Service To GIs Is Major Item For Red Cross

WASHINGTON, D. C. — To provide its health and welfare services to Americans in this country and at U. S. military installations overseas, the American Red Cross spent $102,202,007 in the 1966-67 fiscal year, according to the organization's Annual Report, released today.

Largest item of expenditure was $44,663,045 for services to the nation's armed forces and veterans. This assistance was provided in every county in the United States and in 30 other countries around the world where U. S. troops are stationed.

In submitting the report to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, E. Roland Harriman, American Red Cross chairman, and General James F. Collins, president, stressed the fact that ARC is first and foremost an organization of volunteers from its top leadership down through the ranks.

During the year, the report said, the Red Cross added military personnel at an increased rate and helped a constantly growing number of servicemen and their dependents with personal and family problems arising from or magnified by military service.

Each month 96,800 servicemen received welfare services at military stations and medical facilities worldwide. In Vietnam, Red Cross workers who traveled 36,500 miles to conduct the programs.

A total of 176,700 emergency communications to and from South Vietnam were relayed through the Red Cross.

Other Red Cross activities detailed in the report were these:

DISASTER SERVICES: The Red Cross gave assistance to 33,100 families in 18,147 disaster situations, including 408 relief operations in which 33,961 dwellings were damaged or destroyed, and 161,500 included received emergency mass care. Total expenditures of $7,289,700 included $195,500 in foreign disaster relief.

BLOOD PROGRAM: The Red Cross collected 2,922,700 units of blood for civilian use and 46,400 units for the Defense Blood Program which ended November 1, 1966. Red Cross-collected blood went to 4,300 hospitals and to blood banks. The cost to Red Cross of blood center operations, fractionation of plasma, and research and development was $16,099,228.

SAFETY SERVICES: The organization gave 124,500 certificates for completion of first aid courses and 2,748,700 for completion of courses in swimming, life saving and small craft safety. A total of 26,500 Red Cross highway stations, mobile units and detachments provided first aid on the highways and at community events. Cost of Safety Services was $6,329,018.

NURSING SERVICES: A total of 62,600 nurses were enrolled with Red Cross to provide emergency services in their communities; 1,935,600 persons received nursing services at clinics and emergency aid stations, in schools and through community projects. A total of 292,700 certificates were issued to persons who completed courses in home nursing, mother and baby care and fitness for the future. Cost of Nursing Services was $2,927,688.

INTERNATIONAL SERVICES: When fighting began in the Middle East, the American Red Cross sent drugs donated by pharmaceutical firms, children's clothing and funds to help the International Committee of the Red Cross, the neutral intermediary between the combatants, care for civilian and military casualties.

In South Vietnam, American and South Vietnamese Red Cross teams continued their refugee relief program, providing housing, nursing, sanitation, recreation and vocational training for thousands of civilian refugees. Cost of Red Cross International Services was $418,506.

YOUTH ACTIVITIES: In the 50th year of youth participation in Red Cross work, a highlight was the inauguration of Project REACH in which teams of high school and college students took health and safety services and recreation to an urban neighborhood, a rural county in the South, several Appalachian communities and an Indian reservation.

Another highlight was a summer project in which 24 college students worked with the Mexican Red Cross in expanding the teaching of health and safety courses in communities of Mexico.

Younger school students filled 163,150 friendship boxes and kits which were sent to Red Cross societies in 23 other countries for distribution to children. Cost of Red Cross Youth Activities was $4,772,569.

Veterans

Questions & Answers

Q — A statement in my service medical report says that I have a stomach hernia that I received while in the service. Although I was discharged from the Army about five years ago, is it too late for me to file for compensation from the VA?
A — There is no time limit as to when a veteran may file a claim for compensation for a disease or injury which he believes was incurred while serving in the Armed Forces.
Q — May a nonveteran buy a GI home that has been repossessed and offered for sale by the VA?
A — Yes. The Veterans Administration has for sale or rent some 14,000 homes which are available to any qualified buyers or renters without regard to their race, color, creed or national origin. Your real estate broker probably will be able to advise you if any VA homes are for sale in your area, since most brokers cooperate with VA in the sale or rental of these properties.
Q — When does the 1968 Hospitalized Veterans Writing Contest close? Does a disabled veteran have to be hospitalized in a VA hospital in order to enter the contest?
A — The 1968 contest entries must be postmarked on or before the closing date, March 15, 1968. Hospitalized veterans (men and women) and domiciliary residents may enter the contest in any of all sections (General Article, "Humor in Uniform," Book Reviews, Greeting Cards, writing for Children, Short Stories, Cartoons, and others). Disabled veterans who are no longer hospitalized but who are working with writing aids may be nominated for special awards by these aids. Aides may also nominate hospitalized veterans with whom they have been working longer than a year. Outpatients and disabled discharged veterans who are unable to work full time or take full time educational training may also enter. However, they must give the name of the hospital or date of discharge.

TV CAMEOS: Marilyn Grey NBC's Busiest Performer Is Never Onstage

Marilyn Grey's a lot prettier than many regular television stars, but as a network "color girl," her job's simply to help the cameras adjust.

By MEL HEISER
TO THE average TV performer—star or bit player—a day's work consists of showing up at the studio for an hour or two, doing what has to be done before the angry red eye and then leaving, much as if one has spent an interlude at the country club. Not Marilyn Grey. She puts in an eight-hour day in front of the cameras at NBC—and the gross pay of it is, nobody at home ever gets to see her.

Dark-haired, brisk and attractive, Marilyn has been the "color girl" for the network for the last eight years—which means, translated, that she just sits in front of the color cameras while the operators focus and mix colors, or whatever witches' magic they engage in, until the lenses are adjusted for the best color filming possible.

"I GUESS it may be a little frustrating," she says with a smile, "but to tell you the truth, I don't have time to brood about it. I'm kept so busy. And besides, every now and then I turn up as a guest on a show, while also I do a two-minute weather girl" spot on WPIX, a local station here in New York, which satisfies my itch to perform... to an extent."

Since the start of color TV, NBC always has had a pretty girl—a good complexion is the vital necessity—around for the kind of work Marilyn does. Nanette Fabray used to do it, and so did Leslie Parrish and Lynn Dollar. Miss Grey got the job during a closed-circuit showing of color TV in the late 50s. Half her face was made up for black-and-white cameras, the other half for color—and when NBC bigwigs saw how beautiful her complexion was in rainbow hues, she got the color-girl job.

A native of Chelsea, Mass., with a B.A. in drama and speech from Staley College in Brookline, Mass., Marilyn studied acting with Lee Strasberg and over the seasons has appeared in plays on "Kraft Theatre" and "Goodyear Playhouse," but actually her leaning is toward the news end of things. In '62, for instance, she was a member of the "Today" program panel for a week, doing interviews, and it was seventh heaven, she says she'd love to do a show like that regularly.

For women readers looking for trade secrets: Marilyn uses a liquid base, powders her face and brushes away the excess. She uses a little eyeliner pencil on the top lids, pencils her brows lightly and uses a small amount of mascara. For removal, she applies cold cream, removes it, massages with an astringent-moistened cotton and applies an overnight facial for you—I at them.

MARRIED to Raymond Longden, a lawyer for the American Express Company, Miss Grey has no real idea how she ever got such a remarkable complexion but she's had it most of her life. "Maybe it's my eating habits," she says. "When my mother used to say 'Eat your spinach and carrots; they're good for you'—I at them."

Eligible Bachelor Just Much Too Much

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old bachelor who has a promising future in the investment business. Last summer I became acquainted with a lovely girl who is now a senior in college, and we've seen each other several times. (We are separated by 300 miles.)

Last month I wrote to her and proposed marriage. I did it in a very business like manner because I didn't want there to be any misunderstanding as to what I had to offer her in the way of security, and what I expected of a wife. For example:

- (1) I expect to be served a HOT breakfast six days a week. (On Sundays, I would serve her.)
- (2) No hired help until we have a child.
- (3) We will have no less than 749 children.
- (4) I shall handle all the money. I know she received my letter as I sent it registered mail, but I have received no reply. Should I write to her again, or give her more time to think it over?

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAN FRANCISCO: Curly, you jest! Perhaps the girl is so overwhelmed with your proposal of marriage that she's paralyzed by indecision — but don't bank on it.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "HAD IT," the second wife who resented her husband's "ex" calling him at home to discuss the problems she was having with their teen-aged children. I hope you are wise enough to take Abby's advice and remain silent and patient.

I am a second wife who had the same problem. I was blind-jealous and I became furious every time my husband's "ex" telephoned him at home to discuss the children and their problems. I finally put my foot down and told him I wanted no more of it. He promised there wouldn't be. And there wasn't.

Later on, when his 17-year-old daughter got into trouble with a boy, I blamed myself. Perhaps if the girl's mother had been able to confer with the father, that awful mess could have been prevented. I have regretted it ever since.

SORRY IN LEXINGTON

DEAR SORRY: Don't blame yourself. Had your husband been half a man, he'd have continued to make himself available to his "ex" to discuss their children's problems. Since you became furious when his "ex" telephoned him at home, he could have arranged to have received her calls elsewhere.

Whether the "awful mess" could have been prevented had the girl's parents continued to confer, is anybody's guess, but don't blame yourself because your husband abandoned his responsibilities as a father to appease a "blind-jealous" wife.

DEAR ABBY: I may have a helpful suggestion for that mother whose little 4-year-old boy has to wear an eye patch over one eye temporarily. She still the boy was constantly asked by strangers, "What's the matter with your eye, little boy?"

My son also had to wear an eye patch for the same reason. He had one "lazy" eye, which his doctor strengthened by covering the normal eye, thus forcing the "lazy" eye to work twice as hard.

Our boy, 15, was bothered by inquisitive strangers, so we taught him to say, "O. E.'s just a little AMBLYOPIA." Of course, no one knew what it was, and since they were assumed to admit their ignorance, they just walked away, shaking their heads.

Good Breaks, Aiding Girls With Bad Luck

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — The Wyoming State Girls School at Sheridan has instituted an outside work-study program aimed at getting inmates out into society to prepare them for their eventual release.

"The remarkable thing about the program is the change it makes in the girls," school director Jack Golder said. "They feel they are doing something, and feel they're being depended upon."

"Under the program, three girls are working at the Veterans Administration hospital under a Youth Opportunity Corps program. They are working in fiscal, supply, and medical records division."

"The girls go to school at the Girls School in the morning and to work in the afternoon."

Golder said two more girls have signed up for work at the Army recruiting station in Sheridan. "We want to expand the program," he said.

Golder said the school also is using vocational-rehabilitation to train the girls for jobs they can fill once they're released.

At present, girls at the school are being trained in toxi as waitresses, accountants, helpers and "another is working in the state welfare office at Casper," Golder said.

Efforts of Golder and his staff to retain the girls for society have been aided by a number of other persons and organizations. Golder said "the state employment service, for example, administers general aptitude tests for the girls, keeps track of job possibilities and helps with job referrals."

Miss Debbie Steele urged each member to work on their completion of the various degrees. Miss Kathy Lockhart led the group in a prayer.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Miss Cathy Harris, student at Calloway County High School and state FHA song leader. Miss Harris spoke on "Every Member A Contributing Member."

She suggested that each member participate in activities in the home, chapter, and community.

The scholarship chairman, Miss Beth Tuck, announced that FHA scholarship day will be February 15. Twenty $30 scholarships will be awarded to outstanding FHA members in Kentucky. The Murray High chapter voted to contribute $25 to the fund. Miss Margie Wicks and Miss Debbie Tabara are members of the scholarship committee at Murray High.

What has happened? During Miss Milne's recent visit to the village of Starvelings...

CHAPTER 8. I returned to the waiting trap after a self encounter with Lord Stanvon. Mr. Truscott directed the driver to take him to the village rectory...

He ventured, leaving his guest alone with a distasteful vision of the pale stricken girl who would presently appear...

"Our factotum is looking for her," Mr. Milne had replied. The girl who entered slowly after was medium tall and by no means drooping...

"My dear Miss Milne," he exclaimed gratefully. "I will leave you then to prosecute such inquiries as seem good to you, and return as soon as I can by the way, Lord Stanvon will pay half a crown a visit."

"Not precisely," Mr. Truscott countered. "I have to be sure this...

Cub Pack 37 Has Meeting Last Week at Robertson School

Cub Pack 37 met at Robertson School Tuesday evening. Cub Master L. D. Cathey led the boys in a Grand Hosi to open the meeting. The theme of the month, Communism, was illustrated by a TV broadcast over station CUES. A microphone and TV camera helped to set the scene. Den 1 presented a skit entitled, "This is Communism." Each boy showed and explained a different means of communication. The Peanut sing was presented in the form of Den 4, whose skit was called, "Snoopy vs. the Red Borneo." A television musical group, "The Chimps" otherwise known as Den 2, gave the first performance. Den 5 presented the sports news roundup as each member boosted a different sport. Television is not complete without commercials, and two were amusingly presented by Den 3. Awards were presented to several boys Paul Shahan, Danny Adams and Ken Haggard won their wolf badges. Jeff Dunn, Roger Grogan and Jim Pinkston were awarded bear badges. Nick Johnston and Bruce Marvin received their denner stripes and Doug Allison and Jeff Oakley became assistant denners. In the Webelos awards were made as follows: Howard Giles, naturalist; Phil Miller, geologist; Ricky Adams, sportsman; Greg Johnston, sportsman; and Jimmy King, traveler. Purses to a movie at the Capri were presented to Dens 2 and 3 following a drawing. Tickets are through the courtesy of Manager Tommy Brown. The meeting was closed with all the boys forming a living circle and repeating the Cub Scout pro-time to weed out those who are veterans of Vietnam. The success of the trap deployment followed President Johnson's renewal of his readiness to talk peace with North Vietnam despite the recent Communist offensive against Hanoi. "Write the agenda." In the Saigon area, men of the U.S. Army 199th Light Infantry Brigade swept the southern sector of the Cholon Chinatown and the race track area. American intelligence officers have warned that as many as 5,000 guerrillas are poised to hit Saigon once more in urban warfare that has given the Communists something of a propaganda if not a military victory. South Vietnam's national command police caught and killed 28 Viet Cong in a fight nearby. In Hue, the fighting was inch by inch. Maj. Robert Thompson's 500 Leathernecks dashed from house to house from their Postume River bank beachhead toward the two-mile-square walled city in bright sunlight while Communists poured down fire from second- and third-story windows. UPI correspondent Richard V. Oliver reported. Avoid Destroying Buildings Allied planes and helicopters equipped down and strafed the Communists on the rooftops. But Oliver reported they kept bombing to a minimum to protect the palaces and chambers of departed dynasties that are South Vietnam's greatest architectural treasure. "With good weather and air support we could clean them out in a week. If you have the air support and you do not use it, you are at a disadvantage. The Communists is dug in and KHE SANH—Military intelligence puts Communist positions like this around Khe Sanh. The 320th division is north and west, the 304th to the south and west, the 324th and 320th along the eastern DMZ with the 308th believed moving down in a position to attack to the east or west. Strategic hills are numbered.

Sleuths Study Group Of Lefties

By CAROLYN LINDEN
ALBANY — Left-handed children born to "working class" families are more apt to be trained to use their other hand than children born to professional people, reports a permanent U.S. geneticist.
 Dr. Arthur Palek, chief of the division of human genetics at the Georgia Mental Health Institute, said his theory is that parents in the "working class" jobs, such as construction trades, would rather train their children to be right-handed to save them from fighting the problems they would encounter as a "lefty" in a right-handed society.

Palek conducted a study of nearly 6,000 "working class" parents in New York City, and is now trying to extend the evaluation of his theory with an experiment on children whose fathers were left-handers.
 Where "working class" mothers and fathers are left-handers, Palek said, he has found the highest incidence of right-handed children.
 Palek cited the case of a left-handed father who could not become a postal clerk because he was not able to file letters in slots designed for right-handers. The father retrained his own handedness to be able to take the job. And he made sure his children were right-handed so they would not be handicapped for work either.

On the other hand, parents in the professional classes who are left-handed seldom encounter problems in their work because of that, Palek said. Therefore they are not so concerned about encouraging their children to be right-handers. Palek found that the highest frequency of left-handedness with left-handed fathers was found in this professional group.

Palek, an associate professor of psychology at Emory University who has done 19 years of research in this field, takes the position there's nothing wrong with trying to switch a youngster's handedness. This is contrary to the view of many child psychologists. He hopes his current study with universities in the Atlanta area will show that a child has about a 75 per cent chance to become right-handed if he is encouraged, even if he may be genetically left-handed.

 "But, he stresses, 'children shouldn't be forced.'"

Social Action Is Dividing The Church

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The controversy over social action by churches is waxing hotter.

Not since "fundamentalists" and "modernists" battled in the 1920's over infallibility of the Bible has there been such deep, emotional division in American church life. Cutting across denominational lines, it affects virtually every major religious body.

As often happens in a highly charged dispute, each side tends to caricature the position of the other. A rabid activist may imply that people on the other side are indifferent to human suffering. An agitated conservative may suggest that the social action movement is so preoccupied with man's problems that it ignores God.

Actually, neither side is as single-minded as the opposition paints it.

Those Involved
Dr. Billy Graham is one of the most articulate exponents of the view that the church is "in danger of moving off the main track and getting lost on a side" if it becomes too deeply involved in "trying to solve every ill of society."

But even as he insists that "the changing of men's hearts is the primary mission of the church," Dr. Graham adds that there also is "a sense in which the church is to advise, warn and challenge society" by proclaiming God's judgments on its evils and "by preaching the whole counsel of God which involves man's environment and physical being as well as his soul."

No one has better credentials as a social action advocate than the Rt. Rev. Paul Moore Jr., suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, D. C. Addressing a diocesan convention last Sunday, Bishop Moore said:

"I resist with all my being the church becoming just a social action or service institution, as much as I resist the church withdrawing from the struggles and issues which surround us."

False Spirituality

"Without the life of worship at its heart, social work and action can soon lose vitality or become bitter and violent. On the other hand, the church without social involvement soon becomes a place of false spirituality divorced from the flesh which God put on in Jesus Christ."

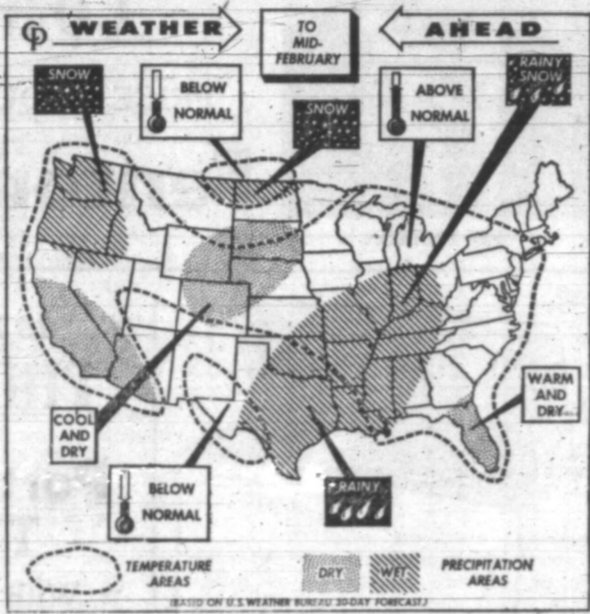

That Paul Moore and Billy Graham are equally dedicated Christians, this writer can testify from long personal acquaintance with both men. Each of them is trying his level best to lead the church in the direction he believes Jesus Christ would have it move. They differ, passionately about what that direction is.

Dr. Graham is convinced that the only way to change human society is to change individual men by converting them to Jesus Christ.

Bishop Moore is convinced that human needs, for which Christ showed unflinching compassion, can be effectively relieved in the modern world only by men of good will working together in social and political action.

It would be a great tragedy if this honest difference of opinion should degenerate into a highly polarized squabble which creates the impression that the church faces an "either-or" choice between evangelism and social action. The disputants seem to agree, in their calmer moments that Jesus was concerned with both the spiritual and the material welfare of human beings.

COFFEE CUP CHATTER. A weekly column by the Extension Agents shown above. Knits are again one of the most fashionable fabrics for spring. They are comfortable to wear, easy to care for, wrinkle resistant, yet elegant in appearance.

The home sewer will find constructing garments from knits easy, provided she used usual good procedures in choosing, cutting, marking and sewing. Tips on selecting ready-made knit garments, caring for knits and sewing knit fabrics may be found in a new University of Kentucky Extension bulletin, "Picks! Tips for Knits," Leaflet 303. This may be secured by writing or calling Catherine C. Thompson, Area Agent in Clothing and Textiles, Hickman, Kentucky, or your County Extension Office. — Mrs. Catherine C. Thompson.

As "Captain in the kitchen" everything should be kept ship-shape at all times. — One should hold frequent and regular inspections.

Under your command are many electrical servants to lighten your household tasks and to help you maintain an economical kitchen. Hold frequent and regular inspections and include in this a check of the cords to make sure that all wiring is well insulated. Frayed wiring can lead to burns and shock. — Mrs. Barleta Wrather.

The home is the most important American educational institution! To have the kind of homes that are most effective as educational institutions, women need to focus their time and energy on activities that will improve family stability, consumer competence, family health and housing. We also need to coordinate our leadership abilities to help solve community problems. — Mrs. Maxine Griffin.

Should at least one knife, fork and spoon always be placed at each place setting? No, do not put unnecessary silver on the table. Place only the pieces of silver needed for the special meal. If on the other hand a meal requires too great an outlay of silver, the silver for the best courses is not put on the table, but is placed at each cover as needed. This occurs only at formal occasions. — Miss Patricia Everett.

New curtains or draperies may be just the thing to give your rooms a newly-decorated look for spring. Window treatments can make the window look larger or smaller, hide built-in defects or unify the room's color scheme. The treatment needed will depend on the type of window, the effect desired, and the rest of the furnishings.

The three "crapies" are all, apron and floor length. — Mrs. Juanita Ammonett.

Help Your Child Learn The Use Of Money

Teaching children about money is more than just telling them how to make money go. They want it. It really has to do with helping them see they are related to the world in a very special way. What they have and will have is the money they have.

There are some principles of spending that many adults have not learned, but want their children to learn. Teach them to spend without being wasteful, to save without being stingy, and to share what they have with others. Teach them to value money for what it can do for them, not as a thing in itself. Teaching the children sound financial habits will better equip them to save many of the hard problems of adult life. Parents often do not give children an opportunity to learn the use of money. Perhaps some parents fail to realize that using money is something that must be learned. — Miss Irma Hamilton.

What's A Good Way To Lose Weight?
Here are a few simple rules to follow in choosing low-calorie meals:

Select a varied diet that contains the different kinds of foods important for health — milk, meat (or alternate), fruit and vegetables, and whole-grain or enriched or restored "craps" and bread.

Choose the foods with fewer calories in each of these groups. For instance, skim milk and buttermilk provide fewer calories than whole milk.

Prepare and serve foods in ways that do not add calories. Avoid fried foods, rich sauces, gravies, salad dressings, rich desserts, and so forth.

Reduce the amount of food eaten by taking smaller servings.

Avoid snacking unless such foods are planned as part of the total allowance of calories.

Take some exercise regularly to increase your expenditure of calories and to keep the body physically fit. — Miss Frances Hanes.

REPORT SUICIDE

PALERMO, Sicily 878 — Police Wednesday reported the suicide of a 62-year-old woman who jumped from a seventh-floor window because she was terrified of earthquakes. The death Tuesday of Mrs. Palma Reitano was the second suicide in Sicily since the disastrous quakes in the Mediterranean island last month, killing at least 200 persons and leaving 25,000 others homeless.

SHOOTS EAGLE

KANOYA, Japan 878 — Kichi Nakano, 58, told police today he shot and killed a large eagle last Dec. 19 in self-defense. Police filed charges anyway, accusing him of killing a rare bird protected by law. Nakano said an eagle swooped down and grabbed his dog in its talons. The bird dropped the dog, wheeled and made another dive—this time on Nakano and his wife. Nakano shot it.

SENDS ASSURANCES

SEOUL 878 — President Johnson sent a personal letter to President Park Chung Hee of South Korea in the present crisis over the Pueblo and Communist infiltrators, the newspaper Hanook Ilbo said today. The newspaper, quoting informed Foreign Ministry sources, said the letter confirmed U. S. determination to preserve South Korea's security. U. S. and South Korean officials would neither confirm nor deny a letter was delivered.
