Rotarians To Host District Governor

Granville Clark

The Murray Rotary Club will be host to Rotary District 671 Governor, Granville Clark of Russellville, Kentucky this Thursday.

Clark will speak to the club at the noon meeting, then meet with club committee heads and officers at a club assembly on Thursday evening.

A native of Russellville, Clark received his education at Kemper Military College and the University of Kentucky. He was active in extra curricular affairs while at UK and received his L. L. B. Degree from the university.

During World War II he served for four and one-half years with the Counter Intelligence Corps and since the end of the war has practiced law in Russellville.

He has been a member of Rotary since 1948 and has been active in Rotary affairs and civic affairs since that time. He was a charter member and first president of the Russellville-Logan County Junior Chamber of Commerce and is presently superintendent of the Russellville Methodist Church Sunday School.

He is vice-chairman of the Logan County Hospital Board.

Each year the Rotary District Governor visits each club in the district which extends west from Louisville.

The regular monthly dinner meeting of the AIEE West Tennessee and Kentucky Chapter was held at McKenzie on Nov. 30, 1964, with 16 members present.

The program consisted of the showing of two excellent color movie films on automated conveyor systems as used in large warehousing operation and in a refrigerator manufacturing plant.

Hansel Bonds, Robert Buckingham, Ken Wingert, Tom Wells, and Holmes Ellis, Jr., of the Tappan Company attended from Murray.

The group voted to have their regular dinner meeting in December, which will be held on December 28, 1964 at the Holiday Inn at Milan at 6:30 p.m., with dinner from the menu.

All interested in Industrial Engineering are invited. Further information may be obtained from the Chapter President, Odell Jones, at the University of Tennessee Martin Branch.

Hiroshima Pilot Declared Insane

GALVESTON, Tex. (UP) - Former Air Force Maj. Claude Eatherly, the "Hiroshima pilot" was declared insane Monday and ordered committed to a mental hospital.

Eatherly piloted the scout plane that gave the all-clear for the atomic bombing of Hiroshima in the closing days of World War II. He has been in and out of jail and hospitals ever since.

Eatherly says he is tortured by guilt feelings. Others describe him as an unstable egotist who feels cheated of glory and exaggerates his own part in the bomb attack.

"Hiroshima! How can I ever forget it!" he cried once. "Every night for years I have dreamed about it. I see great fires, boiling fires, crimson fires, closing in on me. Buildings fall. Children run - living torches with their clothes aflame."

Monday's sanity hearing was brought about by the latest of Eatherly's long string of brushes with the law, all petty crimes poorly executed. He took $10 from a hotel using a toy pistol, police said, and also tried to rob a supermarket. But he gave up and bought a pack of cigarettes when the clerk refused to be robbed.

Courts and prosecutors have always treated him leniently in the past, in view of his war record. He has been jailed eight times, was almost always jobless, and reportedly has tried to commit suicide.

Mail Christmas Cards, Packages Early Urges Postmaster Nanny

Postmaster Nanny reports that the Post Office Department is confidently predicting that the volume of mail during this year's Christmas rush will hit a record high.

"Actually," he says, "it's an easy prediction because mail volume has been rising at a rate of nearly three percent a year for the past several years and this is most strongly reflected around the holiday season."

Well over twelve billion pieces of incoming and outgoing mail are expected to move through the system during December - with about ten percent of the year's mail moving in less than three weeks.

The Murray postmaster reports that public cooperation is one important reason that post offices around the country are able to handle this huge mountain of mail in such a short period.

"Without the assistance of the public, we'd be in a jam. People who shop early and get their cards and parcels into the mails early make it possible for the holiday mail to be delivered on time. Imagine what it would be like if we were to get all the holiday mails the last week before Christmas?"

In addition to early mailing, the postmaster has several other suggestions which will help the hard-working postal employees move this avalanche of mail. First, he recommends using ZIP Codes which help handle the mails faster because of a new transportation and distribution set-up. ZIP Code also helps clerks to identify receiving post offices when addresses are hard to read. During this time of the year, the faster mail is processed the better chance it has to make connections with outgoing trains, planes and trucks.

Postmaster Nanny also recommends that all parcels be wrapped securely, packed tightly and that the address be included inside the package as well as on the outside. This helps assure delivery even if the outer wrapping comes loose. The Postmaster points out that "because ZIP Code on parcels usually means a more direct routing and less handling, the chance of damage is drastically reduced."

Finally, Postmaster Nanny says that the use of the new Christmas stamps helps brighten up envelopes and packages.

There are thirty postal employees working in the Murray Post Office to assure you a Merry Christmas, Nanny said. By following Postmaster Nanny's advice, you can help them and yourself to a more relaxed, happier holiday.

Local Debaters Win First Place In KID Tournament

The Murray State College novice debate team won the state championship trophy in the novice division of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Debate Tournament Saturday.

The Murray teams included Mike Nims, Paducah, Mike Smith, Murray, on the Affirmative; John Thompson, New Jersey, and Ed Frank Jeffrey, Murray, on the Negative. Both teams won all their debates. The Second Place trophy went to the University of Kentucky.

Prof. Clyde Faries, Assistant Debate Coach, accompanied the team to Cumberland College, Williamsburg, Kentucky, host to the state meet of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Forensic Conference.

The Affirmative team defeated Eastern State College (40-36), Transylvania (42-31), University of Kentucky (36-29), and Western State College (45-43). The Negative defeated Ursuline (37-33), Pikeville (28-42), Morehead (30-35), and Cumberland (24-42).

Mike Nims came in first among the Murray debaters receiving 82 points. Nims received a certificate for being the second highest ranked individual debater in the tournament. Smith scored 81 points, ranking third in the tournament; Jeffrey received 79 points, and Thompson 74.

The team, coached by Prof. Albert Tracy, debated the national collegiate debate topic, Resolved: That the United States should establish a program of public work for the unemployed. The next tournament for Murray will be its own annual "Old Gray Mare" tournament to be held January 15-16.

Youthful Virtuoso Impresses Large Audience With Spectacular Pianistic Technique

By John C. Winter

Lorin Hollander, twenty year old pianist, enchanted a large and appreciative audience at the Murray State College auditorium Monday night. Keeping up the high standards already set here by such visiting artists as Jean Madeira, Ruth Slenczynska, and Walter Hantz, the young Mr. Hollander maneuvered through a physically and musically demanding concert with aplomb, skill, and a spectacular display of pianistic technique.

The "Rondo Capriccioso" by Mendelssohn was pensive, playful, sparkling and brilliant in its various moods, and proved to be an attractive opener for the evening.

Beethoven's Sonata in E major, Opus 109, followed. This profound late work by the master was handled with more depth and ease than one might expect from so youthful a performer.

Regrettably the lovely Chopin Fantasia in F minor was omitted from the program, as printed. In its place was his ever pleasing Nocturne in E-flat major, and an arrangement by the artist of the cadenza from Prokofiev's second piano concerto. The lyricism of the latter was enveloped in bombastic energy which excited the audience.

The most enjoyable work of the evening was "Pictures at an Exhibition" by Modest Mousorgsky. Although originally written for piano this work depicting a visit to an exhibition of water-colors and drawings, is probably heard more often in orchestral or brass arrangements. But how exciting it was to hear it again in its original medium, at the hands of the exuberant young virtuoso.

Encores included a beautifully transparent presentation of Debussy's "Clair de Lune," and an energetic Tocata in E minor by the contemporary Israeli composer Ben Haim.

Citizens of Murray and Western Kentucky are indeed grateful to the Murray Civic Music Association and to Murray State College for presenting artists of the stature of Mr. Hollander to this area. The next concert, in January, will feature the well known violinist Sidney Harth.

IN FLORIDA

Annual Football Banquet Is Held Here Last Night

The annual Murray High School football banquet was held last night at the Southside Restaurant with approximately ninety football players, coaches, managers and fathers and members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in attendance.

The event is sponsored by the J.C. Don Shelton coach at Murray State College was the principal speaker.

Opening remarks were made by El Alexander, principal of the school, and Don Overby, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Shelton used as his theme leadership and courage and compared the game of football with the "game of life."

He stressed the importance of obtaining an education as the number one effort in the life of an athlete with his athletic endeavors being in second place.

Coach Shelton was presented with a country ham at the conclusion of his talk.

The presentation of awards was made to the outstanding football players of the year.

Assistant Coach Bob Toon presented the backfield defensive award to Jerome Brandon. John Bennett received the best defensive lineman award which was bestowed by Coach Joe Cartwright.

Assistant Coach Terry Shelton presented the best blocking back award to Charlie Warren, this year's co-captain.

Line Coach Dub Russell presented the next awards, both went to Bill Adams. He received the senior excellence award and the best blocking lineman award.

Coach Ty Holland gave a brief account of the 1964 season and pointed out that the 1964 Tigers had a great desire to win. He recounted the fact that in the past five years Tiger teams have won 84 per cent of their regularly scheduled games winning 42 and losing 8.

Gold footballs were presented by Coach Holland to John Bennett, Steve Doran and Jimmy Wilkins for their recognition in the West Kentucky Conference play.

Arlo Sprunger and Tony Thomas were announced as co-captains next year by the retiring co-captains Bill Adams and Charlie Warren.

A film of the Murray High-Hopkinsville game was shown at the conclusion of the program.

Mariner-4 Speeds Toward Destination

PASADENA, Calif. (UP) - Mariner-4, speeding toward Mars for a historic picture-taking rendezvous next July, has run into two unexpected problems - one attributed to a speck of dust.

However, scientists at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory JPL said that neither problem was stopping the American spacecraft from continuing on its journey.

Mariner-4 momentarily lost its "lock" on the star Canopus, possibly because of a dust particle perhaps no larger than 0.005 of an inch thick. The vehicle locked on to another star, Gamma Veia, 28 degrees away.

At an opportune time, scientists here planned to send a radio signal more than a million miles through space for an "electronic eye" aboard Mariner-4 to shift its gaze from Gamma Veia and again lock onto Canopus, second brightest star in the heaven.

Scientists also reported that one of eight programmed experiments - dealing with solar plasma - had ceased to function. It also was hoped that this function could be re-activated.

The purpose of this part of the test is to measure and transmit to scientists here the density, velocities, temperatures and direction of low energy protons that emanate from the sun at supersonic speeds to form the "solar wind."

Five other experiments were working and two others will be attempted when Mariner-4s 7 1/2-month-long, 325-million-mile trip is climaxed about July 14 with a fly-by of Mars.

Peoria Is Name Of Town Where Murray Never Quite Wins

By United Press International
Peoria used to be the butt of a good many vaudeville jokes, but there's nothing funny about the Illinois city to Murray State's basketball team—it's just the place where they never quite manage to beat Bradley.

Murray lost a 76-74 decision to the Braves there Monday night—their third near-miss in as many tries over the past three seasons.

Two years ago Murray came within one point of a big upset at 79-78; last year it was 85-78, and Monday night the Racers just missed again after chopping down a 15-point Bradley lead in the second half.

In other Kentucky college action Monday night, Kentucky State came from behind to edge Kentucky Wesleyan, 80-74; Pikeville beat Cumberland, 87-80; Union lost to Xavier, 96-66; Villa Madonna opened its annual eastern swing by losing to Gannon College at Erie, Pa., 81-65, and Georgetown downed Oakland City, 91-81.

A five-minute drought at the start of the second half during which Murray failed to score gave Bradley its 15-point margin, and although Murray rallied gamely thereafter, the Braves couldn't overtake a Bradley team that was hitting 57 per cent of its shots.

Herb McPherson with 17 points and Stu Johnson with 16 led Murray scoring, but Tom Campbell netted 22 for Bradley.

Westman had a 21-70 lead over Kentucky State with four minutes left on a shot by Charles Taylor, but Dave Barnes put KSC ahead with a three-point trip and the Panthers never caught up again in the game at Frankfort.

A blazing 61 per cent shooting performance was all Pikeville needed to down Cumberland, as Terry Epling racked up 35 points for the winners.

NANCY

ABBIE AN' SLATS

From the novel published by Avon Books. Copyright, 1964 by Brian Garfield. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
When Phil Chance and the stagecoach checked into the hotel, he found Owen Murdock and his shady friends. Phil had seen a line of a railroad for Murdock and the hotel was a stockholder's town in Arizona Territory to start now as construction superintendent of the Arizona Western for Colonel Charles Evernigh. But waiting at the hotel was Ed Craig, one of Mur-dock's goons, with a message for Phil to leave town.

CHAPTER 2
PHIL CHANCE heard the sound of bull-throated laughter coming through Colonel Evernigh's door. He palmed the knob, knocked briefly with his knuckles, and stepped into the room.

It was obviously the biggest suite in the hotel—and the only one with comfortable furniture.
Colonel Charles Evernigh sat
thick and round-bellied on a red stuffed divan, laughing through a screen of cigar smoke. Perched on the arm of a chair in the corner was a German engineer.
He was young and good hum-ored and something of a dandy,
but he had a mind that was marvelous with tools and pencil. No one could design a better bridge, or lay out a better
roadbed grade on paper.

Evernigh sat up. "Phil, you don't know how glad I am to see you!"

Chance stepped into the room, shut the door, and shook the colonel's meaty hand. Evernigh's round face was broiled
lobster-red by the desert heat;
his close-cropped gray beard shed sweat in little droplets. In a quieter tone he said, "I was praying you'd come." Then he turned, smiling again. "You know Curt, I guess."

"Well enough," Chance said,
shaking the engineer's hand.
"How are you, Phil?" Leasing said. His smile was infectious.

Evernigh sat back down on the divan. "Pull up a chair, Phil. I was beginning to wonder if you'd ever get here."

"They had to pack your letter twenty miles back in the mountains to reach me," Chance said.

"What the devil were you doing that far from civilization?"
"Prospecting."

The colonel's jaw dropped.
After a moment he burst into loud laughter. "Lord," he said,
gathering his breath, "that's a good one. The best railroad builder in Arizona, off in the wilderness prospecting."

"I got tired of building railroads," Chance drawled. He did not add that his experience working for Owen Murdock's
Gadsden and Naco Railroad

Company had gone a good distance toward making him sour
on the trade.

"Well," Evernigh said, "just the same, you're here now. We can get down to work."

"I haven't taken the job yet,"
Chance said softly.

It was as if the room had taken a quick indrawn breath.
Evernigh and Leasing stared at him, dumfounded. Chance said, "Before I agree to accept,
I want to know exactly what I'm going to have to do."

EVERNIGHT exhaled a long gust of breath. "I built this road up from scratch," he said.
"You know all that. I suppose.
The Arizona Western was just a gleam in the stockholders' eyes when I took it over. I bought up a big chunk of stock and went to work. We laid tracks as far as Spanish Flat,
and then the Board of Directors got up on their hind legs and pulled a brake cord. They decided to wait and see if the line prospered before extending it farther across the Territory. All right—I was agreeable to that.
We made a good profit, transported livestock and feed,
freight and passengers.

"Finally, the board gave me
the signal to go ahead and extend the road from Spanish Flat across the country to Arrowhead, with spur lines into Arroyo Seco and Antelope.
All told, there were two hundred miles of track, plus sidings. All right. I went to work. Curt here, has been both engineer and construction superintendent
—and that's a job no man should have to carry on his shoulder alone. But we rammed it through all the way from Spanish Flat to here in twenty-three days.

"We had to bridge two gorges and knock down half of a mountain and build tons of grade.
But we did it. I've got crack men running the construction crews—Miles Magruder on the track gang, Hugh O'Reilly on the bridges. Tim Mackenzie on grade construction. But then they stuck a foot out and tripped us."

Chance looked up. "Who?"

"Owen Murdock," Evernigh
said glumly.

"I see," Chance said slowly,
and all of a sudden the visit paid him not an hour ago by Ed Craig made sense. "Tell me about it."

"I found out a month ago," Evernigh said, "that Murdock was buying into Arizona Western stock. Maybe he wanted to take it over and make it a part of his Gadsden and Naco line—I don't know. Maybe it was for personal spite. When they built the Northwestern Pacific, they chose me over Murdock to superintend operations. He's never forgotten that. Anyway, as soon as I found out that his agents were buying up all the stock

they could grab, I moved in self-defense. I kept buying stock from friends of mine until I owned fifty-one per cent of the controlling interest. When Murdock found out about it, he hit the ceiling."

"I can imagine," Chance said
dryly.

"But he wasn't through yet," Evernigh continued. "Obviously it takes capital to build a railroad—a lot more money than I could get personally. I had to borrow a lot of money.
That was where I made my mistake. I see now. I took it all in short-term loans—one year mortgages on the right-of-way and equipment."

"One year?" Chance said.

"What's the point of that? Even if the road runs at a profit,
you'll never get all that money
back in one year."

"I know," Evernigh said.
"It was a gamble. I took the short-term mortgages because the interest was low. I planned to have the road built by the time those notes came due.
Then, on the strength of a mail contract and an operating railroad, it would be easy to go to the big banks in Denver and arrange a long-term mortgage at more agreeable terms. You see?"

"Yes."

"Well," Evernigh said broodingly, "you can guess what happened. Owen Murdock stepped in and bought up my short-term notes from the Prescott banks. Fortunately, they're drawn in such a way that he can't force immediate foreclosure. But you can bet he won't allow me to exercise the extension options."

"When do they come due?"
Chance asked.

"The first of September," Evernigh said. "Ninety-six days from today." His voice was flat. "If I don't have this railroad completed by that date, Murdock will foreclose. The whole shebang will fall right into his hands. He'll have his laugh at me at last, if he swings
it."

"In other words," Chance
said, "you want to build a line
from here to Arrowhead in ninety-six days."

"Ninety-five," Evernigh said.
"As soon as the first scheduled train rolls into Arrowhead, I'll be able to get my loans from the Denver banks and pay back Murdock before the due date."

For the pre-nuptial event the bride-elect chose to wear a red shift wool dress with red accessories and was presented a corsage of white carnations by the hostesses. Her mother, Mrs. James Smothers, was attired in a red wool crepe dress with black accessories and her hostesses' gift corsage was of white carnations.

Games were played with Miss Nancy Story and Miss Marilyn Hopkins winning the prizes who then presented them to the honoree.

Refreshments were served buffet style from the beautiful appointed table in the spacious den. The table was overlaid with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink and white carnations and gladioli with greenery.

Mrs. Max Outland presided at the bowl and Mrs. Jackie Burken served the cake.

Eighteen persons were present or sent gifts.

Dear Abby . . .

Don't Regret It!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After 15 years of marriage, my husband and I separated because of his interest in another woman. We lived apart for two months and then he asked to come home again, so I let him. Although we are living together, he is not the same any more. We are married in name only and I think the only reason he came back was because it is cheaper than living separately. He comes and goes as he pleases and I'm alone most of the time anyway. I think he still has this woman on his mind. I am depressed and upset all the time. Do I have to put up with this? Don't advise me to see a lawyer because my husband is one.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who was widowed after 18 years of marriage to a truly wonderful man. He was loved and respected in the community. He provided well for his wife during his lifetime and left her with no money worries. She recently married again. She claims her second husband is "her age," but he looks younger. She tells everyone she meets that her second husband is sooooo much better than her first, this is the first time she has ever really been "in love," she never dreamed such happiness could be hers, and on and on and on. It is so unbecoming, Abby. How can I, her oldest and dearest friend, let her know how foolish she sounds?

DEAR ABBY: You probably can't. But if you are willing to test your friendship, go ahead and try.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people who are honest in every other respect think nothing of cheating the telephone company? I refer to those person-to-person calls to signal someone that you have arrived safely. I was recently visiting a friend when her son, who had driven himself to college, telephoned and asked for "Fritz" McGuire person-to-person. "Fritz" is the DOG! She laughed and said "ways did that to let the son he got there all right. I don't see some way the telephone company can put a stop to that?"

DEAR ABBY: If there were, they would have put a stop to it long ago. But if you (or anyone else) can come up with a solution, I am sure the telephone company would like your number.

CONFIDENTIAL TO E. E. IN GREENVILLE, N.C.: Man's great capacity for suffering proves if he has a spark of the divine within him. For no mere mortal could endure the pain that many a man is called upon to bear during his lifetime.
