Pascual Known, Man With Short Temper, Whip Lash Bat Swing

By FRED DOWN UPI Sports Writer

Camilo Pascual is known around the Minnesota Twins' clubhouse as a fellow with a short temper. A dazzling curve and a whip-lash batting swing.

The 31-year old right-hander from Havana, Cuba struck out five, walked only two and allowed only four hits to reach base safely.

The Chicago White Sox downed the Boston Red Sox, 10-1, the Washington Senators beat the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, and the Los Angeles Angels topped the Detroit Tigers, 4-3, in other games.

runs with three singles and a double as the White Sox scored their fifth straight victory.

Jimmy Piersall bunted into a forecourt but then sped to second when the base was left unguarded.

The Calloway County High School Lakers defeated the Branch High School Indians 34-0 in a basketball game, played here Tuesday.

Jimmy Lamb was the winning pitcher allowing five hits. The losing pitcher, Mike Peak, had the same number of hits, but the hits were his right and led to the Lakers' victory.

Bob Allison led Minnesota's 13-hit attack with a double and two singles and Pascual, Killebrew and Batters had 180 hits each.

Through six-inning Johnny Bushard pitched a six-inning and Don Buford drove in two

Robinson, Reds Are Proving s Robinson Goes, So Goes Team

By FRED DOWN UPI Sports Writer

Frank Robinson and the Cincinnati Reds are proving again that so the big slugger goes, so goes the team.

The National League's Most Valuable Player in 1961 when the Reds won the pennant, Robinson failed to achieve such major goals last season.

Robinson and the Reds are making their move a lot earlier this year—Robinson with the fastest start of his major league career and the Reds with seven victories in their first 11 games.

The 27-year old Robinson, in his 16th season in the majors, raised his average to a blistering .421 Tuesday night when he hit four straight singles and stole a base to lead the Reds to a 5-3 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Other big blows in the Reds' 12-hit attack were homers by Deron Johnson and Tommy Harper and two hits by Don Pavlich.

Maloney Gets Win Jim Maloney received credit for his second victory but was relieved by Billy McCool after 6 1-3 innings.

The Los Angeles Dodgers held their place by shattering the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-4, the Milwaukee Braves clubbed the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-5, the Houston Astros made it six in a row by nipping the New York Mets, 3-2, and the San Francisco Giants outscored the Philadelphia Phillies, 14-13.

In the American League, Minnesota routed Cleveland, 11-1, Chicago romped against Boston, 10-1, Washington defeated Baltimore, 5-2, and Los Angeles edged out Detroit, 4-3.

Kansas City at New York was rained out.

Robinson singled home the Reds' first run in the first inning and scored on a sacrifice fly in the second. The final run in the seventh inning came on a three-run homer by Harper and Johnson.

Dick Tracewski's two-run double and a run-scoring single drove in three runs and led the big Dodger attack. Howie Reed, who batted Johnny Podres out of a straggling jam by retiring one batter, was credited with the victory although Bob Miller pitched the last three innings.

Mathews Hits Fourth Eddie Mathews hit his fourth homer of the season and Dennis Menke, Frank Robinson and pitcher Denny Lehner had two hits each for the Braves, who played before the smallest home crowd in their Milwaukee history—1,667.

Billy O'Dell preserved the victory with three-hit, one-run relief over the last four innings.

The Astros equalled their club record of six straight wins when they rallied for two runs in the ninth. Eddie Kasko broke up the game with a double off relief pitcher Dennis Ribant and scored Bob Aspromonte.

CHAPTER 20

LOOK here, Major Dawlish, I've a right to know what all this is about."

"I don't know, about any right," Patricia Dawlish said. "But I've no objection to telling you why I'm here."

By the time he had finished, Lieutenant Bukas had drawn up to the house and was getting out of his car. Dawlish found himself narrowing his eyes against the hot glare of the sun, frowning without realizing it.

"Bukas came hurrying. He looked almost grotesque behind a pair of sunglasses with huge lenses; he fitted him almost like a pair of goggles. He bowed perfunctorily to Mason and waited.

"Any luck?" Dawlish asked him.

"No one appears to have any idea at all where Mr. Forrest was going. He refused to tell anyone," Bukas reported. He glanced at Mason, then back at Dawlish, as if wondering whether or he was free to talk with this man present.

"We know where he planned to go," Dawlish said. "And he came back with these." He held out the diamonds.

Bukas was so taken by surprise that he almost tripped. After that startled pause he took off his glasses, examined the diamonds in much the same way that Mason had done, and spoke in a husky voice, as if with disbelief.

"They are some of the jewels we are looking for, Major," Dawlish barked. "Are you sure?"

"These diamonds all have a polished spot of a kind applied only by the Big Star Consolidated for identification purposes," Bukas paused. "They are instantly identifiable, and an untrained eye could identify such stones."

He looked at Della almost accusingly.

"Lieutenant, we need to organize a party to go over the ground that Nigel Forrest covered both on his way from here and back to here. Every possible trail has to be covered too. We will need men who know the country here and have inside out. How soon can it be arranged?"

"If you're going to do it properly, you'll need at least a week," Mason put in. "Della could answer. And if you've got any sense, you'll take me with you. I know this part of the desert as well as any man alive. I know others who know it pretty well too."

Current Statistics Point To Revolution In Outlook On Sex Among The Youth Of America

EDITOR'S NOTE: The statistics are from an affluent and fast-moving society. Up to 50 per cent of American college women have had sexual relations before they wed.

Forty-one per cent of the nation's illegitimate children are born to teen-age mothers. American youth is involved in a sexual revolution. Some of these facts of modern life and some of the motivating causes are discussed in this dispatch, five of five.

By PATRICIA McCORMACK United Press International

In this scientific era, our 22 million American teen-agers have been taught to experiment to seek answers based on experience, to accept no pat answers.

In sex, experts say, millions of them not content to learn vicariously, accept the scientific way — experimentation.

Once these things are ended, many of them pay a price they never anticipated.

Veneral disease and out-of-wedlock pregnancies are on the increase. For others, the added price is emotional wreckage — wrestling with a conscience that has betrayed what has been accepted from the church or synagogue.

Reflects Evidence

The extra price is reflected in statistical evidence of greater sex activity among teen-agers. Samples: — The rate of infectious venereal disease among teen-agers — 15 to 19 — is twice that of all the rest of the population put together. It is rising. The number of teen-agers infected in '64 was three times the number infected in 1963.

— In over one half of first marriages today, brides are in their teens. Many of these marriages produce "seven month" babies. Roughly, one in three of these matches end in divorce.

— Studies indicate that approximately one-fourth of all high school girls have had sexual relations. The estimate for college women: Up to 50 per cent. Some statisticians figure the range on boys, including college-age, from 60 to 90 per cent illegitimate children are born to teenage mothers.

Urbanization Products

The teen-agers who are experimenting with sex are as much a product of urbanization as they are of affluence and the scientific era that sends them searching for answers first-hand in 1965.

Helen Stohard, psychologist and expert in sex education with the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association-YWCA, maintains that youth in search of sexual experimentation are, in general, 30 cigarettes a day is not equivalent to "exposure to a 'strong' carcinogen."

However, this is no justification for any conclusion that cigarette smoke does not act as a carcinogen," they continued in reporting to the medical science journal, "The Lancet."

"Whether cigarette smoke, in fact, acts as a weak carcinogen is more difficult to determine, and the question cannot be decided on the basis of this statistical evidence alone."

Argument Continues Over Smoking

By DELOS SMITH VPI Science Editor

NEW YORK 278 — A statistical scientist who had a major part in making cigarette smoking with lung cancer has acknowledged a discrepancy in the evidence but holds it does not justify any argument that cigarette smoke "does not act as a true carcinogen." A carcinogen is anything which causes cancer.

Dr. Richard Doll, co-author of the now scientifically famous Doll and Hill statistical reports, collaborated this time with another British colleague, Dr. M. C. Pike. They checked over a statistical contentions that cigarette smoke could not act as a true carcinogen because the average age of onset of lung cancer was the same in both heavy and light smokers.

The contention belongs to Dr. R. D. Passy who made it in 1962 after averaging the ages of onset among 499 lung cancer patients. On the surface at least it is impressive because it separates smoking as a true carcinogen it would be logical to expect heavy smokers to develop lung cancer at an earlier age than light smokers.

Misleading Figures

Pike and Doll began their analysis by pointing out that Passy used a "period average" and any such average "may be a misleading statistic."

Passy had observed the patients only for a short period which excluded long-range factors that could be operating in causing cancer. The only meaningful statistic, they said, would be a "life-span average" which has been obtained many times for experimental animals but is difficult to arrive at statistically for human beings.

By coming the Doll-Hill statistics on human lung cancer and statistical results of cancer-causing experiments in animals they derived a mass of data from which to get a theoretical "life-span average" for people. To the data they applied precise mathematical equations and the answers showed "Passy's two principal results" were, indeed, statistically valid.

These principal results, they said, were "that neither the amount smoked nor the age at starting made any substantial difference to the average age at onset of disease." However, "it may be noted that these results do not imply that the number of cigarettes smoked per day has no significant clinical effect on the expectation of life," they said.

Thirty Cigarettes

They then examined mathematically Passy's contention that "a potent carcinogen induces tumors early," using the same mass of comparable data. From these calculations they concluded that "the observed relationship between the age of occurrence of lung cancer and the number of cigarettes smoked, and 2 age at starting to smoke, justify the conclusion that smoking

Dear Abby . . .

Up In Smoke!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for eight years. I have been smoking for ten years but I have never smoked in front of my in-laws because they think it's a crime for a woman to smoke a cigarette. My children (4 and 6) have seen me smoke, and I am on edge all the time for fear one of them will mention something about it to their grandparents. I have never TOLD the children not to say anything about it because, knowing children, that's the first thing they'd tell.

I feel very guilty about this. Should I continue to hide the fact that I smoke from my in-laws, or should I smoke in front of them and take the consequences?

TWO-PACK PATTY: A woman who is old enough to be a wife and mother is old enough to smoke if she wants to. Either quit smoking and make an honest woman of yourself, or light up in front of your in-laws.

DEAR IN: You had better go home, kid, and let your parents (and a lawyer) extricate you from a mess. The woman should be informed that if she takes you to court, she can face a charge there of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

DEAR ABBY: Your item about the boy who was embittered when accused of stealing a sweater that he had only found and was keeping for his owner reminded me of the following quotation from the "Memoirs of Thomas Brown": "My rule through life has been to deal with all mankind as if they were honest and intended to deal honestly with me. And although I have often been the victim of such confidence, I have no desire that experience should make me so wise as to become suspicious of all men."

Thomas Brown served Florida as its second State Governor from 1849 to 1853.

Sincerely,
Jas. A. Winfield

During World War II, the nobleman's son was stricken with pneumonia, but lived because of penicillin. He was Sir Winston Churchill.

There was John Ed Scott's blue car parked by the drug store.

The trunk was closed.

Close inspection revealed huge bags of the best looking pie, all over the lid and bumper.

Knowing that John goes after the pies, which he sells, each day and returns with them to the drug store, and knowing that John has to take the pies into the drug store, we figured that John just plain dropped a pie and in spite of the length and poor construction of this sentence, that is exactly what happened.

There is one saving factor. That is the only pie that John has dropped in the last ten years which is a good recommendation in case he ever tried to get a job in a nitro glycerine factory or something.

Speaking of John, we notice that Miss Gladys' red Maple has put out. Also the Clematis vine or something on the order is blooming in the back yard.

Also the ladies of the Garden Department have planted the planters around the business area. Just a gentle reminder that the planters are not doubling as ash trays, waste cans, etc.

Funeral For Landis Outland Is Today

Funeral services for Landis F. Outland are being held today at 2:30 p.m. at the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home Chapel with Dr. H. C. Chiles officiating.

Outland, age 65 and a member of the First Baptist Church, died Tuesday morning at the Convalescent Division of the Murray-Calloway County Hospital.

Survivors include two brothers, Rev. Charles Outland, 1809 Hamilton, and Ivan Outland, 1901 Calloway, and several nieces and nephews. Pallbearers are J. W. Outland, Nolan Tyler, B. C. Crogan, Newel Bailey, Jessie Outland, and Hayden Rogers.

Burial will be in the Elm Grove Cemetery with the arrangements by the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home.

Mike Smith of Murray was given the first individual Superior speaker citation in the meet. His teammate, Mike Nims of Paducah, Highman, was also awarded a Superior citation. This Murray team was ranked first and second best speaker in each of their four debates.

Smith and Nims were the Murray State affirmative team and were undefeated. Their wins were over Hastings College (Neb.); Coe College (Iowa); Indiana State Univ.; and, the Univ. of Kentucky first team entry.

The Murray State negative team of John Pasco and Ed Frank Jeffrey, both of Murray, won two of their four debates. They defeated Indiana State Univ. and the Univ. of Missouri. Their losses were to the U.K. second unit by one point, and to Indiana State Univ. first unit by two points.

Smith, Nims, and Jeffrey are Freshmen; Pasco is a Sophomore. The tournament for novice debaters ended the forenoon session at Murray.

The Murray State teams have won six team trophies this year. The most outstanding wins were fifth place in the DSR-TKA National meet at Bloomington, Indiana; and first place in the Southern Speech Association Tournament at Durham, N.C. Prof. J. Albert Tracy is Director of Forensics.

Student Council Of Calloway Has Meeting

The Student Council of Calloway County High School held its regular monthly meeting recently.

Ken Long, president, called the meeting to order.

The business included the scheduling of the Talent Show which will be held April 16. The group talked about ways they could support the track and baseball teams and it was decided to let Margaret Brannon make a copy of the track and baseball schedule and place them in the lobby of the school. A report was given on the code of ethics. They were compiled and placed in the Student Handbook in order to help new students enjoy a better school year. The group also discussed the election of new officers and decided to start the campaigning on April 27 and hold the election on April 29.
