Quotes From The News

HONOLULU — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey addressing the annual convention of the American Bar Association on the "massive price" Americans need to pay to meet racial crisis.

"Any nation that can mobilize its scientific and managerial resources to put a man on the moon ought to be able to put a man on his feet on this god earth."

WASHINGTON — Sen. Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and military appropriations subcommittee, warning of nuclear advances by China which he called "a mad dog among nations."

"It is the view of the committee that deployment of the Nike X antiballistic missile system should be initiated immediately and the committee urges the executive branch of the government to take action accordingly."

NEW YORK — H. Rap Brown, black power radical presently under indictment for incitement to riot in Cambridge, Md., told an audience of about 800 cheering Negroes here that recent Negro riots were just "dress rehearsals for rebellion" and warned the government:

"If you play Nazi with us, we ain't gonna play Jews."

WASHINGTON — Chairman Carl Perkins of the House Education and Labor Committee predicting tighter government controls over the local anti-poverty programs because of recent charges that workers helped incite riots, but added:

"OEO (Office of Economic Opportunity) will not be dismantled and its major functions will remain intact."

A Bible Thought For Today

For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth. —Romans 1:16.

Only one who believes in Christ and His gospel with such conviction that he will witness, realizes this power of God.

Chance Has No Hitter For Five Innings

By GREG GALLO
UPI Sports Writer

Dean Chance is working his way into the record books one step at a time and now that he is half way there the pitching immortals better make room for another man who is nearing perfection.

The right-handed ace of the Minnesota Twins hurled a perfect game for five innings against the Boston Red Sox Sunday before a violent rainstorm halted play with one out in the bottom of the fifth with the Twins leading 2-0. Although the game does count in the official standings, enabling the Twins to move into second place by .500 over Boston, Chance will go unheralded for his outlandish masterpiece.

"I'm just as glad it ended as it did," said the good-looking Chance. "A win is a win, and that's what our club needs most right now."

Only once before in Chance's major league career had he come close to pitching a no-hitter, in 1962 when he was with the Angels.

"It was against the Twins and I had one out in the eighth inning when this guy, pointing to teammate Zoilo Versalles, broke a 1-1 tie with a single," Chance recalled.

No Mistakes

Chance didn't make a mistake as he retired the 15 batters he faced with only 49 pitches. He threw three balls to only one batter, Carl Yastrzemski in the fourth, before fanning him on a 3-2 pitch.

"That's the thing I'm really proud of," said Chance, remarking about his recent pinpoint control. "I haven't walked a batter in 15 innings and have lost just one in my last four starts, and that was practically an intentional pass to Don Mincher with first base open."

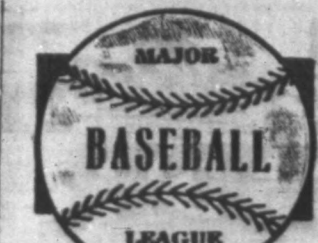

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore swept Chicago 5-2 and 4-0, Detroit split with Cleveland, taking the opener 7-3 before dropping the nightcap 4-3, Washington defeated California 7-2 and New York outdistanced Kansas City 9-5.

In the National League, San Francisco took two from New York 9-1 and 4-1 Atlanta edged Chicago 6-4, St. Louis nipped Cincinnati 3-2, Los Angeles downed Pittsburgh 5-4 and Philadelphia bombed Houston 8-4.

Chance chalked up his 14th victory against eight losses as Boston starter Jim Lonergan on a weekend pass from the Reserves, took his fifth loss against 15 triumphs.

The game was delayed for 25 minutes in a third inning before Minnesota struck for two runs in the fourth. Clear Tovar opened with a walk, stole second and after holding up on Harmon Killebrew's hard single to left, scored on Bob Allison's long double off the left field fence. Rich Rodden then singled home Killebrew.

Russ Snyder's three-run pinch homer in the seventh inning and clutch relief pitching by Wally Bunker and the six-hit pitching of Tom Phoebus gave the Baltimore Orioles a sweep of their doubleheader with the White Sox, cutting Chicago's lead to 2½ games over Minnesota and Rose in the American race. ## White Slams Homer For Phillies As They Beat Houston Astros

By JOE GERGEN

Bill White, who had difficulty just waiting a few months ago, now is taking the biggest steps of his career.

White was said by many to be through, at least for the 1967 season, after he tore an Achilles tendon last winter playing paddleball, underwent a serious operation in spring training. He walked carefully with a pronounced limp and was in constant pain but he never quit.

His courage and persistence finally are paying dividends and the Philadelphia Phillies are collecting enough interest to barge into the National League pennant race, who many have already conceded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

White slugged a three-run homer Sunday, capping a five-run inning that propelled the Phils to an 8-4 victory over the Houston Astros and extended their winning streak to six games. Philadelphia, although still sixth in the standings, is only 3½ games out of second place.

"He's getting better every day," said manager Gene Mauch, who watched White push himself to the limit in Florida only to suffer a relapse.

"I'm glad he's hitting home runs. But I would be just as pleased with singles and doubles because of the way he is moving his bat through the hitting area."

The San Francisco Giants also ran their winning streak to six and dropped into second place by beating New York 9-7 in 10 innings and 4-1, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 3-2, Atlanta sent Chicago down to its sixth straight defeat 5-4 and Los Angeles won 4-3.

Only games scheduled:

Tuesday's Games

New York at California, night; Boston at E. C., 2, two-night; Washington at Minnesota, night; Cleveland at Baltimore, night; Chicago at Detroit, 2, two-night.

Steven Upshaw retired the only two batters he faced, Randy Hundley and Adolfo Phillips, to throttle the Cubs, who scored two runs in the ninth. Joe Torre hit a two-run homer in the first for Atlanta off Ray Culp, whose record dropped to 8-10.

Len Gabrielson lashed a single, double and triple and Ron Hunt and Ron Fairly each drove in two runs as the Dodgers snapped a five-game losing streak. Claude Osteen, staked to a 4-0 lead after three innings, posted his 13th triumph, with relief help from Bob Miller and Ron Perrano. The Pirates' Roberto Clemente collected three hits in four at bats to take over the league batting leadership with a .356 average.

Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh 5-4, Minnesota topped Boston 2-0 in a rain-shortened American League contest, in which Dean Chance pitched five perfect innings, Baltimore swept a pair from league-leading Chicago 5-2 and 4-0, Washington walked off California 7-3, New York shipped Kansas City 9-6 and Cleveland defeated Detroit 6-3 after the Tigers won the first game of a twinbill 7-3.

The Phils were trailing the Astros 4-3 when Don Wilson was replaced by Dan Schaefer on the mound for Houston after walking the first two batters in the eighth. John Briggs beat out a bunt when Schaefer first decided to throw to third, then changed his mind and threw to first.

Three Doubles

Willie McCovey pounded out three doubles in the first game and drove in four runs in the rightcap for the surprising Giants. His three-run homer in the eighth inning of the second game snapped a 1-1 tie and enabled southpaw Joe Gibbon to beat New York rookie Dan Pate. Ty Cline's pinch single in the 18th broke a 7-7 tie in the opener in which the Giants collected 18 hits, four of them by Jay Alton.

Orlando Cepeda's 20th homer, a three-run shot in the fifth inning, carried the Cards to their fifth consecutive victory and a sweep of the three-game series with the Reds. The black named Cepeda's RBIs helped to 4 and enabled him to equal his home run output of last season. Nelson Briles went 5-1-3 in innings to notch his sixth victory of the season and the first over Cincinnati in his three-year career.

Cecil Upshaw put down a ninth inning uprising and preserved Ken Johnson's 11th triumph for the

CHAPTER 23

DORIS Chenoweth went to the patio where her Uncle Chuck sat on a bench, enjoying the bright morning sun. Pete was on the slope that led to the street, searching the dew-covered grasses with a lowered nose.

"Everything straightened out?" Uncle Chuck asked.

"The insurance man will be up this afternoon to go over the policies. She frowned up at the nervous-looking dog. "Don't you think Pete seems jittery and suspicious?"

"Yes, and I think he's got a damned good reason," Uncle Chuck replied.

"You mean the fact that he was shot in the ear?"

Uncle Chuck rose, nodding at her. "If the person who shot Pete also murdered Sargent and the Knowles girl, he might figure Pete knows him, and maybe he'll react when they meet again. Identify him, as it were. It could be as easy as pie to finish the dog off when the chance comes."

"I'm not going to put him out again at night. I won't sacrifice Pete."

Uncle Chuck was studying the dog with a thoughtful eye. "The trouble with poor old Pete is he reacts to everybody. He doesn't discriminate and maybe he really doesn't know who he shot him. Maybe the shot came from someone he never got wind of, didn't see."

Uncle Chuck, braced on the cane, started for the house. "Right now I'm going to call Cannon's mother-in-law, Mrs. Criff. I'm going to see if she won't meet me somewhere and talk further about Astrid Cannon and his affairs. And this time I want you along, Dorrie. I want you playing the silent, saddened widow I have a hunch Mrs. Criff would appreciate a few soap-opera touches. Appreciate them enough to do a lot more talking."

For a moment Dorrie seemed hurt and dismayed. "I... I couldn't put on an act—"

"Well, put yourself back into yesterday—you'll do fine."

She held out a hand as if to delay him. "I haven't any quarrel with Arthur. You heard the agreement I made with him, that he'd figure up his losses on the stock that Diamond Tunnel thing—"

"Yes, Dorrie, and let's make sure if we can that you're not paying what you don't owe him." He left her standing there and went into the house.

Uncle Chuck dialed from the kitchen extension phone. Mrs. Criff herself answered on the second ring. "Yes? Who is it?" she cried, and then added as an afterthought, "This is the Cannon residence. Emily Criff speaking."

"This is Chuck Sadler, Mrs. Criff."

"Oh yes! Mr. Sadler! I've been thinking of all you said—"

From the sager, a most irresistible tone it would seem that Mrs. Criff might have been caressing the telephone, expecting him to call. —and I have a few things, just small items I remembered and jotted down, plus a few new happenings, recent ones."

It occurred to Uncle Chuck that Mrs. Criff had wanted to be a central figure in the investigation and that the police might have ignored her as a gossiping old lady. Their mistake, he thought. "I was calling in the hope that you would be willing to see me again," he told her. "I admit that sound judgment of yours and your memory. Sometimes it takes one of us old timers—" but corrected this slip quickly. —but of course I'm much older than you are. You show the good sense of a person beyond your years. Could you meet us some-where this morning? A coffee shop perhaps?"

"I hate to leave my niece alone. There have been some mysterious things happening. Besides that, she's so crushed and bewildered. You might be able to help with a word of advice."

She exclaimed in delight. She might be so happy, so deeply honored; she felt so much sympathy for a good woman who had to put up with a fiend like Sargent Chenoweth. She exhibited so much enthusiasm that Uncle Chuck almost found himself yawning. Mr. Sadler, there is a nice coffee shop in our neighborhood here, one of those Knowles drive-ins. Would that be all right? I could meet you there in about a half hour."

"What street is the cafe on?"

"Bennington. You can't miss it."

"Fine. Look for Doris and me in a rear booth."

"Goodbye for now, Mr. Sadler."

Uncle Chuck ushered Dorrie to a booth in the cafe. He looked around. The place showed every evidence of a busy prosperity.

Mrs. Criff seated herself on the end of the leather seat on the same side as Uncle Chuck. She turned her attention to Dorrie.

"Mrs. Chenoweth, I want to extend my sympathy to you in this hour. And please forgive me if I add a remark—I just don't see how a man could leave a decent, ladylike person such as you and take up with a juvenile tramp."

From the novel published by Simon & Schuster, Inc. Copyright © 1966 by Dolores Hitchens. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Doris flinched. In her mind, Uncle Chuck knew, she was still defending Kat Knowles.

"I found out on the radio who she was," Mrs. Criff went on, her eyes narrowing behind her glasses. "A suicide. They think now, I know when I saw her on the street those two times she'd come to no good end. I just felt it in my bones."

"Mrs. Criff—" Doris had put a hand half across the table toward the older woman. "I know Katrina, as a little child, and she wasn't—"

"Strange, you know," Mrs. Criff interrupted, "but I had seen the child a time or two myself, years ago. I didn't recognize her. How could I, the way she'd got herself up? She looked like a freak!"

"Curious—and to ward off an argument—Uncle Chuck put in, "In what way a freak? Just what do you mean, Mrs. Criff?"

The woman made a grimace of distaste. "It was all overdone. Too much. Oh, I'm quite aware of how the young girls fix themselves up these days. Mr. Sadler, the heavy eye make-up and the strange things they do to their hair—and I don't think I'm narrow-minded. I can recall a few fads we went in for in the twenties. But this girl, the Knowles girl, made herself conspicuous."

"Clothes? Make-up?"

"All of it. And now, meeting Mrs. Chenoweth, I cannot understand her husband's choice. Why, it seems the police suspect Sargent Chenoweth might have been about to elope with the girl."

"I guess that was a possibility," Uncle Chuck said guardedly. He too had listened to the news broadcast early that morning, before Doris had come into the kitchen.

As he summoned the waitress to order coffee for the three of them, he was remembering that as yet he hadn't turned over to Lieutenant Martin the photostat of Kat Knowles's birth certificate. Martin must have been running down leads of his own.

There had been no word of any meeting between Martin and the girl's father, though this must have occurred before now. Knowles couldn't have gone dashing around the country indefinitely without running into the cops along the way. Perhaps the broadcast had been based on information given by Knowles himself, the source guarded by the cops.

A picture was developing which fascinated Uncle Chuck.

"This little old woman lived with her daughter and apparently spent her time spying on the son-in-law. The story continues tomorrow."

Private Acts Don't Change the Facts

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Because I was less of what the facts of your life prepared when I was married, I am now wondering what to tell my daughter and son when it is "fact of life" time.

Would it be wise to tell them of their parents' "mistake" and hope we have raised them well and they'll do better?

WONDERING MOTHER

DEAR WONDERING: The "fact of life" remains the same regard-

The ladies day luncheon will be served at noon at the Calloway Country Club. Hostesses are Mesdames Holmes Ellis, chairman, Billy Thurman, Thomas C. Emerson, Dennis Attylor, Tom Rowlett, Charles Tuttle, Preston Ordway, and Chad Stewart.

The WMU of the Elm Grove Baptist Church will meet at the church at 9:30 a.m. for visitation followed by a potluck luncheon at noon. The general program will be presented in the afternoon.

***
Saturday, August 12

A buffet supper and dance will be held at the Oaks Country Club. Hosts are Messrs and Mesdames John Trotter, Leonard Vaughn, Frank Kane, Rube Ray, and Miss Beth Branch.

DEAR ABBY: Even tho we've been married more than 40 years, I still am embarrassed by the way Bernie talks. Profanity is his second language. We go out a lot socially, and it is extremely humiliating for me to listen to him. Every other word is a curse word. Swearing is as natural for Bernie as breathing. He was raised in a good home and has been thru college, so you know he's not an uneducated bum.

Our old friends are used to hearing Bernie swear, but when we are with new acquaintances for the first time, they look at me as if to ask, "Is that husband of yours a mental case?" What makes a person swear all the time? How can I cure him?

BERNIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If you've been humiliated for 40 years and are only now seeking a solution to your problem, you've wasted a lot of valuable time. The man who peppers his prose with profanity is advertising a limited vocabulary. Bernie may have gone thru college, but college never went thru him. The cure? After 40 years, your chances for "curing" him are slim.

DEAR ABBY: You recently filled your entire column with letters from anti-religious readers who disagreed with your religious point of view. That was very generous of you, but could me as one who thought you were right in suggesting psychiatric help for the man who suddenly turned anti-religious after having been reared in the Catholic church. He shouted at his wife who said grace at the table, "Don't thank God for the food. Thank me!"

I would not question a man's sanity merely because he turned against his church, but I would question it if for no apparent reason he suddenly had changed his normal behavior pattern. A marine who had been the youngest Eagle scout on record and distinguished himself in the marine corps, suddenly changed his behavior pattern, and ended up going berserk and killing several innocent people on a university campus.

Kuykendall-Darnell Wedding Planned

Miss Deborah Joan Kuykendall

Mr. and Mrs. James Kuykendall of Murray Route One announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Deborah Joan Kuykendall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Darnell of Murray Route Two.

The bride-elect is a 1967 graduate of Calloway County High School and also a 1967 graduate of the Emily Beauty School. She is now employed at Emily's Beauty Shop on the Lynn Grove Road.

Mr. Darnell is also a 1967 graduate of Calloway County High School and is employed at the Darnell Body Shop on the Concord Road.

The wedding will be solemnized on Thursday, September 7, at the home of the bride's parents.

ments of punch and cookies were served from the beautifully appointed dining room table centered with a lovely arrangement of garden flowers.

Mrs. Mary Bordeaux speaks at Littleton Home

Mrs. J. E. Littleton opened her home on South Eighth Street for the meeting of the Afternoon Circle of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church held on Tuesday, August 1, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Presenting the program for the afternoon was Mrs. Mary Bordeaux who gave the first part of the study theme, "Faiths Next Door", for the first six months of this church year.

Mrs. Bordeaux is spending the summer with her sister, Mrs. P. A. Hart. She will be teaching at Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., this fall.

The worship part of the program on "Love" was given by Mrs. Vernon Riley who closed with a musical recording. The devotion was given before a worship setting of a Cross and the Bible.

The program was opened with a period of silent prayer for Mrs. W. J. Gibson, circle chairman, whose brother had passed away the day before.

During the social hour refresh-

Sexton Home Scene Of Coffee Held On Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. Charles Sexton and her daughter, Miss Melba Sexton, entertained with a lovely coffee at their home on North Fourteenth Street on Thursday, August 3, from two to five-thirty o'clock in the afternoon.

The occasion was to give their many friends and relatives an opportunity to see Miss Sexton's many gifts that she had received prior to her wedding to George Briscoe.

Mrs. Woodfin Hixson greeted the guests at the door to the entrance hall and they were invited to the den where the gifts were displayed. An arrangement of magnolias was used on the television in the den.

The guests were then invited to the spacious dining and living room where refreshments were served from the beautifully appointed table overlaid with a green cloth and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli.

Silver and crystal appointments were used. Miss Ann Mahan and Mrs. Neal Sellers alternated at the silver coffee service.

Also assisting in the serving were Mrs. A. A. Doherty and Mrs. Ned Wilson, sons of Miss Sexton.

For the occasion Miss Sexton wore a pink printed cotton and her mother wore a green printed cotton.

Woman's Rules Steered Drivers

BOSTON (AP) — Learning to drive? Learn also "not to be afraid of being afraid."

That was the advice offered by a woman to other women half-century ago in "The New England Motorist," official magazine of the Automobile Legal Association (ALA).

The woman, identified only as "A Woman Driver," wrote that she felt women as a whole "lack confidence in themselves to handle the unexpected, should the unexpected occur."

Good driving is simply a state of mind," she said in her 1917 article, "The Fear of Being Afraid."

"As soon as anyone discovers how easy it is to handle a car, and how near an impossibility it is for an emergency to arise that cannot be met with little effort."

"The modern car is mastered, one has learned about all there is to know in order to drive a car."

"Of course," she added, "one might know what to do under practically all conditions, and still not do it. That is where lots of women fail as good drivers; their fear of doing the wrong thing is so great that they do nothing at all."

Most Diabetics Stricken After 45

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's yes and no whether diabetes can be prevented, reports a University of California professor.

The onset of diabetes can be delayed several years by early recognition of its symptoms and appropriate treatment," Dr. Peter H. Forstman said. "Occasionally it can be prevented in this manner."

Forstman, president of the San Francisco Diabetes Association, observed that only five per cent of all diabetes victims contract the disease during childhood. The vast majority get diabetes after age 45.

A history of diabetes in the family should make one watchful for signs of the disease," he said.
