SAPIRO TALKS TO TWO THOUSAND FARMERS HERE

RAIN DOES MUCH GOOD IN THIS COUNTY

The rain which has fallen in mid showers since early Tuesday morning, has been of untold benefit to the farmers. It will make full ears of corn out of the stubble that were developing at an alarming rate, and will also benefit all other growing crops.

So far as we can learn, the rain was general over Graves county, missing here and there a few spots of a small area, but on the whole the rain so far has been worth many thousands of dollars to our farmers.

The forecast is for more rain, distributed by local showers, over this section of Western Kentucky.

Stolen Rig May Be Located at Clinton

Ed Barley left this morning on Whiskey Dick for Clinton, in response to a call from Wash Kimball, through the sheriff's office here. Mr. Kimball called Mrs. Roach yesterday afternoon late and asked for a description of the horse and buggy recently stolen here from Mr. Barley, while it was hitched behind the Lochridge & Ridgway store.

Mr. Barley is pretty sure that it is his rig.

Mrs. Woodson Dead.

Mrs. Della Woodson died last night at nine o'clock, after an illness of several weeks, at her home on South Fourteenth street. The funeral was held at the family home this afternoon at 2:30, in the presence of a large number of friends and acquaintances, with the services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Williams of Clinton. She was a member of the First Baptist church of this city, and burial took place at Highland Park.

GOVERNOR PUTS COUNTY JUDGES ON COAL BODY

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 22—Gov. Edwin P. Morrow has written letters to all county judges of Kentucky, appointing them members of his state fuel distributing committee and charging them to look to the enforcement of regulations. At the same time, he has announced that a limit of $2.50 a ton on coal will be the margin between the price of coal and freight on same to the dealer, and what he may be permitted to charge the consumer.

Governor Morrow also wrote letters to every coal association in Kentucky, calling attention to the regulations which have been prescribed, and stating that he is calling on them to assist in the maintenance of such regulations, and that any person or firm violating them will be prosecuted and punished to the full extent available.

In his letter, Governor Morrow asked each county judge to "function as guardian for your county," and to see that "no one charges more than the fair price." He calls attention to the fact that the rate now permitted is $4.50 a ton at the mines, and that only a reasonable margin over this amount may be collected.

"In no event may the difference be more than $2.50 a ton over the cost at mines and freight charged to the dealer," the difference to cover all costs until the coal has been delivered to the consumer.

Wherever there is complaint that the mine operator is charging more than $4.50 a ton, either directly or thru employment of subterfuge, Governor Morrow asks the county judge to ascertain the facts and to make a report to him to that effect, and the same as to the retail dealers.

In his letter to the coal association, he says that they must "police" their industry and see that "in no case is the fair price of $4.50 a ton at the mines exceeded."

The governor also has written to the Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade throughout the state, in which they are asked to assist in obtaining facts and furnishing them to the proper authorities, in cases where they find anyone profiteering in coal.

With the appointment of the 120 county judges officially to take part in the coal distribution plan, with formal notice to the coal operators' associations of the part which he expects them to play in enforcement, and with a clear understanding given to the retailers and jobbers as to what amount they will be permitted to charge, the governor now feels that the actual operation of his plan to control fuel sales in Kentucky may be said to be under way.

Bride of Month is Asking For Alimony

Another run-away marriage has gone up in smoke, judging from a petition filed in the Graves circuit court by Mrs. Bebe Price against her husband, Raymond Price. In her petition she states that they were married on the Tennessee side of Fulton on July 15, 1922, and lived together until August 21, 1922, when she was compelled to leave him. She does not ask for divorce, but for alimony in the sum of five thousand dollars, a fee of fifty dollars a month pending the action, and a general attachment against his property.

C. D. MOON GROCERY DOING BIG BUSINESS

The Moon grocery on Broadway is doing a rushing business in view of the dull times at the present. This grocery, which has been doing business for the past eight months, has gained a reputation which will be hard to tear down and there are great prospects for this most up-to-date store in the future.

C. D. Moon, owner and manager of the store, has been connected with the grocery business for the past eighteen years in Mayfield and has made many friends by his prompt and courteous service. It is with this same idea that Mr. Moon is running his present grocery and gaining many satisfied customers by furnishing them with the best there is in groceries and meats.

Mr. Moon is assisted by Jess Wright, clerk, in waiting on the trade and filling the many orders which are delivered with a watchword of promptness by Newt Wright in their Ford truck, which is kept busy from five in the morning till seven at night.

The sanitary meat department, with Mr. R. L. Beasley as butcher, is the most up-to-date in the city, and you can be furnished with the choice cuts of meats that will fairly melt in your mouth. This department is made complete by their extra large ice box refrigerator counter and the best slicing machine to be had. Mr. Beasley, a real butcher, with 8 years' experience, is at your service all the time.

You can only know the difference it is from the usual grocery until you visit the store and see for yourself. You will be greeted with a smile which will be followed by the most snappy service that will cause you to call again real soon.

You will profit by this concern's discrimination if you trade with them, and get prices that will stand comparison "any old day."

N. C. AND ST. L. CREWS QUIT AT PADUCAH

Paducah, Aug. 22—Local switchmen of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad refused to go to work tonight as the result of an attack on one of their members, said to have been made by a railroad guard and two unidentified companions. The men are demanding the removal of all guards on the Paducah division.

The men refusing to work are of the third shift which goes on at 11 o'clock. The second shift finished their work at 10:30 o'clock. Dave Warren, the switchman who was attacked, was taken to the Illinois Central Hospital, suffering with a broken nose and cuts about his head and face. The switchmen accuse Roy Sparks, a railroad guard. The attack was made with a blackjack, it is charged.

Representatives of the switchmen were in conference with W. J. Hill, district superintendent of the road, but the outcome of the conference was not known at a late hour tonight.

The refusal of the men to work also affects the Q. B. & C. road which carries all freight going north from Paducah. What the extent of the walkout will be cannot be told but railroad officials tonight were fully disturbed over the affair.

Entertained Guests Here Last Evening

Miss Lurline Harper last evening entertained at her home on South Seventh street, in honor of her guest, Miss Lucile Clark, of Hopkinsville, and Mr. Leon Higdon, of Fancy Farm, recently returned from college. About twenty members of the younger set were present, and the evening passed pleasantly with refreshment and dancing.

Mayfield People Attend Convention

The following Mayfield people motored to Barlow this morning to represent the First Methodist church of this city in the Paducah district of Young People's Missionary Society: Mesdames Tom George, Lee Mason, Eugene Grubbs, Misses Buna Mason, Mamie Barker, Sara Saffold, Roberta Mahan, Madiera Iron, and Mr. Edwin Saffold.

Aaron Sapiro, expert on co-operative marketing, and one of the best friendly of the farmer and grower, in the United States, spoke to about two thousand growers in the old Western District warehouse in West Mayfield this afternoon. He arrived from Murray shortly after two o'clock, accompanied by George Covington, the District Board, Judge Bunk Gardner, Chester Byrn, and J. L. Cooper, the latter of Hopkinsville.

He was introduced this afternoon by Judge Bunk Gardner, and during his remarks Mr. Sapiro explained the co-operative marketing plan so concisely that many contracts were signed following his talk.

During his talk, Mr. Sapiro was applauded several times by the large audience, who indicated in many ways that they appreciated his views.

He was compelled to cancel his Murray date on account of his late arrival there, and hastened to Mayfield, where he was greeted with applause as he entered the large warehouse, and faced one of the biggest audience that has been in town since the appearance of William Jennings Bryan, several years ago in the same building.

Mr. Sapiro opened his talk with an explanation of the successful plan inaugurated among the California growers many years ago, after many failures on their part in arriving at some marketing plan that would prevent the speculator from getting the profits.

He then came on down to the Burley tobacco plan of Central Kentucky and explained in a very simple manner the contract the farmers of Graves county are asked to sign.

By coming to the county just at this time, Mr. Sapiro has done untold good to the organization, and has capped off the splendid work that has been done by the local speakers under the direction of George Covington, Ed Ford, county chairman, and Dr. Doron, and others, who are deeply interested in its success.

Fancy Farm Girls Receive Certificates for Good Service

A very interesting Achievement Day program was given at Fancy Farm. The following girls received certificates of merit from the extension division of the University of Kentucky for having completed a project in the Junior Agricultural Club work under the direction of the home demonstration agent, Miss Ida C. Harmon. Stella Cash, Bonita Helm, Annie Blincoe, Maurine Clark, Elizabeth Thomas, Ethel Durbin, Carrie Willett, Genevieve Petty, Velma Garnett, Ell Mae Hobbs, Ethel Hedra Toon, Allie Cash, Clarissa Burch, Charline Carriote, Janie Ennott, Etheldreda Willett, Hazel Merritt, Francis Merritt.

Refreshments were prepared and served by the girls to an audience of over two hundred, after which the girls sang, recited and gave club yells in a most enthusiastic manner. Miss Cora Morehead of Mayfield told the story of the "Last Word" by Van Dyke, in a delightful way. Mrs. Lais

Union Optimistic Over Rail Situation

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22—Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and D. B. Robertson, president of the Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, are optimistic regarding tomorrow's conference of railroad executives and transportation brotherhood chiefs in New York in an effort to reach a settlement of the shopmen's strike.

"I am optimistic regarding tomorrow's conference with the railroad managers," said Mr. Stone late today. "Some way will have to be reached to end the strike. I am hopeful of reaching an agreement."

E. H. Fitzgerald, president of the railway clerks, said that the proposal before the railroad executives is one that can "save the faces of both the railroad unions and the railroad executives." He declared "it is a proposition where both must give and take a little, with the odds 50-50 or perhaps better favoring a settlement."

We decided to get a line of flour. We sent out several letters to different flour mills announcing our intention, and naturally we received lots of mail and were besieged by numerous flour salesmen.

The first who called said his line of flour was as good as Gilster's; the next one said the same thing, and the third and fourth and so on to a dozen; not a single one claimed to have better.

We then made up our mind to get Gilster's line of flour, however it wasn't so easy to secure and we tried out several different brands with varying success. However, we kept trying for the Gilster line that they all mentioned. Finally there was an opening.

Now we have Gister's line of flour.

Come to know a real flour; get acquainted with the following brands:

A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY.

It isn't the money you make or spend,
Or the great deeds you may do,
On which the charms of her life depend.
Her happiness lies with you.
And all she asks through the years is this:
Your kindly thought and your evening kiss.

CUCKOO PARENTS.

That's what Theodore Roosevelt called them—cuckoo parents.
There are plenty of them all about. They have children, but they turn them out to shift for themselves, and they plunk them down to grow up just any old way they can.

Cuckoo parents allow their children to eat and sleep in the home, but in the interim between these engagements they are expected to forage for their own entertainment and pastime on the outside—the street, the vacant lot, some indulgent neighbor's house, or any other elsewhere—just so it isn't at home.

Their noise and disorder is too much for the mother and father to put up with. Children must keep away from home.

When it comes to educating them, Cuckoo parents expect the teachers to do that. Doesn't the state pay the teacher to do that very thing? Certainly. There's the Superintendent and twenty-five or thirty teachers and the truant officer. What are they paid for, if not to educate the children?

They are responsible for Little Willie and Mary Susan's education—moral, intellectual, and physical. If Little Willie and Mary Susan fail it is the teacher's fault. If they tell stories, or learn bad habits, or grow obstreperous, the school system is wrong.

If they don't study at night—and the children of Cuckoo parents do—It's the teacher's fault. Little Willie and Mary Susan go to picture show, or a party every night. There's nobody to forbid them. Their parents have their own affairs to attend to. They have own parties and clubs—and they are busy cuckooing to the balls of the Cuckoo flock of parents.

There's another kind of parent. We haven't time to talk about today—but before school opens we hope to point him out, in contrast to the Cuckoo type.

old man will never be young in this life. His only chance at marvellous transformation, is in the life hereafter.

Why not be content with the proscribed limit of time?

JUST LOOK WHAT WE GET.

After all Mr. Hoover's "fair price" fixing, and Governor Morrow's co-operation, the price set on Western Kentucky coal is $4.50 at the mines. Add to this $1.65 freight, and the retailer's price, and we see coal in Mayfield will be $7 or $8 a ton in large loads. To the small buyer, 32 cents or thereabouts.

If this is the "fair" price for coal, pray what would have been profit on the scale?

News From Dave Harris

Uncle Dave Harris was in The Messenger office today and said that Chas. Dillard was the first man hung in this county, on Aug.
22, 1869, on Saturday night, and that the next man hung was Frank Curd, on August 21, 1870. There was another man hung, Lewis Gardner, on Oct. 15, 1877. Fifteen shots were fired at Lewis Gardner.
Uncle Dave said that he heard the shots as they were fired.

On October 11, 1891, Dave Harris became indebted to Tom Gibson, of this county, and today he paid his son that amount. He says that he owes Capt. Key $3.00 for some hay which he bought in 1893, and that he expects to pay that today. This will soon put him out of debt, and he says that he wants to get completely out of debt before he goes across the great divide.

If you want to collect any money that Dave Harris owes you just come along and see him and he will let you have it.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus.

The first circus of great magnitude to visit Mayfield in several years will be in the city a week from next Saturday, the 2nd of September, when the big Hagenbeck-Wallace wild animal show will pitch its tents here.

The big circus, which is coming here almost direct from Evansville and which after exhibiting in Mayfield goes to Memphis, is not only the largest circus to come to Mayfield for some time, but it is the only one of the "big tops" to retain the morning street parade as a feature of circus day.

While all of the other large tent shows have abandoned the parade as being too expensive and too much trouble, the Hagenbeck-Wallace management is old fashioned enough to believe that it wouldn't be circus day without the parade.

The parade itself is heralded as being well worth seeing as all of the scored of wild beasts carried by the show are to be seen in open cages, while the big elephants, the two herds of camels, the dromedaries, sacred cattle from India, zebras and other strong four-footed beasts are all seen in the pageant "under their own power."

While the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus specializes in wild animal acts it is also replete with regular circus thrills. There are high wire acts, sensational death-defying aerial stunts, daring back riders headed by the famous Davenport family of equestriennes and scores of other world-famous acts.

The circus while in Mayfield will give two performances, one in the afternoon and the other at night, and for the convenience of those who desire to avoid the crowds at the ticket wagons a down town ticket office will be opened the morning of circus day at Hunt's drug store.

Yank and Johnny Reb.

The article below was published in one of the West Kentucky papers about twenty-five years ago, and he publish it by request: William Wilkerson, who was for many years a jailer of Fayette county, and who was noted for his ability to truth, related the following pathetic incident of heroism which he witnessed shortly after the battle of Richmond, Ky., in 1862, say the Lexington Leader.

"A son of my friend, Cassius M. Clay, was killed in the fight at Richmond, and it was my duty to visit the battlefield and identify the body and take it to his father's home. While riding slowly over the scene of the battle, I heard groans, which I was sure came from a corn field near at hand. Looking down the corn rows I soon discovered two wounded soldiers, lying about forty yards apart. One was a Federal and the other a Confederate. A cannon ball had broken and terribly mangled both of the Confederate's legs, while the Federal was shot through the body and thigh.

"I am dying for water," I heard the Federal say just as I discovered them. His words sounded as if they came from a parched mouth.

"I have some water in my canteen. You are welcome to drink if you'll come here," said the Confederate, who had feebly raised his head from the ground to look at his late enemy, when he heard the pitiful cry for water.

"I couldn't move to save my life," the Federal groaned, as he dropped his head to the ground, while his whole body quivered with agony.

"Then I beheld an act of heroism which held me spellbound until it was too late for me to give the assistance I should have rendered. The Confederate lifted his head at his wounded comrade, an expression of tender sympathy over his pain-distorted face as he said:

"Hold out a little longer, Yank, and I'll try to come to you."

"Then the brave fellow by digging his fingers into the ground and holding on to the cornstalks, painfully dragged himself to the Federal's side, the blood from his mangled legs making a red trail the entire distance. The tears ran down his cheeks like rain, out of sympathy for him, and I groaned every time he moved, but I was lost to everything except the fellow's heroism, and did not think once of helping him.

"When the painful journey was finished he offered his canteen to the Federal, who took it and drank eagerly, the water seeming to sizzle as it passed down his parched throat. Then, with a deep sigh of relief, he reached out to the Confederate, and it was plain to see as they clasped hands and looked into each other's eyes that whatever of hate may have rankled once in the hearts of these men had now given place to mutual sympathy and love. Even while I watched them I saw the Confederate's body quiver as if in a spasm of pain and when his head dropped to the ground I knew that hero had crossed the dark river. The Federal kissed the dead hero's hand repeatedly, and cried like a child until I had him removed to the hospital, where he, too, died the next day."

Refreshments were prepared and served by the girls to an audience of over two hundred, after which the girls sang, recited and gave club yells in a most enthusiastic manner. Miss Cora Morehead of Mayfield told the story of the "Last Word" by Van Dyke, in a delightful way. Mrs. Lois Roach gave a short talk on the value of Junior club work. The certificates were presented by Miss Hagman, after which the closing remarks were made by Mr. Carrio.

Berlie Winton, poultry specialist of the Extension Division of the University of Kentucky, gave some very interesting poultry culting demonstrations in Graves county on Friday and Saturday.

All Junior Agricultural Club members are urged to enter as many articles as possible that are listed in the premium list of the Junior Agricultural Club exhibit, Mayfield, Aug. 29-30.

Claims $4.50 Too High For Coal at the Mine

St. Louis, Aug. 21.—City Water Commissioner Wall today said he would ask that an official protest be sent Coal Commissioner Spencer at Washington against the price of $4.50 a ton filed by Secretary Hoover for Kentucky soft coal.

Mr. Wall declared the price exorbitant, saying that before and shortly after the coal strike began April 1, the operators were glad to get $2.25 a ton. Mr. Wall pointed out that the city must pay $1.87 a ton drayage and expressed the opinion that $3, plus the cost of draying, would be a fair price, considering present conditions.

Woman's Complex Life.

Woman's complex life with its multitudinous calls is given as the reason for many a nervous breakdown. Home work, social obligations, dressmaking and the care of children keep the 20th century woman in a whirlwind of activity until headaches develop, backache, nervousness and oftentimes more serious ills which are peculiar to her sex alone. Such women should not despair, but be guided by the letters so often published in this paper from women who have been in just such conditions, but who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

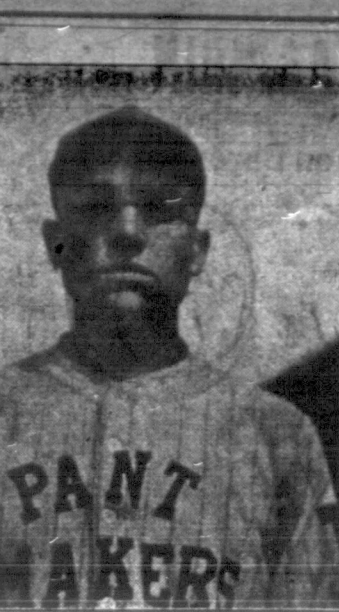

This is a root and herb medicine that contains no drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.—Adv.

"Small-Town Stuff."

An old-fashioned rat-killing time took place this morning at Eighth and Broadway, when J. E. Atwood turned loose several nice large rats which had strayed into his trap in the store during the night. Two very efficient rat dogs attended to the rodents as they hit the ground, and the event reminded one of the early days of Mayfield, when rat-killings along Broadway were regular morning occasions, and always were attended by a large crowd of interested spectators.

Streets Being Graded.
