyes and black hair. He had a vaccination scar on his left arm.

Reds Move MIG Jets To Viet Nam

By CHARLES W. CORDRY, United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Red China has moved "a number" of old-type Mig jet fighters into North Viet Nam since last Thursday, the Defense Department announced today.

Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester told newsmen the planes were MIG 15's and MIG 17's, both subsonic fighters of Russian manufacture. They are not considered a match for the types of fighters the United States has deployed aboard carriers in the South China Sea and at bases in South Viet Nam.

Sylvester also said that "to the best of my knowledge" there had been nothing like a "confrontation" between American and Red Chinese planes over the Gulf of Tonkin.

This was an official denial of a published report from Saigon Monday which said American planes have "scrambled" to intercept Red Chinese planes operating out of the island of Hainan.

Sylvester said the Communist planes had been observed on American radar scopes and there had been "nothing more than that."

Earlier sources had reported that 12 to 15 MIGs were flown into North Viet Nam after the U. S. Navy conducted its air strike last week.

Seek Cure For Dropouts At Conerence

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A part-time school, part-time work proposal in an attempt to reduce school drop-outs was suggested here Monday at a leadership conference of the Kentucky Education Association.

"Why do young boys drop out of school? Because they want money and they want cars," according to Fred Smith, Cincinnati, Ohio, management consultant, who suggested the combined school and work program.

Smith said such a program at least would "keep young dropouts in contact" with education.

"If we can work out a cooperative program, they can still have some of the money and go to school, too," he said.

Smith, who is a director of S. H. Kress Co., also urged these attendants to learn the vernacular of business.

Such jobs, of necessity, would be unskilled, but even those jobs today can pay pretty well, he added.

Smith, who is a director of S. H. Kress Co., also urged these attendants to learn the vernacular of business.

He said that he believes "teachers and industry people have a difficult time" communicating.

"The first thing a teacher throws around is how many degrees he has. I don't understand that, so I start throwing around how much money I make. We have almost two separate ways of life."

He said industrial representatives should communicate at the high school and elementary-school level; that they now are doing at the college level.

It can also be done there . . . if we learn a little bit about each other's language," he predicted.

Another speaker, state Rep. Fred Morgan, D-McCracken, also was worried about communications between educators for successful education of education bills would be a start.

"In my 20 years as a legislator, I can count on my fingers the number of times I have been thanked by educators in my own district," Morgan declared.

Court To Aid In Saving Old Courthouse

The Calloway Fiscal Court this morning agreed to pay up $200 if the city would do likewise, to help save what is purported to be the first courthouse in Calloway County.

The house, a log cabin located at Fourth and Elm streets, is in good condition, having been covered for many years as part of a residence. A place on the Murray State College campus has been secured for the site of the house, possibly near Swann Dorm at 16th and Chestnut streets.

Attorney James Overbey, and negotiator Noble Brendon and Neil Warren were appointed to check the house during the noon hour today to see if it could be moved intact or if it would have to be dismantled and moved.

The Jackson Purchase Historical Society will have charge of the house and will carry out whatever is to be done with it, after its removal from its present site.

In other action the court took bids on a grader for the maintenance of county roads. Four bids were received, however no final action was taken.

The court voted to pay the Egyptian Waterproofing Company for work done on the exterior of the courthouse. $100 will be withheld to cover final touch up work.

Floyd Robinson Is Second In Batting

NEW YORK - Quicker than you can say Floyd Robinson, the Chicago White Sox outfielder has leaped into second place in the American League batting race.
 Robinson and the White Sox, in fact, are both in second place today, the club readying for a four-game series with the third-place New York Yankees opening today.
 Meanwhile, the league leading Baltimore Orioles open a three-game series with the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night.
 Robinson's chances of taking over the top spot are far slimmer than his club's. The White Sox, a half game in front of New York, trail the Orioles by 1 1/2 games. Robinson, 26, has a .530 batting performance last week, still trails Minnesota's Tony Oliva by 24 points.
 Robinson, in ninth place, a week ago, collected 11 hits in 20 attempts since then gaining 15 points to 310. Oliva dropped two points to 324 with 10 hits in 33 tries.
 Mickey Marfil of the Yankees dropped one place to third. He managed only two hits in 20 times at bat and his average fell 14 points to .308. Jim Fregos of the Los Angeles Angels slumped 10 points to fourth at 308 followed by Cleveland's Bob Chance with a .305 mark.
 In the National League, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh held onto first place. He picked up one point to 346 with eight hits in 21 at bats. Runner-up Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs lost seven points to 333 on a 6-for-26 performance last week.
 Ron Santo of the Cubs advanced to third at 328. He gained five points with 10 hits in 25 tries.
 Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants bounced back to fourth place. The veteran outfielder, such a week ago, increased his average three points to .323 with a 9-for-25 showing.
 Milwaukee's Rico Carty fell 17 points to a fifth-place 322. Carty had only three hits in 22 tries.

Card Victory Protected By Throw Outs

Mike Shannon and Lou Brock threw out Stan Fineston runners at the plate, protecting St. Louis' 2-1 victory over the Giants Monday night.
 The loss dropped the second-place Giants three games behind the Philadelphia Phillies, who now hold the biggest lead of the season in the battle for the National League pennant.
 The Cardinals scored single runs in the first and second innings off Ron Huff for a 2-0 lead. Then, in the fifth, the Giants made their first hit.
 Tom Haller led off with a single, and two outs later, Harvey Kuenn singled him to second. Hal Lerner then popped a single to right but Haller was out at home on a rifle throw from Shannon to catcher Tim McCarver.
 Jim Ray Hart pulled the Giants to within one run in the seventh and the Cardinals mounted another threat in the eighth when Orlando Cepeda and Hal Lerner singled with two out. Haller then singled to left field, but Cepeda, trying to score from second on the hit, was out on Brock's peg to McCarver.
 The Cardinals scored in the first when Brock beat out an infield hit, went all the way to third on Herbert's wild throw on a pickoff attempt and scored on Bill White's single. White then extended his hitting streak to 18 games.
 In the second, singles by Dick Groat, McCarver and pitcher Bob Gibson produced another run.
 Gibson got the victory for a 10-9 record. Herbert, 8-7, was the loser.
 Mel Queen stroked three hits and Steve Boros drove in three runs in support of Bob Purkey's four-hit pitching, as the Cincinnati Reds whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 Monday night.
 The Reds jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning when the first four batters hit safely and drove Dodger starter Joe Mauer out.
 A double by Pete Rose, singles by Queen and Vada Pinson and a double by Frank Robinson produced three runs. Bob Reed, who replaced Mauer, forced in another run by leading a base-loaded walk to Boros.
 The Reds added two runs in the third on a walk to John Edwards and Boros double. Boros eventually scored on a wild pitch. Cincinnati added its last run in the fifth. Boros driving in Edwards with a single.
 The Dodgers scored in the fourth as Maury Wills reached first on Leo Cardenas' error and came home on Ron Fairly's double, the first hit off Purkey.
 Another run scored in the eighth on Willie Davis' single.

MAULEVER HALL

at the door and he turned, after a swift look to make sure that Urban was still securely tied, to swing it open.

There was a little bustle outside, and four people entered the hall. First came the Duchess of Lundy warmly wrapped in her old greatestcoat, and then, behind her, the Duke and a squat, short stranger, one on either side of Lady Heverdon.

"Well, the Duchess took in the scene," "You seem to have managed well enough without us." She looked without much interest at Urban, then turned again to Marianne. "I am glad about the girl. Mr. Mauleverer, of course." And then, as he made his bow as formally as if they were at St. James', "I must present Mr. Barnaby, of Bow Street."

The squat man took a short step forward and made an awkward all-inclusive bow to the company, but all the time the sharp eyes under his shaggy brows were fixed on Marianne. "Miss Urban?" His voice was questioning.

"Yes," Marianne turned to the Duchess. "I have remembered everything."

"Well, that's a comfort. I was wondering where you'd begin bewailing it to you." The Duchess turned to John Barnaby. "Well, Mr. Barnaby, you have found your missing heiress. She yawned enormously. "And the best is that, I am sure that Mr. Mauleverer's servants will find you accommodation for the night."

MARIANNE laughed and turned to Urban. "The fact is, ma'am, that there are no servants. They have all been sent off to Exton."

"I see." It was clear that the Duchess saw a great deal. "Then we are like to have an uncomfortable night of it. But I have no doubt an old campaigner like you, Mr. Barnaby, will be able to look out for yourself." A significant glance directed him to the green baize door at the far end of the hall.

"What has Lady Heverdon to say?" asked the Duchess.

Marianne had been straining her ears in a vain attempt to try and hear what Lady Heverdon had been saying to himself. Now he turned to the Duchess, his voice dry. "She says, 'You see, that it is all a terrible mistake. She knew nothing of any plot; cares nothing for Mr. Urban there; cannot imagine why you and your nephew have thought fit to abduct her. I use her words, you understand.'"

"But it is true," Lady Heverdon moved forward into the full glow of the candlelight. Her face, as she turned great pleading eyes from Mauleverer to the Duchess, was that of a child misunderstood. "Mr. Urban and I are old friends; it is true, we often, jestingly, called each other cousin, but you know what it is that I love."

Her huge eyes pleaded with Mauleverer. "If Mr. Urban has deduced himself that I felt more for him than friendship, it is not my fault. Though I still cannot believe he is guilty of the things you have told me. Surely there must be some mistake."

"Mistake!" Ralph Urban spoke explosively from his chair. "There has indeed been a mistake - mine. So you, lady, and so publicly, too, but you know, madam, that there has never been any question of an engagement between us. I am your stepson's guardian; that is all that is known."

There was a thick silence in the hall. Everyone's eyes were turned on Mauleverer, except the Duke's, which Marianne felt compassionately fixed on her own face. For a long moment, Mauleverer was silent, gazing down into the beautiful face so becomingly tilted up to him. "I am loath to give the lie to a lady, and so publicly, too, but you know, madam, that there has never been any question of an engagement between us. I am your stepson's guardian; that is all that is known."

"Oh, monstrous." Her wild eyes appealed to them all. "How can you say such a thing! And if you betray me, who will stand my friend?" Tears flooded from the great blue eyes as she turned from the silent Duke to the Duchess and then at last, as if involuntarily to Urban, very still in his chair.

"Not I, for one, Miranda. I hope he has betrayed you, though, frankly, I doubt it. You have taken your goods to too many markets at last, cousin." The last word was a mockery. His mocking eyes swept from her to Mauleverer and back.

Lady Heverdon did the only thing left to her. She went into violent hysterics.

Inevitably, Marianne moved forward. "I will take her upstairs," she said.

Urban's fate is decided, as is Marianne's destiny. The story concludes tomorrow.

Dear Abby . . .

THE HEIGHT OF 'MODESTY'!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband was raised in a family where MODESTY was the eleventh commandment. About a year ago he developed a hernia which kept getting worse. After begging him to see a doctor, he finally went. The doctor said he needed an operation right away.

When my husband found out there would be a surgical nurse there, he said he would rather die than have the operation. He went to four other doctors and they all told him the same thing, and none of them could promise him that a nurse wouldn't have any part in caring for him. My husband said nurses are okay for women and children, but not for a man with a hernia.

This was the first time he had been to a doctor since he took his physical for World War II. He is worrying me sick. Can you help me?

MODESTY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Modesty is one thing—idioty is another. Ask one of those four doctors to assure your husband that nurses couldn't care less about a patient's body. And he should cut out the foolishness and head for the hospital.

Jimmy and Gary Dean Wilkins, all brothers of the bride-elect.

Following the ceremony a reception will be held in the social hall of the church and all relatives and friends of both families are cordially invited to attend.

DEAR ABBY: I would like some information on how long a person should wait after the death of her husband (whom she loved dearly) before calling a gentleman friend who asked her to ring him up as soon as she felt like it.

PROPER IN PENSACOLA

DEAR PROPER: Just long enough so that she won't feel guilty when she dials.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when another couple you know quite well call you up and say they "might" be over? Sometimes they show up and sometimes they don't. There have been times when we would have gone some place ourselves, but we stayed home waiting for them.

D. and S.

DEAR D. and S.: Next time they call, tell them you want to know definitely if they plan to come because you "might not" be home.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of the topsies bathing suits?

DALE

DEAR DALE: I think they're tops — for boys!
