Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

If you wonder why this time of year is so ripe for forest fires, take a look at these figures for rainfall for March...

Over to Mayfield yesterday for their annual Collect Koin show. Coin collectors, coin dealers and lockers on hand at the Merrit Clothing meeting place.

Guards walking around with pistols in shoulder holsters. Literally thousands of dollars of coins on display and for sale.

Someone tried to break into the place Saturday night and the guard on the inside armed with a shotgun filled with salt, not buck shot, called the police.

Thanks to all the nice folks who called in poison oak remedies.

Spring is definitely here. Boys reported sighting a Black Racer.

Oldest at home runs to find a stick to pin the Racer down with and yell to his brother to step on the snake and hold him until he can get there. He declines.

Looking at a flock of birds gathered around some bird seed we put out yesterday morning. Blackbirds, Doves, Cardinals, Towhees, Purple Finches. There was one bird up on a limb that we looked at for some time trying to figure out what the heck it was. It had markings like a Sparrow but had a black bib on its chest.

It was a House Sparrow or just about the commonest Sparrow we have.

Today is Monday, April 4, the 94th day of 1966 with 271 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening star is Jupiter.

American painter, photographer of the new West, Wallace Henry Jackson was born on this day in 1843.

On this day in history:

In 1818, Congress ordered that the United States flag be redesigned and the number of stripes reduced to the original 13.

In 1841, President William Henry Harrison died in the White House one month after he was inaugurated. On that same day, John Tyler became the first vice president to assume the presidency on the death of a president.

In 1917, the Senate approved a resolution of war against Germany.

In 1963, President Kennedy's commission on narcotics urged a "massive attack" on the big time importers of narcotics.

A thought for the day — British financier Cecil Rhodes: "educational relations made the strongest link."

Cal Luther Speaker For Laker Event

By GALE GARRISON

Cal Luther, University of California basketball coach, was held Friday night at the Triangle Restaurant, with Cal Luther as the guest speaker. After the feast of hamburger steak, french fries, and cherry pie the trophies were presented to the outstanding players.

Coach Cal Luther spoke on the value of sports in high school, pointing out it teaches that life isn't always easy, and that there will be sacrifices to be made, and that disappointments will come. It also teaches that there must be a goal to strive for. Sports teaches things like good sportsmanship, and quick thinking, both of which are necessary if you are to reach the goal that you have set, he said.

"Sports is also something that you will remember. There are a lot of subjects that are taught in school that you will forget in later life, but playing sports is a living experience, and something that you will not forget very easily," he concluded.

After Coach Luther's talk, Laker's Coach Ray Collier presented the trophies to the players. The three winners were presented with the same plaques that they ever on the bank of their warm-up jackets. They were Jimmy Kelly, Keith Donelson, and Tommy Hart.

Stan Key was presented the trophy for the "Most Season Roundup" and Keith Donelson was presented with the "Most Improved" trophy. Stan Key had the best shooting percentage both from the field and from the free throw line, but was given a run for his money by Clayton Hargrove in both departments. Stan has 51% of his shots from the field and 78% from the line. Clayton had 49% from the field and 71% from the line.

Jimmy Kelly was presented the trophy for the "Best Team Man".

The "Best Defensive Trophy" went to Betty Armstrong, another star choice, because, as Coach Collier said, "If a player had several steals at half time, he could always get Henry on him and know that his point average would be cut way down for the last half, maybe even to two or three points."

Since last July, the Division of Occupational Safety in the State Department of Labor has adopted four new industrial safety standards dealing with woodworking, construction operations, mechanical power transmission apparatus and power presses.

License Hike For Hunting And Fishing

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — An increase in the fee for fishing and hunting licenses was approved Monday by the state Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission.

The new rates for residents and non-residents go into effect in 1967.

The resident fishing license fee will go from $2.25 to $4.25, while non-residents will pay $7.50 instead of the current $5.50. Today's non-resident fishing license were extended to 35 days and the price boosted from $2.25 to $3.25.

Hunting licenses also were increased. Resident fees will go from $2.25 to $4.25; non-resident fees to $9.50.

Deer hunting licenses, issued only to residents under 18 years old, were boosted from $1.25 to $2.25.

Big game hunting permits—door tags—were unchanged at $10.50 for both residents and non-residents.

The commission said the increases were necessary to carry out the department's programs and to meet mounting costs, such as increased salaries of certain officials.

The commission also requested a fishing license reciprocity agreement between Tennessee and Kentucky on Barkley Lake usage to conform with present law on Kentucky Lake.

CANT STOP JUNK

WASHINGTON (AP) — When your name gets on someone's mailing list and your mailbox starts to overflow, don't complain to postal officials, there's nothing they can do about it.

Chief Postal Inspector Henry R. Montague told a House appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today that his hands are tied. There is no law against mailing lists and they are sold, exchanged or rented with ease.

In addition, Montague said, he believes some junk mail has become "more hard" over the years as publishers and dealers skirt the pornography line. For some unknown reason, he added, most of this kind of mail seem to originate in Los Angeles.

Michigan Flying Saucers

CBS obtained this photo of those unidentified flying objects in Southeastern Michigan from Deputy Sheriff David Fitzpatrick of Washtenaw County. He made it with a Minox on a tripod. The 8-stop was 1-3.5, exposure 10 minutes. The film was 912 mm.

Johnny Roseboro, who last year hired a lawyer to plead his case against Juan Marichal, has discovered a more eloquent and appropriate spokesman—his bat.

Roseboro, the burly catcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, confronted the San Francisco pitcher one on one on the baseball field Sunday for the first time since their celebrated "incident" eight months ago and walloped a three-run homer to lead the defending world champions to a 3-4 victory over the Giants.

In their meeting, on Aug. 22 of last season, Marichal swung a bat as Roseboro's hand to knock off the widest-cupped bats in years.

The shocking incident cost Marichal $1,700—the largest fine ever levied against a player by a major league president—and his resulting nine-day suspension convincingly cost the Giants the National League pennant.

It also precipitated a $10,000 legal suit against the strike-breaking right-hander by Roseboro, who escaped the incident with only a two-strike push on his hand.

The shocking incident cost Marichal $1,700—the largest fine ever levied against a player by a major league president—and his resulting nine-day suspension convincingly cost the Giants the National League pennant.

Roseboro answered Marichal the best way he knew how—in the second inning at Phoenix when he drove in Ron Cey and Jim Lefebvre ahead of him. It wasn't the kind of dramatic hit about which legends grow. It was, in fact, a few singles which bopped over the head of outfielder Jesus Alou for an inside-the-park victory. But for Roseboro it was extremely rewarding.

Marichal was tagged for five runs and seven hits in his first-inning stint. Claude Osteen, the Los Angeles starter who will open the season for the Dodgers on April 22, was even less impressive, allowing nine hits and four runs in four innings.

The Minnesota Twins, who bowed to the Dodgers in the 1965 World Series, contained their spring surge with a 2-1 victory over struggling St. Louis. Charlie Frazier, Jim Kaat and Alen Washington limited the Cards to 10 hits as the Twins won their sixth consecutive game and raised the Redbirds' string at 18.

Houston Shut Out

The pitching-rich Chicago White Sox blanked Houston 6-0 behind the three-hit pitching of John Busch and Eddie Fisher, for their 12th victory against six losses, the best record in Organized League play. Tommie Agee drove in three runs with a seventh-inning double, Chicago's only extra-inning homer of the game.

The New York Yankees moved to a time-honored weapon—the home run—to whip Philadelphia 3-3. Tom Fresh, Bobby Richardson and Cleo Boyer connected for the circuit and Fritz Peterson all but pulled down a starting berth with a fine seven-inning stint.

In other games, Dick Green clubbed 100 homers and drove in 104 runs to tie Kansas City Alvin Dark as the Mets' 10th. Washington outlasted Pittsburgh 12-9 despite a pair of homers by defending NL batting champion Roberto Clemente. Tony Conigliaro slammed his eighth round-tripper of the spring and George Scott and George Thomas each waded in with a homer as Boston overpowered Detroit 6-4. Les Thomas waded Cincinnati reliever Jack Baldwin for a walk with the bases loaded in the 13th inning to give Atlanta a 2-1 triumph over the Reds.

The Chicago Cubs' combat four California pitchers for 24 hits and took advantage of five Angel errors for an 8-7 victory. Fred and Baltimore blasted its Miami farm club with the help of homers by Brooks Robinson, Stan Stowers and Steve Povich.

Show and Tell - All in Favor?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Every teacher who has a show and tell time in her classroom repeatedly tells the children, "Be sure you ask mother and daddy for permission before you take anything out of the house for show and tell." And the teacher also stresses that no child is to bring valuable, fragile, or irreplaceable treasures to school. Children will bring anything from an old dried up flower to a live kitten and delight in talking about it. Once a youngster brought a "human" skull to school for show and tell, and you should have heard the wild tale he unraveled about how he happened to have it! I later learned it was plastic. His mother allowed him to take it to school, but when it came time to tell the story, the poor darling got completely carried away.

LOVES CHILDREN
DEAR ABBY: I have been a kindergarten teacher for 10 years, so nobody has to tell me where a mother was when her child slipped out of the house with a pair of 44 false for show and tell. My man was in bed! Believe me, I could cut your hair with some of the stories children tell me. One child came to school frowning because every button was missing from her coat. I finally brought some buttons from home and sewed them on during my lunch period. This child is from a prominent, well-to-do family. I once asked the child if she has breakfast at home and she said, "No, Momma is sleeping when I leave, and she asks me to be quiet. But I don't care, my mommy is so pretty!"

UPPER DABBY TEACHER
DEAR ABBY: How I wish we had a show and tell time in school when I was a youngster. My teacher (a man) was so strict and stern we were all scared to death of him. Most teachers in my day were like that. The only time a child got a chance to say anything was when he was called upon to answer a question, or if he had to recite something he was told to memorize. A teacher certainly did not invite the children to bring odd items from home and discuss it with their classmates. Perhaps if we had had show and tell back in those days, we wouldn't have so many people who grew up petrified to open their mouths before more than four people. I was one of those self-conscious tongue-tied books, and I never got over it.

Feelings Vary On Marriages Out Of Church

By Louis Cassels
United Press International

Protestant leaders have mixed feelings about the Vatican's new rules on mixed marriages.

They welcome the decree, issued in Rome March 18, as evidence of a sincere desire by Pope Paul VI to ease one of the major irritants in Protestant-Catholic relations.

But they are disappointed by the scope of the decree, which falls far short of the changes urged by many American and Western European bishops at the recent sessions of the Vatican Council.

The decree does make a few concessions to Protestant sensibilities. For example:

-If the local Catholic bishop sees fit, he may settle for an oral rather than a written promise that the children will be raised as Catholics.

-Instead of being relegated to the priest's study, a mixed marriage may henceforth be held in the church sanctuary, with all of the trimmings including a Nuptial Mass.

-After the official marriage ceremony is over, the Protestant partner's minister may be allowed to say a prayer and "address some words of good wishes and exhortation" to the newlyweds.

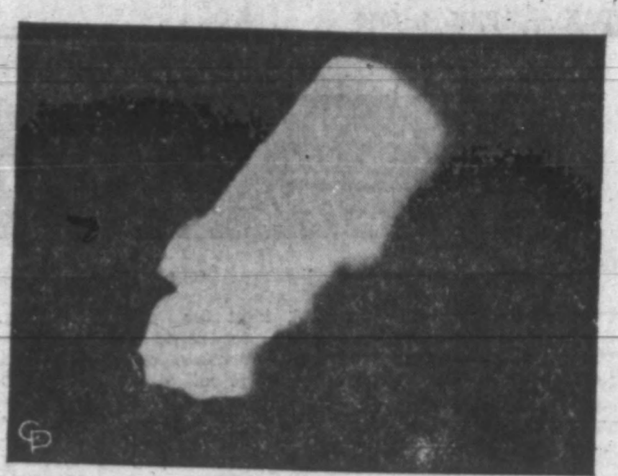

All Not Satisfied

During his historic visit to the Vatican last week, the Archbishop of Canterbury frankly told Pope Paul that these concessions "will not satisfy the consciences of Anglicans and other non-Roman Catholic Christians."

It makes no difference in principle, the Anglican leader said, whether a non-Catholic partner is required to sign a formal contract or simply to give verbal assurances that he won't try to have any say in the religious nurture of his children. In either case, he is being required to surrender his rights as a parent and to acknowledge, in effect, that his own church is not a fit place for a child to be brought up as a Christian.

A number of highly-placed Catholic prelates had urged that the ante-nuptial promises be abandoned altogether. Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, for example, has said on several occasions that the promises are more likely to generate resentment, evasion and deceit than to insure the Catholic upbringing of children.

Another sore point with Protestants is the emphasis in the new decree on the "absolute" necessity of avoiding any appearance that a Protestant minister is sharing in the conduct of the marriage service. In an analysis of the Vatican decree distributed this week, the American Baptist News Service called attention to this provision, and said:

ANOTHER FLYING SAUCER—Two 15-year-olds, Terry McClintock and Bill Nash, made this picture of a UFO, or flying saucer, from a high school football field in Farmington, Mo. They first noticed its reflection off a kitchen window at about 8:30 p.m. Photo was made with Polaroid flash.

Less Than Equal

"The fact that a non-Catholic pastor is allowed to say a prayer but not to participate in the actual marriage ceremony makes the Protestant minister something less than equal."

The Rev. Dr. Dan M. Potter, executive director of the Protestant Council of New York City, observed that the Catholic Church is still taking the position that "a mixed marriage is valid only if performed by a Catholic priest."

"We look forward to the day when there will be a full recognition of the validity of the marriage rites of all religious bodies where agreed-upon conditions are met," he said.

But Dr. Potter went on to say that the Vatican decree "is most encouraging as far as it goes." And this sentiment was echoed by many other Protestant leaders.

"This is a very welcome step forward in ecumenical relationships," said the Rev. Dr. A. Dale Piers, executive secretary of the International Convention of Christian Churches Disciples of Christ.

"I wish the decree had gone further," said the Rev. Dr. Ben Mohr Herberter, president of the United Church of Christ. "But we must rejoice over any advance, however modest, in the direction of greater mutual trust and understanding."
