The Marshall Courier, weekly paper in Benton, has a feature section which carries a history of Hardin this week.

We do not know who the historian is, but here is the story of how Hardin was begun.

On a warm, blustery day in June 1891, a survey began through the effort of a gentleman from Calloway County on a tract of farm land owned by H. D. Irvan, R. W. Sparks and J. R. Smith.

Within three years, Hardin became populated with 204 citizens, making it second only to Benton in importance of Marshall County towns.

Hardin received its name from the given name of Hardin Irvan, who owned the land upon which the railway depot was built.

In 1929 work was begun on a highway from the northern edge of Marshall County to Hardin, running through Benton, Hardin and Dexter to Murray.

This goes to show you that most any place, no matter the size, has a history behind it.

Many places no larger than Hardin had a newspaper. Hardin had one at one time.

This brings us to a point we have tried to make for some years concerning freedom of the press.

Freedom of the press does not mean that the editor or publisher has a right to run a newspaper and say what he wants to. We doubt if the framers of the constitution thought that much of editors and publishers.

You will find a screwball editor or publisher here and there who has the idea that the freedom of the press clause in the constitution was put there especially for him, but they are in the minority.

Nation Tied Up By Wide Rail Strike

By United Press International Locomotive firemen, sprouting a personal appeal by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, went to court today to keep their crippling coast-to-coast rail strike going.

Several people have asked that Mr. Stubbfield be honored by naming the Science Building the Nathan R. Stubbfield Science Building. I would like to see the Board of Regents name the Science Building for Kentucky's greatest inventor.

The BLFE went before an emergency hearing of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington asking that the anti-strike order issued by Judge Alexander Holtzoff be lifted.

BLFE lawyers told the court that if Holtzoff's order is allowed to stand it will "oust the strike."

The three-judge panel took the appeal under advisement, but did not indicate when it would have a decision.

Local Couple Was Married 66 Years Ago Today At Sugar Creek

It was 66 years ago today that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart of 310 North Sixth Street were married near the Sugar Creek Baptist Church with Miss Cora Oakland, Miss Edna May Outland, Curtis Geurin, and Riley Stewart as their attendants.

The Stewarts resided near Brandon's Mill for forty years before moving to near Old Salem. Mr. Stewart was injured in a wagon accident October 9, 1947, and the couple then moved to Murray as he not able to continue with his farming activities.

Mrs. Stewart suffered a broken shoulder in a fall at her home on Sunday, March 6 of this year. She was hospitalized for some time, but is now at home and able to be up some. Mrs. Stewart has a very good sense of humor and after she fell she is reported to have said that she "tried to fall more gracefully but was unable to do so as she fell down the basement steps."

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have one son, Lt. Col. R. C. Stewart who works at the Pentagon in Washington but resides in nearby Virginia. He is married to the former Martha Blalock, daughter of P. N. Blalock and the late Mrs. Blalock of Murray. They have two sons, Danny and Scott. Stewart. Their daughter, Miss Rebecca Stewart, died as a result of injuries from a automobile accident on March 5 of this year. She was a popular student at Murray State.

The Rest of the News

by United Press International Today is Friday, April 1, the 91st day of 1966 with 274 to follow. This is April Fool's Day. The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning star is Venus. The evening star is Jupiter. Russian composer Rachmaninoff was born on this day in 1873. On this day in history: In 1918, the Royal Air Force was founded in Great Britain. In 1937, Great Britain separated Burma from India and set it up as a crown colony with its legislature and British governor. In 1939, Generalissimo Francisco Franco announced that the Spanish Civil War had ended. The U.S. extended recognition to the Franco regime. In 1956, Pope Paul XII warned the world against the "enemy of peace" after Russia announced its new political strategy.

A thought for the day — English poet Algernon Charles Swinburne said: "For life is sweet, but after life is death. This is the end of every man's desire."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

SWING UNCLE SAM Championed in Yellowstone National Park, a man was attacked during the night by a rambunctious black bear. Later he sued the federal government for damages, blaming Park Rangers for not warning him of an outbreak of similar attacks in the area. Until recent years such a claim would have been tossed out of court. Even if the government's employees had been guilty of negligence, a lawsuit was blocked by the ancient doctrine that "the "King (that is, the government) can do no wrong." A victim's only hope then was to be compensated by a special act of Congress. But in 1946, Congress passed the Federal Tort Claims Act, opening the door for the first time to suits of this kind. The bear-bitten camper in the case above, suing under the Act, did win substantial damages for his injuries. By and large, the Tort Claims Act is limited to cases of negligence. Thus it does not let you collect for various intentional wrongs by government employees, such as assault and battery or false imprisonment. Nor does it extend to injuries caused by decisions made at the higher levels of government, such as a decision to conduct nuclear tests in Nevada. Neither are you entitled to payment merely because your injury happened to occur on government property. You must also have a legitimate cause for complaint. For example, a signpost was slipped and fell in a corridor of the Capitol building was denied damages from the government, because there simply wasn't anything wrong with the floor. It is in the ordinary negligence situations that you now have a right to sue Uncle Sam. To illustrate:

A mailman won damages from the government after his car was struck by a carload FBI agent. A woman won damages from the government after she lost her footing and was injured on a slippery ramp at a Veterans' Hospital. And a woman won damages from the government after a faulty window at the local post office came crashing down on her fingers. In other words, nowadays the "King" not only can do wrong but also can be made to pay for it.

Graustark Waits For Opening Day

LEXINGTON, Ky., (AP) — Darcy Dan Farm's Graustark, owned by John W. Ombrecht, was bedded down today in his stall at Keeneland Race Course, awaiting the opening of Keeneland a week from Saturday. Graustark, currently an 8.5 favorite for the Kentucky Derby May 7 at Churchill Downs, arrived at Blue Grass Field Thursday afternoon and was visited immediately to Keeneland, just across U. S. Highway 60. The main objective at Keeneland will be the running of the $25,000-added Blue Grass Stakes April 26. In recent years, the Blue Grass has loomed more and more impressively as a Derby prep. Since 1959, four Blue Grass winners—Tony Lee, Chateaugay, Northern Dancer, and Lucky Debonair—have gone on to win the Derby. Trainer Loyd Guyard said Thursday the undefeated Graustark probably will be at Keeneland a bout the middle of next week.

Thoroughbreds Break Loose To Win By 7-1 Victory Over Purdue

Murray State broke loose with two runs in the sixth inning to break a tie and breeze to an easy 7-1 victory over Purdue University here yesterday afternoon. Mickey Martin gave the Racers their first run of the day with a homer in the third. He also had a double in his effort, making him the only Racer with two hits. David Boyd walked to start the big sixth inning. Jimmy Reid hit a ground ball back to the pitcher, who overthrew second base on the pitcher's choice. Both men were safe and an error was assessed to the pitcher. Walter Andrel, Bill Ryan and Mike Ward all took their turn at the plate in that order and thumped singles off the Purdue pitcher. Don Harris sacrificed to center field scoring a run, and Martin got on base again with an error on the shortstop. The inning finally came to an end for Purdue, but not until the Racers had rallied for five big runs and a 6-1 lead. In the seventh inning, David Boyd doubled and Reid singled, scoring Boyd for the final Murray score. Purdue's only run came in the fourth inning on a home run by the catcher, Sam Wolfson, with no one on. John Becken pitched another outstanding game for the Racers without relief. He struck out eight and allowed only three walks. It was the first of a three-game series to be played against Purdue. The teams will meet at 2 p. m. today and again at 1 p. m. Saturday. Murray now boasts a 4-1 record with the only loss being the opening game of the season against Arkansas State. The Racers lead the Western Kentucky State College in adding another Haskins to its basketball roster—Paul "The Pearl" Haskins, brother of Glen "The Gem" Haskins. The 65, 180-pound Taylor County High School star signed an Ohio Valley Conference grant-in-aid with the Hilltoppers Thursday. Last season he averaged 26 points and 15 rebounds per game.

By JACK GAYNER
United Press International
NEW YORK (AP) — There is a fair amount of special programming on the television networks next week.

NBC has entertainment specials, with Mary Martin headlining one and the circus being featured in the other, as well as a documentary on the Congo.

Singer Jack Jones stars in a special for ABC, which also has a documentary on education and introduces a new one-hour adventure series.

CBS shows play in the Masters Golf tourney live and has a "test" involving federal income tax matters.

Highlights details April 3:

Sunday

There will be another National Basketball Association play-off game on ABC.

Tuesday

The abortion scandal sequence on NBC's "Dr. Kildare" winds up with a fourth episode called "Reckoning." The guilt or innocence of the accused doctor hinges on the identity of a mysterious woman phone-caller.

"Tuesday Night at the Movies" on NBC screens "The Birds and The Bees," starring George Gobel, Miss Gaylor and David Niven.

A Kind Word May Solve Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with otherwise nice neighbors whose front yard looks like a used car lot? This is a problem all their neighbors have been trying to solve without hurting anyone's feelings.

DEAR NEAR: Before demanding that your neighbor quit giving his front yard (and the neighbor's appearance of a used-car lot) as a lawyer if he (the neighbor) is within his rights if his law is on his side, ask your neighbor if he'll be a good fellow and keep a couple of those cars behind garage doors.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me why so many men ignore their wives while they are out in public? Mine is the worst when it comes to this.

DEAR KEET: When he arrives, you keep him waiting for exactly the same number of minutes he kept you waiting. This is what is known as the "R-X" treatment, or giving him a taste of his own medicine.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CHARLOTTE: If you crave compliments, dress for your men and throw all the fashion magazines in the trash can.

DEAR ABBY: Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. For a personal reply, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

DEAR ABBY: You are probably overly self-conscious in public, and so is your husband.

CHAPTER 24

BEFORE I started herding cattle on foot Pa decided that I would be safer carrying the big bent barbed 12 gauge shotgun than I would be with the little rifle. But he changed his mind when he blew the stuffing out of one of Ma's feather pillows and got knocked flat on his back.

Pa had loaded up the double barreled gun and cocked both barrels when he saw a black rabbit sitting under the clothesline. He claimed he only pulled one trigger, but both barrels went off with a roar. Ma's white rabbit heard clean over to his place. He missed the rabbit but sure didn't center the pillow, which was hanging out on the line to air.

"Damn me," Pa declared, sitting on the ground watching the feathers drift off on the breeze. "A man would think this twinning piece would shoot a mile low, the way the barrels are bent down. How in Hades did it hit that pillow anyway?"

Mike Flaherty said that there were feathers scattered over the prairie clean into Coyote Wagon. We found out that if you cocked both barrels on the shotgun both would fire, even if you only pulled one trigger.

"A man," Pa told me, "has a sort of smug up on this weapon careful like. You'd best carry the rifle on the range."

My job of herding cattle on foot wasn't very romantic and not at all the way I had imagined it would be when I left Massachusetts to become a cowboy. After all, wandering around all day with four cows named Specs, Susie, Gladys and Jewel, and a calf named Boss, seems kind of ridiculous for a cowboy. But it wasn't hard work.

All I had to do was to let the cattle graze on good grass, see that they didn't mix in with wild range stock and bring them in to the corral at night. Since the first grass of spring came in on the sage flats along the creeks I drove the cows to either Beaver creek or Bonhope creek every morning.

There were wild cattle of many brands on the range now, and I would have had a hard time keeping track of our cows if it hadn't been for Rover. Just like Mr. Purcell had said, Rover quietly got wise to what must be done. Soon all I had to do was to wave my hand at our cows and tell him to fetch them back and he'd do it, tail gaily waving, barking and nipping at cow tails.

The cattle soon learned to watch out for that tail nipping business. Before long all I had to do was to call out Rover's name and every critter within hearing would elevate their tails straight up in the air out of Rover's reach. Two cowboys from Bill Bullock's ranch rode by one day. They said this tail in the air business was the damndest thing they'd ever seen.

Rover got me into trouble with Mr. Purcell one day. Boss was From the novel published by Doubleday & Co. Copyright © 1963 by Francis H. Ames. Distributed by King-Features Syndicate.

me that the bull was going to charge.

It went around us until it got our scent and then it whirled, lowered its horns and came at us like a thunderbolt. I raised my rifle and fired and then the bull was on me. I leaped aside, but a horn caught in my coat and tossed me up for end, the rifle flying from my hands, and I knew that I was a goner.

I set my jaw and saw that Rover had the bull by the nose. The bull whirled this way and that, snapping Rover in the air, to throw him off, which he did. The animal turned on me again, so close on me that I could see the blood dripping from its nostrils, the wild, insane look in its yellow eyes.

Rover came in from the side, silent and swift as a shadow. I saw him leap, and then he had the bull by the tail, with one hand near its roots. The bull turned from me. It span like a top, and then went whirling off across the prairie, with every jump, with Rover streaming behind, gnawing on its tail.

Rover was still hanging on when the bull went over the rise, but in a few minutes I saw him coming back, a little black, fat running dot in the distance. He came up to me with his tail waving jauntily, his tongue hanging out and his eyes merry, as though to say, "Wasn't that fun?" But he wasn't fooling me one bit.

I knew that he had been as scared as rabbits. Then they all seemed to suddenly run out to save his master. I got down on my knees and took him into my arms, and said a little prayer of thankfulness.

We never told Ma about the bull, because we didn't want to worry her. But Pa took pains to find out about the bull.

"That was a stray," he told me, "from down Sioux Rocks way. You said it had a big bulge on the back of its neck. That's the way prairie bulls get in the spring. At times they are apt to be a bit more savage than at other times, especially those that have Jersey blood. But you don't need to worry about it any more. One of Bullock's hands killed it with a .45 when it got its horns under the belly of his horse. They had to shoot the horse, too. And you know what, son? The cowboy told me that they found a .22 bullet embedded in the base of its skull, right between the eyes. Heckin' we've got to get you a more powerful gun."

Nothing was too good for Rover around our place after his fight with the bull. Pa was as proud of him as I was.

"Each day brought us nearer to the time when the cow would be in and I could have Segundo to ride, but before that time came I was no longer thinking of Segundo. Now I was thinking of the most beautiful horse I had ever seen..." Tom's story continues here on Monday.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This beautiful brick house, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Roberts, is an example of the lovely homes now being built in Murray. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts live at 604 South 11th Street Extended. A realtor of long standing Mr. Roberts and his family enjoy this home with all its modern conveniences.

Jerry M. Vaughn is building this nice home on South Ninth Extended. This home has a carport located on one end and is well designed to give comfort, and convenience. There are few vacant lots in the older section of the city and homes are going up every day in the subdivisions located on the edge of the city.

Automation Finds Way Into Kitchen

One "labor" force that welcomes automation is the housewife. That's why the automatic features of electric ranges get her vote.

Accurate controls like thermostat surface units, oven timers, meat thermometers, and "cook and hold" devices eliminate the need to keep watch while food is cooking. The precise temperatures and even heat of electricity also cook food faster and guard against taste and texture loss caused by under- or over-cooking.

Modern electric ranges have one or more surface units with a built-in thermostat that can be preset to the exact heat required for a particular food. The unit automatically maintains this temperature throughout the cooking process, so there's no need for heat readjustment. In effect, the thermostat turns any pot into an automatic cooking utensil.

Automatic oven timers can be preset to turn heat on while you're away from the range or even out of the house. Food cooks at the selected temperature until it is done and then the oven turns itself off. Some models have "hold" controls which keep the meal piping hot for hours without further cooking.

Meat thermometers are metal probes attached to the oven. When set for the correct internal temperature and inserted in the meat, the probes assure that food will be cooked through to the selected degree of "doneness".

In some electric ranges, broiling controls can be preset to cook meat rare, medium or well-done.
