Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

News seems to be sort of scarce today. Went over to the Sheriff's office and little seemed to be going on except they were taking in money from folks who don't want to pay a penalty come January.

Down to the County Judge's office and he was out. Noticed one of those gadgets on Faye Nell Flora's desk. We think they are called "Wetridies". They are little people who look weird. Maybe that's where they got the name for them.

It's quite a chore getting rid of all the old calendars. We usually have two stuck up in front of us and two on the other wall here at the office. They are put up at vantage points at home too.

With all the calendars, clocks and watches around we feel sometime we worship time as much as the Mayas of the Yucatan.

Those people kept up with time so carefully it was an obsession. The bloodmobile will be back through here on January 14 if you failed to give some blood, make plans to give it then. Everybody in the county is covered at the present time. By that we mean that if anyone needs blood they get it free, with only the cost of getting it in you being charged.

Blood is kept in plastic containers instead of glass. For some reason it will last for 21 days in plastic but only 48 hours in glass. A nice fellow, Doug Shoemaker. We have watched Mr. Brausa hang out saddles and harness across the street for the past 19 years come next month.

He usually hangs out saddles when he arrives in the morning, takes them in when he leaves for lunch, puts them back out when he comes back from lunch, then takes them in when he goes home for the night.

Mr. Brausa is quite a craftsman. About the only thing that keeps crafts in existence now are the vocational departments of high schools and colleges.

One Injured In Accident This Morning

One person was injured this morning in an accident at 8th and Main streets at 10:50. City Police reported that William Bernard Tabers, driving a 1962 Falcon Station Wagon struck a 1960 Volkswagen driven by Paula Owens Mims. Tabers was proceeding south on Eighth Street and stopped at the intersection, then proceeded across Mrs. Mims was going east on Main. Police reported that Tabers mowed out into the intersection striking the Volkswagen, turning it over at the curb. Mrs. Mims was taken to the Murray Hospital, however her condition is not known. It is thought that she is not seriously injured.

Insurance Firm Has New Name; Plans Large Expansion

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - The 34-year-old National Investors Life Insurance Co., incorporated in 1931 and headquartered here, Tuesday formally changed its name to Investors Heritage Life Insurance Co. President Harry Lee Waterfield, of Clinton, who also is lieutenant governor of Kentucky, filed an amendment to the firm's articles of incorporation with Secretary of State Thelma Stovall registering the new name.

Accompanying the amendment was an authorization from state Insurance Commissioner William E. Bivin approving the change. Waterfield said the firm will seek approval to expand its policy sales in 11 other states.

Waterfield said Investors Heritage also plans to seek authority from the Securities and Exchange Commission SEC to market secondary offerings of company stock in states other than Kentucky. He said this would be requested as the need arises to capitalize new business generated by the expanded operation. He said stock certificates in the firm's new name can be obtained by exchanging old stock certificates from the firm's transfer agent, Citizens Fidelity Bank & Trust Co., Louisville.

Waterfield noted the firm will end 1964 with assets of more than $2.5 million. Notices of the name change have been mailed to policyholders and stockholders.

Fantus Report Meeting Set For Monday

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) - Civic leaders from McCracken, Ballard, Livingston and Marshall counties will meet here next Monday night to discuss and study the Fantus Arms Research Report. The report is one of a series being made for the state Department of Commerce by the Fantus agency on the prospects for commercial and industrial development of various regions of Kentucky. Only one section of the report for western Kentucky has been made public so far - a section that points to inadequate school financing in some areas as damaging the prospects for attracting industry to this part of the state. Representing the state Department of Commerce at the meeting will be Commissioner Katherine Peden and Deputy Commissioner Leonard Keren. Industrial Relations Commissioner Carl Cagle and state Chamber of Commerce President Jack Tankersley also planned to attend.

Anyone wishing to contribute clothing, furniture or home furnishings to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilcher, whose home burned on Monday, may leave items at Lucas Shoe Shop on North Fifth Street or at 502 South Eighth. The family's home at 607 Pine Street burned on Monday and practically all the furnishings were destroyed. Mrs. Wilcher wears size 10 or 11 and Mr. Wilcher wears a medium shirt and approximately size 32-34 trousers. Ralph Jackson, Mrs. Wilcher's son also wears the above sizes. Needed are home furnishings, furniture, linen, in fact just about everything that is used in a home. Three of the four rooms of the house were gutted by the blaze.

Blood Program To Be Held On January 14

The men and women who come to the Carr Health Building, Murray State College, on January 14 to donate their blood at the Red Cross Bloodmobile will witness, as donors here always have, a quietly and smoothly running operation. Henry Holton, Blood Program Chairman of the Calloway County Chapter, pointed out that few donors realize the detailed planning that precedes a blood collection, the varied work and time required to make a blood collection efficient and successful.

Lettuce Cigarettes Produced; Reaction Proves To Be Varied

The date of the collection is scheduled several months in advance for this reason. To fit the visit here with those to other communities in this section of the state, and to give the local chapter time to make arrangements for the location and operation of the visit. And most important of all, Mr. Holton said, the chapter here must have time to recruit donors. "That's where our work really begins." An appeal is made through the press and radio asking donors to give blood. Then each person who has promised to give blood is contacted by volunteers for a definite time to schedule their donation as nearly as possible to suit their convenience. They are then reminded of their appointment by a group of volunteers on the telephone committee. Then, two or three weeks before the bloodmobile visit, Mrs. Ann Hays, Chairman of Volunteers, begins getting workers lined up to perform the various chores necessary to make the collection a success. Holton stated that the blood quota remains at 167 pints per visit and if Calloway Countians remain under blanket coverage, this quota must be met at every visit.

Flood Battered West Maps Plan For Recovery

By NEAL CORBETT United Press International SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Federal, state and local officials mapped plans for extensive recovery programs in the flood-battered Far West today - but it was crosswinds and swirling snow, as usual, for daredevil helicopter pilots on rescue missions. The overall picture in the five-state area after 10 consecutive stormy days was much clearer than the weather in the mountainous areas near the California-Oregon border where helicopters were attempting to provide supplies to some 2,500 persons marooned by the Christmas floods. The pilots, flying in rapidly changing weather conditions completed some missions Tuesday to Happy Camp, where 1,900 persons had been cut off from the outside. Three homes were destroyed there and 50 others damaged, but Mrs. Bob Wright felt the town's residents were lucky. "A lot of people have colds," she said, "but fortunately we had no casualties." Attempts to reach other isolated communities on the Klamath and Salmon rivers were turned back by the fury of the snow, which was expected to continue through today. The snowstorm was an aftermath of the infernal floods that took at least 41 lives and caused $100 million in damage estimated at nearly $700 million in the five-state area of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Nevada. A fleet of 50 helicopters - military and civilian - were engaged in the rescue operations in northern California. The overall picture in the flood area, showed a staggering loss. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown said the loss in his state was conservatively estimated at $300 million. He declared 21 counties disaster areas and has asked the federal government for grain to feed (Continued on Page 8)

In 1903, more than 585 persons were killed in a fire in the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

Tennessee, Vanderbilt And Florida Fight Way Into Finals Of Holiday Tournaments

Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Florida fought their way into the finals of important holiday basketball tournaments Tuesday night and the Southeastern Conference grabbed additional prestige with victories by Alabama, Auburn and Louisiana State.

On the debit side, Kentucky gave up its highest score ever when Notre Dame handed the Wildcats a 111-97 defeat in a non-tournament game at Louisville.

Other SEC losers in tournaments Tuesday night were Georgia, Mississippi, and Mississippi State and Louisiana State.

Invitational at Jackson.

Breaks Scoring Record
Auburn broke a Poinsettia Classic scoring record in downing Furman 107-86 in a consolation game at the tournament at Greenville, S. C., Alabama won the consolation crown in the Charlotte Invitational by trimming Duquesne 62-57 Louisiana State handed winless Rice its eighth straight loss, 76-63, in the All-College tourney at Oklahoma City for a semi-final victory in the consolation bracket.

In knocking off Oregon, Tennessee earned the right to meet tough Oregon State tonight for the Far West championship. Oregon State won its 23rd consecutive Far West classic victory by defeating Northwestern 67-65.

Forward A. W. Davis led Tennessee with 18 points and guard Larry McIntosh had 16 in the Volunteers' victory that improved their season's record to 7-0.

To Meet Louisville

Vandy's all Commodores had little trouble with Texas Tech and will meet Louisville, winner 77-71 over Georgia Tech, in the championship at New Orleans.

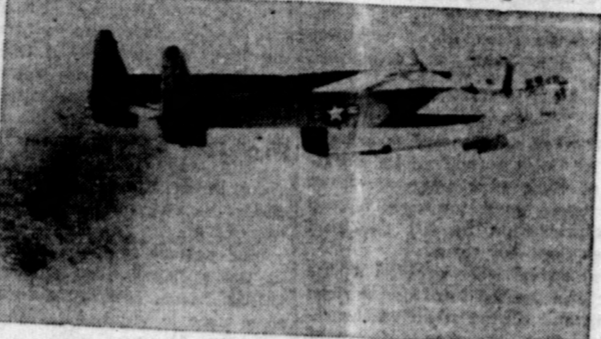

Vanderbilt's 6-9 Clyde Lee scored 20 points and 6-7 Bob Grace added 19 for the Vandy triumph. Florida sophomores Gary Keller, 6-9, and Jeff Ramsey, 6-10, dominated the backboards in the Gator Bowl win over Wake Forest.

Florida was seen as the favorite over Texas in the final tonight because of its overpowering height and what amounts to a home court advantage.

A crowd of 17,000 turned out for the Irish at Louisville to see the Irish snap a three-game losing streak behind the 32-point barrage of Ron Reed, Louis-Dampier, the big hope of the Wildcats this year. Reed turned in a 32-point performance but control of the backboards was the story in the Notre Dame victory.

BOOKED IN U.N. BAZOOKA SHOT—Three anti-Castro Cubans look solemn at their booking in New York in the lobbying of a bazooka shell across the East River at the U.N. Building. Here Are Scores Of Bowl Games

By JACK CUDDY
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Ordering up a king-sized helping of football upsets on New Year's Day to accompany the holiday king-sized headaches:

Texas 10 Alabama 7, in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla. Texas maintains its whammy over the six-point favorite Crimson Tide, who have yet to defeat the Longhorns in five meetings. Defense will prevail in this clash of the '63 and '64 national champs. Nebraska 24 Arkansas 21, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex. Both teams have offenses that will make this the most interesting game on the television marathan, but Nebraska will be hungry after its final-game loss to Oklahoma and will out-root the unbeaten Razorbacks, who are six-point betting choices.

Orange Juiced Up
Syracuse 20 Louisiana State 7, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. The Orange offense will get the better of the Tigers' defense. Full-back Jim Nance and sophomore speedster Floyd Little scored 25 TD's between them this year for Syracuse. Michigan 30 Oregon State 14, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. This one will go according to form for the Wolverines, who are a solid 12-point choice. Oregon State had trouble with other Big Ten foes, Northwestern and Indiana, weak sisters in the conference this season, and the West Coast team shouldn't be much of a match for the champs and quarterback Bob Timberlake. Saturday's Upset
Oklahoma 14 Florida State 7, in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. Florida State is favored by three points because of its "seven man-ficients" in the defensive line but the Jim Grisham-Lance Rental ground attack for Oklahoma is good enough to penetrate them for a couple of scores—if the Soomers' season-long penchant for fumbling doesn't continue.

RAILS WEST By FRANK WYNNE

CHAPTER 20

THE JAIL of Camp Independence was like everything else, a makeshift structure capable of being dismantled and moved on to the next headquarters camp for the railroad.

The front hall was the jailer's office, was composed of canvas sides and roof, and the back hall—the cells—was made of timber, with a single small barred opening in the roof, and a saw-work of iron across the front, dividing the cells from the jailer's section. It was not a stonorous structure, but it was stout enough to hold a man.

In Phil Chance's cell the only piece of furniture was a wooden frame cot with canvas stretched across it. He sat on one end of this cot, tugged off his boots, and resolved to get a night's sleep, since there seemed to be nothing else he could do.

Marshal Tom Board's evidence for holding him was slim enough, all of it circumstantial. Chance had fought with Dwight Violet a few nights ago. That established the motive.

And Chance had been fool enough not to clean his revolver after having shot it out with Jack Stobo; his fired revolver was of the same caliber as the gun that had killed Violet. That was the sum of the evidence against him.

He knew no jury would convict him on such slim facts, but he also knew that Owen Murdoch didn't particularly care whether he was convicted or not. It would take a good deal of time for him to come to trial. And that was what Murdoch wanted—time, with Chance out of the way.

He lay back and dozed, wondering who the real killer might be. It didn't make sense that Murdoch or Ed Craig would kill Violet just to have an excuse for railroading him. Even Murdoch wasn't that cold-blooded. If Murdoch had seen behind the murder, he must have had a better reason than the framing of Phil Chance. Perhaps Murdoch had been afraid that Violet knew too much and in his dimwitted way, might reveal some of it to the wrong ears.

In the next cell a drunk snored loudly. Chance was almost asleep when someone came into the front office spoke softly to the jailer, and came back looking the ears carrying a lamp. Chance squinted up against the light and recognized Colonel Evernight. The Colonel grinned sardonically. "This is a hell of a fit you got yourself in."

"I didn't have much to say about it," Chance answered. "The whole thing is ridiculous. Evernight said, 'The crew's boiling mad. Magruder and I had to threaten to fire the lot of them—they were ready to march on the jail with their own clubs.'"

"Maybe you should have let them," Chance said.

"No. Whatever else we do, we stay on the side of the law." Evernight said. "I've already sent a wire to our lawyers. You're to be sent down to jail at the county seat in Spanish Flat. Sometimes next week there'll be a preliminary hearing. The lawyers will get you out on a writ after that, or post bail if the judge offers it. You'll be out before you know it."

"Colonel, I can't afford to be locked up for a week and a half. You can't afford it either."

Evernight's face darkened. "I know. But there's nothing else we can do, Phil. Just keep your shirt on, and I'll do everything I can."

"Sure," Chance said, lying back. "Thanks for the help."

"I wish it could be more," said Evernight, and went away with the lantern.

SHORTLY thereafter, a tussle in the front office awakened Chance again. The marshal, apparently, was bringing in a recalcitrant prisoner. Someone granted and the marshal heaved a man bodily into the vacant cell at Chance's left. The door clanged, the lock clicked, and Board went out.

Chance sat up and squinted into the gloom of the next cell. He saw a man grasping the front bars, glaring angrily outward. "Son of a snake!" the man said loudly, to no one in particular in a thick Irish brogue. Chance grinned. "Hello Shaughnessy."

The Irishman turned and came across to the bars of Chance's cell. "Well," he breathed, "praise be if it ain't the boss himself."

"What'd they throw you a here for, Shaughnessy?"

"Bustin' up on a couple bartenders over at Joel Outman's saloon."

"Why did you do that?" Chance asked.

"I'll tell you why," Shaughnessy said. "For puttin' a Mickey Finn in my whiskey last night, that's what for. Kept me off my feet all day today. I lost a day's wages, I'm thinkin' and I demanded retribution. The barkeeps wasn't anxious to oblige, so I busted a couple skulls together."

"Mickey Finn, Chanc," thought, and frowned. He didn't doubt the Irishman's word, but he couldn't see why Outman would want to drug his customers. He said, "Did they roll you for your money, Shaughnessy?"

"What money? I was broke when I left the place, just like I always am. I ain't a great believer in savin' my wages, y'see."

Chance muttered something in reply and worked the problem around in his mind, but before he produced a solution, he was asleep.

In the morning the jailer brought him an unappetizing breakfast on a tin tray. The jailer was a worn-out drifter, old and consumptive and bored. Chance debated various means of tricking the man into releasing him, but decided that none of them had much chance of working.

Before eight o'clock, he had his first visitor, Lena Murdoch came in, dressed in crisp fabric and looking very fresh against the drab dusty jail. She said, "They told me you were here."

"Did you come to greet?"

"Not exactly," she said. "But I must admit that in a way I'm glad to see you here."

"I'll bet you are," he agreed. "I didn't mean it that way."

"You're relieved to see you in a place where you won't get hurt."

"Your concern touches me deeply," he said, unable to keep the sarcasm out of his voice. "Don't be bitter," she murmured. "Was this your idea or your father's?"

Her eyes flashed. "That was cruel and unnecessary, Phil, and you know it."

"Sorry," he said, without warmth. "What do you want?"

"I want to know if there's anything I can do for you."

"Coming from work" he answered, "that's laughable."

"You really hate me, don't you?"

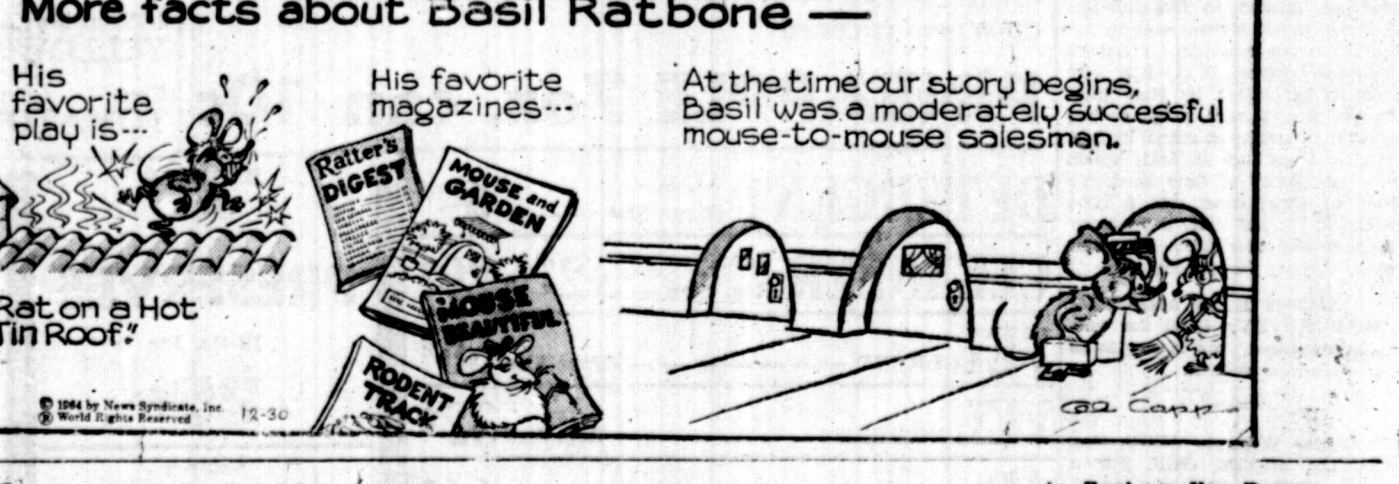

"No," he said. "I'm just disappointed in you, that's all."

"I'm sorry about that," she said. "But you wouldn't have wanted me to be dishonest about myself, would you?"

"Honesty isn't the only virtue," he told her. "But if it were, you wouldn't deserve much reward for it."

"Eileen came up to the cell and slipped a two-barreled derringer through the bars. Chance's expression showed no change. "The story continues here tomorrow."

Dear Abby,
It's Emotional Upset!

DEAR ABBY: I know this is going to sound ridiculous, but I'm ashamed to ask anyone else. How can I break my husband of sucking his thumb? When he sleeps, reads the newspaper or settles down to watch TV, he sucks his left thumb. I know he isn't aware of it because when I tell him to quit it, he is always shocked to find his thumb in his mouth. We have two small children who also suck their thumbs when they're tired, and it so hard to break them of it when they see their father doing it. Is it hereditary? It's such an unmanly habit for a 34-year-old man. It's caused many fights between us. Can you help me?

SUCKER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: A psychiatrist would probably tell you that your husband is longing for the security of his baby days. (They call it "regression.") It isn't hereditary. Children are imitative, which is partly the reason your children suck their thumbs. Granted, it's not "manly," but it's not worth fighting about, so if it irritates him to be reminded—skip it.

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited my sister, who lives in another state. She is married to a quiet, well-to-do man. They have a 16-year-old daughter. I didn't realize how much tension my sister was living under until I stayed there. He is a dictator and no one dares to disagree with him on anything. My sister has no car and if she isn't home when he calls, he comes home, waits for her and makes her account for every minute. He handles all the money. She never sees a red cent. Everything is charged and he pays the bills. The daughter isn't allowed to date or to accept a phone call from a boy. At dinner he demands that the daughter finish every speck on her plate, so the child has to choke it down with tears running down her cheeks. My sister sits there trembling, afraid to say a word. Once she tried to take her daughter's part against him and he slapped her from one end of the kitchen to the other. Now I know why people kill each other. Is there something I can do, legally, to relieve the situation?

CONCERNED
DEAR CONCERNED: You can't but your sister can if she wants to prefer charges against him. I doubt that she will, however, because a woman who puts up with the cruel and inhuman treatment is as "sick" as the husband who dishes it out. The most tragic victim is the daughter, who must be subjected to such a brutish tyrant. Try to persuade your sister to improve her situation or extricate herself and her daughter from it. But don't be surprised if she doesn't.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to offer a solution to INADEQUATE MOM. I am a 16-year-old high school junior. After dinner, I am expected to help with the dishes and then get no homework done. There is no television until ALL my homework is finished. If a "B" average is not maintained, I can't watch TV until after the next report cards come out. Phone conversations are limited to five minutes. (A timer which Mother uses in the kitchen is the remainder.) I have a 10 o'clock bedtime. If my hair isn't washed and rolled by that time, it's too bad. I have to go to bed anyway. I must be at school by 8:20 a.m. so I get up at 6:45, which gives me plenty of time to decide what to wear, dress, eat a good breakfast, fix my hair, put on my make-up and straighten my room before leaving for school.

KATHY K IN AMARILLO
DEAR KATHY: Good for you. You're organized. And it sounds so easy when you write it.
