Passengers, Crew Taken From Burning Liner In Mid-Ocean

By EDWARD MCCARTHEY
United Press International

MIAMI, Apr. 9 — The lights went out at the fancy ball, smoke began curling into stairwells and the ghostly white ship shuddered to a halt in the darkness. The Viking Princess started to die.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman K. Schwarz of Miami Beach, Fla., dressed as a Greek and goddess for a costume party, smelled smoke. The tinkling of glass and the music stopped in the cruise liner's ballroom.

Within a half hour, the couple changed clothes in their stateroom and calmly tried to save a dying man's life.

The Schwarzes were among the passengers and crewmen flown here Friday night from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, less than 24 hours after the Viking Princess caught fire early in the morning.

The KCLU and the KCAUP, as well as the Louisville chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, earlier stated that Western did not handle the situation properly.

Survival Class To Be Taught At Murray State; All Invited

By Solon Bury
Civil Defense Director

The survival of our society could very well depend upon a workable Civil Defense Organization. In the event of a Nuclear Attack upon the United States, several hundreds of thousands of people would die from blast, shock and heat created by detonation of nuclear weapons. This nation could survive the blast however, and if protection from Radioactive Fallout was available to individuals in all communities, millions of Americans would be saved. Radio Active Fallout is the greatest danger to our society from a Nuclear Attack. Civil Defense is based upon a program of protection against this fallout.

There are a substantial number of buildings in Murray which have been inspected, approved and licensed for use as fallout shelters. Many other buildings are available which could be used. Medical and other emergency supplies are available for stocking all shelters. Regardless of how many shelters are available and how well they are stocked, they will be useless to us unless we are trained in the management of these shelters and the people in the community advised as to how the shelter program is to work.

The Civil Defense Program is primarily designed to insure survival of our civilization in the event of a Nuclear Attack, but it is not limited to that situation. A Civil Defense Organization could be of great value in any disaster, be it man made or an act of God.

Let us consider the wind storm which struck the Kirskey Community last year. Suppose that storm had struck the City of Murray, that would have been a disaster. Many people would have been injured or killed, many more would have been left homeless. In a situation such as this, a Civil Defense Organization could have provided food and shelter for the homeless and medical attention for the injured.

The time has come for us, the citizens of this community, to accept the facts that face us. If a disaster should strike, we must be prepared to care for ourselves as we cannot hope for outside help to be immediately available to us. The State and Federal Government are starting ready to assist us in preparing ourselves and all they ask of us is that we organize ourselves so that we will be able to utilize the aid which they are willing to provide.

To assist us in getting started on this program, the University of Kentucky is providing instructors to teach us the fundamentals of

Risen Christ Celebrated By Americans

By United Press International

Americans prepared today to celebrate the rising of Jesus Christ from the dead in joy and traditional Easter observances.

Final arrangements were made for religious services in churches, on mountain tops, in immense amphitheaters, at memorials and drive-in theaters. Housewives made final purchases for annual family feasts.

For many, Easter Sunday annually begins with night-time pilgrimages to nature's cathedrals.

The coming of the sun will find worshippers gathered near Alto Pass, Ill., on Bald Knob mountain for the 30th consecutive year. There an 111-foot "cross of peace" looks over blooming red bud trees and pink peach orchards in the valley below.

At San Francisco, where tonight Eastern Orthodox churches will gradually come ablaze with the light of thousands of candles, worshippers will gather for sunrise services for the 44th year on Mt. Davidson at the foot of a huge permanent cross.

The pasenry of the pasen will be set against the rugged hills northwest of Lawton, Kan. An estimated 40,000 persons watched the pasen, beginning at 2 a. m. and ending at sunrise, last year.

The nation's first family planned a relaxed Easter on the 127 ranch in Texas. President Johnson planned to host the annual egg roll amid the blooming bluebonnets.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was home at Waverly, Minn., and Gen. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower planned to observe Palm Sunday at their home near Palm Desert, Calif.

The cherry trees in Washington, D. C., were in full bloom today. Authorities braced themselves for the traditional traffic jams of hundreds of thousands of tourists following a sunrise service on the Washington Monument grounds.

The Almanac

by United Press International
Today is Saturday, April 9, the 99th day of 1966 with 268 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening star is Jupiter.

American artist Charles Burchfield was born on this day in 1893.

On this day in history:

In 1865, Gen. Robert Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Court House in Virginia.

In 1940, Germany invaded both Norway and Denmark.

In 1942, Bataan fell to the Japanese in World War II after three months of heroic fighting.

In 1963, the nuclear submarine "Thresher" sank down 380 miles east of Boston with 129 men aboard.

A thought for the day — President Andrew Jackson: "There are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist only in its abuses."

Income Tax Questions-Answers

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. — My wife earned under $600 and is filing for a refund. When I file, can I claim her as an exemption?

A. — If you file separate returns you cannot claim an exemption for your wife. Also, you must handle your deductions the way you file. If she takes the standard deduction, so must you. If you itemize, your wife must itemize.

In a situation such as you describe, compute your tax both ways separately and jointly. This will enable you to file the way that produces the lowest tax.

Q. — Do I have to pay tax on dividends from my life insurance policy?

A. — No, these dividends are a return of premium and are not subject to income tax.

Q. — I broke even on my withholding tax and don't have any more to pay. Do I still have to file a return?

A. — Whether you owe any taxes is not the determining factor in deciding if you have to file a return. If your income was $600 or more, or if you are 65 or older, you must file. If you have other dependent income of $400 or more, you must file a return and pay self-employment tax.

Q. — How much can a couple deduct for child care expenses?

A. — The deduction is allowed for what you actually spend, with a maximum limit of $600 for two or more dependent children under 13 or $300 for one child. Check the 1966 instruction book to see if you qualify for this deduction.

Q. — How can you tell whether a person qualified as a dependent?

A. — There are five tests that have to be met before a dependent can be claimed. These are: gross income, support, married dependent, citizenship, and relationship.

Each of them are described in the 1966 instruction booklet.

Q. — I got some stocks from my uncle's estate. Do I have to declare this for income tax purposes?

A. — No, you don't. Inheritances are not taxable. Income, however, that results from an inheritance, such as dividends on your stock, is taxable.

Q. — If I get somebody to prepare my tax returns for me, isn't he responsible for my accuracy?

A. — The taxpayer is legally responsible for the accuracy of the return and the person who may have prepared it. For this reason, make sure you get dependable tax help. Avoid anybody who offers to split the refund, or who asks you to sign a return prepared in pencil or who suggests that a refund be sent to his address. These may be the marks of the fly-by-night operator who should not be trusted with your return.

Q. — Do you have to list all your dividends on the 1040, even those which are not taxed?

A. — No. Just put down the total of your dividend income subject to tax.

Q. — We bought a home last year. What are some of the home expenses we have that may be as a tax deduction?

A. — The interest paid on your mortgage may be deducted along with the real estate taxes paid on the home. You may also deduct interest and taxes in connection with the purchase of various items for the home.

EXPERTS WHO AREN'T

There's an old saying in this country that an expert is someone from another town. Nowadays, it seems that the words are full of "experts" on all sorts of subjects. They claim to have special and exclusive knowledge of this subject or that. But experience teaches us that the self-proclaimed "experts" often are confounded by events and the knowledge of practical men.

It is well to bear this in mind while reading about "experts" who recommend that the United States should start smiling at Red China. A number of high-powered academics will be appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in March to suggest that the U. S. should smile at Red China. ## Let's Not Plan Too Far Ahead

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know it is customary to plan ahead, but I have responsibilities that your husband seems unwilling to share.

DEAR ABBY: My roommate met a fellow at a dance. (I'll call him "Worm.") Anyway, Worm gave my roommate a big rush, and she liked him a lot, although she continued to date other boys. One evening when my roommate was busy, Worm asked me out, and I went. Then he asked me for another date this time I accepted because by this time I was starting to like him. Then Worm asked my roommate again. I know she still likes him, and so do I. My question: If Worm asks me out again, should I go? Do you think he is using me to make my roommate jealous? Or is he dating HER to make me jealous?

DEAR ABBY: I have nine children . . . three from my first husband who is now deceased, three from his first wife (also now deceased), and three by my present husband. I get $600 a month insurance, a little V. A. compensation, and I make pretty good money working out. My husband is an auto mechanic, and he should make good money, too, but he never seems to have any. When he does work for women, he forgets to charge them for it. He kept telling me he was keeping a car in shape for a guy named Steve. "Steve" turned out to be a well-known named Arlene. She came to his shop and dropped off four dozen brownies she had baked for him. I told him if he could work for my business, I could keep all my own income. I'd like your opinion.

DEAR MAD: It seems to me that your playboy mechanic is working for both brownies and bunnies. Tell him to sweeten the family pot or you'll have to sweep MAD

Fewer Beliefs And More Belief Needed In World Today Says Controversial Churchman

By LOUIS CASSELLS

United Press International

"What we need today is fewer beliefs—and more belief," said the Rev. James A. Pike, as he grabbed out a cigarette and reached for the pack to light another.

The Episcopal Bishop of California was first, and he said there was a long fight. He walked nervously up and down his hotel room in Washington, D. C. sipping black coffee and chain-smoking, as he tried to explain to a reporter the theological views that have prompted some members of his church to accuse him of heresy.

The reporter asked how Bishop Pike felt about the "death-of-God" theology which lately has received so much publicity.

"I don't die it," he said. "If Altker, Prof. Thomas J. J. Altizer of Emory University, means what he seems to be saying—that there once was a God and now there isn't any more—that is nonsense, in the strict meaning of the term. It just doesn't make any sense. Either God has never existed or He is eternally existent."

Q. I take it you still subscribe to the latter view? A. Oh, yes indeed. I believe in God.

Q. Do you think of God as an abstract, impersonal force person?

Calloway Beta Club Meets Last Week

The Beta Club of Calloway County High School held its regular monthly meeting April 1, 1966 in the Jeffrey Gym.

Richard Edmonds, president, called the meeting to order. The opening ritual was given. A very inspiring Easter program was then presented by Paula Cook, Justice Conley, Kim Pennington, Mrs. Darnell and the Freshman chorale.

Connie Hopkins, secretary, read the minutes and called the roll. David Blicher gave a treasury report. The final plans were made for the WDEA Beta Club to be held at our school April 2 at 7:00 p.m.

The following new officers were elected for 1966-67: President, David Blicher; Vice-president, Ken Miller; Recording Secretary, Carl Barrow; Corresponding Secretary, Patsy Falwell; Treasurer, Debbie Calhoun; and Treasurer, Glen Chawney. Reporter, Cathy Harris; Parliamentarian, Ruth Bennett; and Song Leader, Shirley Bassell. They will be installed at our next meeting.

The club will sponsor a bake sale on Saturday, April 23. Plans were also made for a work day which would also include a car wash. This work day and car wash will be sponsored Friday April 28 between 9:00 and 3:00 o'clock. If you have any work that you want done or if you want your car washed call the school between the hours of 9:00 and 3:00. All jobs will be appreciated.

The meeting was then adjourned and refreshments were served.

ing all of nature, or do you conceive of Him in personal terms? Personal God.

Q. I believe in a personal God—not in the sense of a being with other beings, but in the sense that ultimate reality has a personal character. No spirit rises higher than its source. It is inconceivable that intelligence, purposeful personality, such as we see in human beings, could have evolved in a mindless, impersonal universe.

Q. Do you believe that God can be person?

A. No—not in the sense of granting special favors to particular people. I don't believe in a God who tinkers with the universe, sometimes intervening to set aside natural laws and at other times permitting them to operate in the usual way. If we attribute to what theologians call "acts of special providence," we are saying, in effect, that He is capricious and unfair . . . that He does for some what He refuses to do for others.

Q. You're not suggesting that God is indifferent to the fate of individuals?

A. No, no, on the contrary. I believe that God's love and power are equally available to all of us all of the time. God is present in the world as an impenetrable reality, actively pushing against the barriers which we erect to keep Him from breaking through into our lives. Prayer is one of the ways in which we may lower our barriers and allow Him to break in. He never changes, but we change. And that's why His power is manifested more clearly in some lives than in others.

Q. Where does Jesus fit into the picture?

A. Jesus was in every sense a human being just as we are. Like us, He was free to make decisions, including the big decision of what He would do with His life. He freely chose to do what He believed God wanted him to do. Because He was not preoccupied with Himself, and because He was so completely committed to His mission of serving others, there were no barriers in Him to God. He was the "fully open man"—and so God was able to reveal Himself to him and through him to a way that has never been possible in any other person.

Q. Do you then believe that Jesus was unique?

A. I think that on all the important tests of human character, He was "the most"—and for that reason, He occupies a unique place in history. But I think He differs from men like Socrates and Buddha in the degree of His openness to God rather than in some absolute, peculiar way.

Q. You do not subscribe to the traditional Christian doctrine of the incarnation, which holds that the eternally existent word of God was embodied, or "made flesh," in Jesus as a special act of divine self-revelation?

A. I don't believe in the incarnation. Jesus was not, simply going along with a pre-ordained destiny when He chose a life of self-denial, service and suffering. His glory lies precisely in the fact that, being fully human, He voluntarily engaged himself in the search of truth, concern for His human as open channel for God.

Q. Then, would you say that Jesus was in any sense divine?

A. Oh, yes, I would say with St. Paul that, "in Him we see all the virtues of God." In Him we see all we need to know about God is like, and what human beings are supposed to be like.

Q. Do you believe in the resurrection?

A. I do, and for two reasons. First, I believe that every human being is so special, so unique, so precious that he goes on as a person forever. I don't mean just as a memory, either. I mean that there is a personal and individual life beyond death. This is a matter of faith—it cannot be proved. But it seems to me more plausible than the alternative. For every basic and universal human desire, there is a corresponding reality. This is obviously true of hunger, thirst and the desire for sexual fulfillment. It is reasonable to assume that it is true likewise of the universal yearning for personal immortality.

Q. You said there were two reasons.

A. Yes, I think that the historical evidence is quite convincing that the apostles experienced the real presence of the resurrected Jesus. The experience was corporate and multiple, which tends to rule out hallucinations. And they gave public testimony to it at grave cost to themselves, which makes it highly improbable that they were deliberately perpetrating a group fraud.

My conviction that the resurrection of Jesus took place strengthens my personal belief that human personality survives death.

Q. What are your views on heaven and hell?

A. In my new book—"What Is This Treasure?"—which will be published by Harper & Row next week, I go into all this at some length. Essentially, I think it's an insult to God's goodness and justice to believe that some individuals are condemned to eternal punishment at the moment of death. I believe that after death, as before, men will have freedom to choose, to grow, to become increasingly or decreasingly open to the ground of their being.

Q. Some of your critics call you a "reductionist." Is it fair to say that you want to reduce the number of beliefs that a person must hold in order to consider himself a Christian?

A. Yes, I plead guilty to that. This world is full of people who believe quite a lot, but stay away from the church because they think they don't believe enough. I am trying to center on a few essentials so these people can get something out of non-essentials. That's what I meant by saying we need few beliefs—and more belief.
