Seen & Heard Around Murray

John Wasp, the first of the year. They can sting like crazy too.

Fellow brought a tool in yesterday that baffled everybody. It is old, probably over 100 years old and resembles big snippers to some degree. Had a wedge on the side which possibly was a tension control device. What it was no one had been able to decide. He has shown it to people as old as 80 but with no results. If he will bring it back in, we'll take a picture of it and run it in the paper and maybe someone can identify it.

We have learned more Spanish since the series High Chapparral began. We know words like por favor, which means roughly, if you please, and ramoose, which means ramoose, and gringo, which we already knew. However Victoria is too fast for us when she gets mad. We can't even understand English when spoken that fast.

If we were in John Cannon's shoes, we would learn Spanish. However, he does all right.

The Jeff Street home on South Sixth is once again presenting a sight for the general public. All the plants between the sidewalk and the street are up. All are blooming except the tulips which will be along later. We watch each year for this bloom for the soul.

Fervidly is blooming all over town. That's that yellow stuff you see everywhere.

The Hickory buds are swelling rapidly. Let's hope for a banner start year for the wildlife.

We have two Oscars, tropical fish, which have grown to two times the size they were when we first got them. They are odd looking critters which look as though they have been run through a meat grinder.

If you want to see some huge Angel Fish, the boys next door at the Family Aquarium Shop have them. Big as your hand.

We just got word that a good friend, Mrs. C. E. Farmer died this morning. We always liked her and watched with interest each Spring when she put out her big ferns on each side of the front steps. A fine person who always greeted people with a smile. Our sympathy to Mr. Farmer and to the rest of the family.

Census Director Ross Eckler, in answer to the statement that the Federal government is snooping when it asks so many questions on the census form says "Their (the census taker) record for secrecy is unblemished."

We miss the whole point. No one questions that the census takers record, or the government's record, for secrecy is unblemished. The point is that they ask questions which are nobody's business except the individual's.

Then too, we are not too high on the government compiling a dossier on citizens all over the country.

One out of four families will be questioned and they will be asked 80 questions. They will be asked everything from how many toilets are in the house, who you share a shower with, to how many illegitimate children you have, if any.

If you don't answer them, they'll tack on a fine and a jail sentence.

Letter To Editor

Dear Sir,
We appreciate the excellent coverage your newspaper gave to our recent Democratic banquet at the Holiday Inn. The photograph taken by your group and turned in with the news story pictured one of the candidates for County Court Clerk. Some have asked if this constituted an endorsement of this particular candidate. The picture was taken at random, with no specific candidate in mind and did not constitute an endorsement for anyone. It is regrettable that a routine picture would be interpreted as an effort to boost one person at the expense of others.

Thank you for allowing us this means of clarification. Sincerely,
Mary Jane Littleton
Calloway County Democratic Chairman

Viet Cong Thrown Back Near Saigon

By WALTER WHITEHEAD SAIGON — A 60-man Communist battalion rushed out of the jungle behind a sheet of mortar, machine gun and rocket fire today and tried to overrun a U. S. base northwest of Saigon. The American command said the guerrillas were thrown back, losing 81 killed.

Outnumbered U. S. 25th Infantry Division soldiers manning the base 30 miles from the capital called on American dive bombers, artillery and helicopter gunships to break the predator attack.

Military spokesmen said the defenders lost two men killed and 13 wounded in the two-hour battle.

Headquarters said it was the second Saigon-area fight in the past 24 hours. The first, 30 miles north of the capital, cost the U. S. 25 dead in battling with troops of the U. S. 11th Armored Cavalry. The Americans lost two dead.

Guerrilla ground gunners 55 and 80 miles north of Saigon downed two U. S. helicopters Friday, killing three GIs and wounding one and bringing to 1,035 the number of American 'copters lost to ground fire in South Vietnam.

To the north, antiaircraft fire on the coast near An Hoa brought down a Marine A-4 Skyhawk and killed its pilot on a bombing mission in support of allied troops in battle, military spokesmen said.

Three S-30s Military headquarters in Saigon said three S-30s from U. S. Army artillery killed at least 19 guerrillas and triggered 12 fireballs in Communist ammunition stores in the southern half of the six-mile-wide Demilitarized Zone.

U. S. Marines in watchtowers and a spotter plane pilot circling overhead spotted both of the targets for the American DMZ bombardments Friday. Guerrillas in the zone opened up on the spotter plane but did not find the mark.

Military spokesmen said the first artillery salvo, directed by the spotter pilot, killed four Communists, destroyed two bunkers and triggered one fireball about six miles west-northwest of the Marine base at Con Thien.

Down the Garden Path

By Mrs. W. F. WILLIAMS

Have you ever thought how similar the needs are for building both a flower bed and a good character? You will find essentials are much alike. First we need the right specifications. We decide what we want, then we make plans to that point. A working knowledge is necessary, so we read the proper material and choose our colors so they won't clash. Just so, we need to have right environment and friends to aid in character growth.

Second we need to clean out the sticks, stones, weeds and rubbish to make room for the good dirt for our flowers. In the same way we must clear out small faults, that might choke out our good intentions in character building. Third we need a good foundation. We dig out heavy clay, put in drainage to assure that our flower bed won't wash away. Character needs a good foundation also, and the only one is Jesus Christ. After all the real foundation for either one is not man's work. It is already there for man's benefit. Fourth, we must have good materials. Every gardener or person is responsible for his own material. We see all sorts of grade plants and seeds and will never quite reach the heights. Perhaps this is the most important similarity, for cheap materials in building character are selfishness, indifference and hypocrisy, each small in itself, but together they blunt and ruin. Good materials are sincerity, faithfulness, love, compassion and selflessness. A good garden needs food, the fifth point. We fertilize, we give each plant the food it needs; just so we feed a good character with the spiritual food it needs, which is the Scripture and fine, clean reading. As every gardener knows, or so we think, any plant grows better when it is loved. So the sixth thought is that love is necessary to both a flower bed and good character. Each flower and person is different and love will show the way to aid the growth of each. Finally there is a marvelous reward from each. We all know the thrill that comes with success with a plant or blossom. The more we work, the greater the thrill. And certainly as we watch our children grow and develop in strong Christian characters, we are humbly grateful that we have, with God's help, succeeded. So, gardeners or Christians, we have similar needs. We need to share with others; We must sow that which we wish to reap; we must work continually, for evil never gives up, neither do weeds; We must have faith, for if we sow there will be a harvest; We must remember that the fullness is the Lord's and our duty is to beautify both our characters and our flowers, for we are His creatures as well as the growing things. Using what the Lord has given us and with his help of sun and air and rain for our plants and his strength and hope for building character we should be able to battle the bad and bring out the good in each. I have always loved the following paragraph by Lyman Abbott.

"By and by the birds will come and rest in me. By and by I will furnish shade for the cattle: By and by I will provide warmth for the home. By and by I will be shelter from the storm to those who have gone under the roof. By and by, I will be the strong ribs of a great vessel and the temple will beat against me in vain, while I carry men across the Atlantic." "O foolish little acorn, wilt thou be all this?" I ask. The acorn answers, "Yes, God and I."

HOW TO WIN IN VIET—Maj. Gen. Raymond Davis (above), 3rd Marine Division commander in South Vietnam, says allied troops could win the war there by attacking Communist bases in Laos and the southern fringes of North Vietnam. "The quickest way to shorten this war is to destroy these sanctuaries," says Davis. He returns soon to become commandant of Marine Corps schools in Quantico, Va.

What Problems Will Confront Man On the Moon? Here are Just a Few

By RAYMOND WILCOVE, Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON—What problems will confront Man when he finally steps on the barren landscape of the Moon? Alice S. Allen has some of the answers, for she is perhaps the best informed woman in the United States on the Moon's environment. Miss Allen is acting chief of the Space Sciences Section of the Army Engineers' Extra Terrestrial Research Agency. The section is composed of a small group of people who are making a scientific study of the Moon's terrain and environment. Miss Allen said that special engineering provisions must be made to enable Man to live and work on the Moon. "Our job is to learn all about the Moon's environment," she explained.

HERE are some of the things Miss Allen pointed out about the Moon: Life there will be much different from that on Earth, because the Moon's environment is a hostile one, much more so than even Antarctica. One false step could bring disaster. Since the Moon's gravity is only one-sixth that of Earth and there virtually is no pressure there, moving about will present unusual problems. A person weighing 180 pounds would weigh only 30 pounds on the lunar surface. When walking, a loping half-run, keeping the feet close to the ground, would probably be the best way to get about.

SINCE space travelers will have to wear bulky pressurized suits on the Moon, which has little if any atmosphere, the exertion will tend to heat up the suit. "Some provision must be made to keep a satisfactory temperature in the suit," explained Miss Allen. "After all, they won't be able to open the space helmet to cool off." Along with the lack of atmosphere, the temperature on the Moon's surface would be 253 degrees Fahrenheit at night to plus 250 degrees during the day. Man will have to be protected against the small meteorites which constantly pelt the Moon. If his suit were punctured, death might come in only a few seconds. Driving a vehicle over the Moon's surface would be a slow process, possibly three to five miles an hour. Hitting a bump or hole while the vehicle was proceeding at a fast pace could result in its easily overturning. And lunar motorists who failed to fasten their seat belts might find themselves sailing through lunar space. "If men ever play baseball on the Moon, every player can be a home run king. In fact, if he's not careful, the ball he hits very hard might disappear into space forever. And, ladies, your hairdo will last much longer on the Moon because there is no humidity there to wilt it. But you will have to cover your hairdo with a space helmet. Oh well, you can't have everything."

of Wolfschmidt Vodka Distilleries, reports that in the same 15-year period vodka has shown sales increases of more than 1,700 per cent, and that an estimated 20 million cases will be sold in 1972.

Road To Resurrection

Illustrated by Alfred J. Buescher

"When the even was come, there came a rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple. He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. . . . And when Joseph had taken the body, he laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed." Matthew 27: 62-65, 66.

"Now the next day, that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate. Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can. So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch." Matthew 27: 62, 65, 66.

Boston Claims Eastern Crown

PHILADELPHIA, April 4. — The Boston Celtics staved off a late Philadelphia rally to edge the 76ers, 93-90, Friday night and win their National Basketball Association Eastern semifinal series, 4-1. Boston led by 10 points at 86-76 with 5:11 remaining. The 76ers still trailed by eight with 2:50 left. Archie Clark and Matty Goukas hit for baskets that cut the margin to 90-84. Hirsch Did Not Think Of Retiring

NEW YORK UPI - Max Hirsch, who died Thursday at the age of 86, won a warm reputation in America for the great horses he brought to the nation's racetracks.

His career as a trainer began with a winner named Gustama at Fair Grounds in 1902, and was still going Wednesday when a 4-year-old filly named Heartland won at Aqueduct. Hirsch was credited with 1,934 winners. Among them was the mighty Assault, Triple Crown winner of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont in 1936 and Middleground in 1950, and Belmont champion Vito in 1928, Middleground in 1950 and High Gun in 1954.

Hirsch, born of German immigrants in Fredericksburg, Tex., on July 30, 1880, ran away from his comfortable home at the age of 12 to travel north with a racing stable.

He never thought of retiring. "Why should I?" he asked recently. "I feel fine, sleep good, eat well and have all my faculties."

Hirsch had his first stakes winner in 1909 when Beau Claire, named for his wife who died in 1939, won the Washington Handicap. For nearly half a century he sent out stakes winners for the King Ranch of Robert J. Kleberg, and became a master of winning races with first time starters and at getting a horse ready for a certain race.

A Requiem Mass will be held in Our Lady of Victory Church in Floral Park, N. Y., at 10 a.m. Monday. Burial will be in Holy Rood cemetery, Old Country Road, Westbury, N. Y.

$2.6 Million Offered For Main Chance

LEXINGTON, Ky. UPI — Local veterinarian Dr. Arnold G. Pessin and his partner, Rex C. Ellsworth of California, Thursday offered the University of Kentucky Research Foundation $2.6 million for Main Chance Farm. The offer is $500,000 more than the foundation paid for it.

In renewed efforts to acquire the land for a Thoroughbred sales and training center, the offer, which is good for 10 days, was contained in a letter to UK President Dr. A. D. Kirwin, who also heads the foundation.

The foundation purchased the 720-acre bluegrass horse farm from the estate of Elizabeth Arden Graham in July, 1967 for $2 million.

Pessin hinted last week he might come forth with a bona fide offer for the farm, which was the subject of a $30 million lawsuit and month-long trial in U. S. District Court here earlier this year.

The trial ended Feb. 21 when a federal court jury cleared the foundation, Kenneland Association and the Bank of New York of charges of violating federal antitrust laws in an alleged conspiracy over the sale of the farm.

Cold Can't Mar Marr's Round

GREENSBORO, N.C., April 4. — Dave Marr, without a victory since winning the 1965 PGA championship, played through the cold mist and fog Friday to shoot a five-under-par 66 that gave him the 36-hole lead by two strokes at 134 in the $100,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

A 90-foot birdie putt with the eagle set up by a three wood shot that stopped two inches from the pin helped Marr to wrest the lead from first round pro co-leaders Gordon Jones and Gene Littler.

Jones and Littler each shot 70 for 136 runner-up totals, where they were joined by 69 shooter Rod Finsett.

A score of 143, one over par, qualified 76 players for the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Amateur Dale Morey, who had shared the first day lead, slumped to 73 for a 139 total.

South African Gary Player, expressing confidence that his game has jelled in time for next week's Masters, shot 68 to move into a six-way tie at 137, only three shots from the lead.

Six more men were a stroke back at 138, including PGA champion Julius Boros, George Archer, winner here two years ago and tied for second last spring, and Sam Snead, eight times a Greensboro winner.

Sixteen more were bunched at 139, including recent tour winners in Florida, Bunky Henry and Ray Floyd.

Marr, a dapper, 35-year-old who turned professional in 1953, credited touring pro Jack Burke, his cousin, with correcting his stance here two days before the tournament began to set him on the right track.

Cigarette Makers Are Diversifying

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK—Cigarette manufacturers are diversifying rapidly on the frank assumption that their business futures in tobacco have become somewhat dubious.

No one expects millions of Americans suddenly to kick the smoking habit, but a decline in cigarette smoking started late in 1967 and is continuing and even accelerating a little. So far the drop in consumption is only 1.75 per cent, but appears that consumption is not going to bounce back as it did in 1965 after the surgeon general's initial report on smoking and health.

Philip Morris, Inc., started the diversification trend in 1967 and it now is picking up steam for a variety of reasons. One is the apparent determination of the Federal Communications Commission FCC and Federal Trade Commission FTC to television and radio.

The FCC and FTC have the power to do this unless Congress enacts an extension of a law expiring June 30 forbidding any further restrictions on broadcast cigarette advertising.

While there appears to be sentiment in the House in favor of extending the moratorium, the tobacco industry is up against growing opposition in the Senate. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, has threatened a filibuster to prevent any extension. Moss says there is a growing awareness in Congress of the danger to national health from smoking.

Whether the loss of broadcast advertising—which absorbs around 73 per cent of the $250 million plus the tobacco companies spend yearly on advertising—would cause the decline in smoking to accelerate rapidly is quite a question.

No Affect in Europe

Frank Maxwell of Oppenheimer & Co., one of the few analysts who specializes in tobacco stocks, doesn't think so. He points out that in Britain, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, where broadcast advertising has been halted, this has not affected the sales.

It should be pointed out that broadcast advertising in general never has played the significant role in merchandising in Europe as it does in the United States.

A recent Harris poll indicated 50 per cent of the public favors banning broadcast cigarette advertising and only a little over 40 per cent favors continuing it.

Commerce Not Art In The Series

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD UPI—Ask the star of a television series if he is making time and making money instead of losing his craft in less financially rewarding endeavors such as little theater.

I asked Peter Graves of "Mission Impossible" the other day and his candor was refreshing. Most series stars blurt that their shows are "challenging."

Certain Amount of Truth

Graves grinned broadly and said: "There's a certain amount of truth in what one of our directors said on the set this session. He told me, 'When I first started in this business I thought it was an art. It took me several years to discover I was in commerce.'

"The fact is that being in a series is more than making money and making time. The whole idea is to make something popular—which doesn't necessarily mean it's good. But often the two go together. I think popularity and quality are combined on our show."

Graves, brother of Jim Arness who stars in "Gunsmoke" is tall and relaxed. His silver and blond hair is neatly combed and his voice is low and easy.

SOCIAL SECURITY Questions and Answers

Question: The doctor has recommended that my father enter a skilled nursing home after he is discharged from the hospital. I have heard that extended care facilities are requiring Medicare patients to pay a $300 deposit before they are admitted. Should they do this?

Answer: No, Medicare beneficiaries who enter participating extended care facilities within 14 days following hospitalization should not be required to pay a deposit.

He previously starred in "Fury," "Whiplash" and "Court Martial," none of which measured up to his current show.

Naturally, Graves would rather be starring in explosively important motion pictures, as would co-stars Barbara Bain and Martin Landau.

"But great movie scripts don't come along every day," Graves said.

"If you are dedicated to fine things and want to sit on the fence waiting for them, you could wait the rest of your life. The alternative is to keep working and seeking."

"All actors like to work. If you can't play 'Hamlet,' then you do the 'Beverly Hillsbillies' if that's all you're offered."

"From time to time I've done things I'm not proud of. But there are practical considerations like paying the rent and feeding your family. And afterwards you put it behind you."

deposits for covered services before they are admitted.

Medicare pays all covered costs for the first 20 days of a posthospital stay in an extended care facility, and the beneficiary is responsible for $5.50 a day coinsurance payment for the 21st through the 100th day. Some nursing homes have said that a deposit, often amounting to $300 or $400, is to cover the $5.50 a day should the patient stay more than 20 days.

The Social Security Administration believes this practice is unjustified since the nursing homes have every reasonable assurance they will be reimbursed for the costs in furnishing covered services to Medicare patients for the full 100 benefit days. In situations where the nursing home is unable to collect the coinsurance amount, the Social Security Administration reimbursement formula includes a provision for such losses. In accordance with their agreement to participate in Medicare, facilities must not refuse admission to a beneficiary because of his inability to make advance payment of the coinsurance. Also, a participating facility may not evict or threaten to evict a beneficiary because he is unable to pay the coinsurance amount as it becomes due.

Under the agreement, extended care facilities may properly require payment for services not covered by Medicare, such as comfort items requested by the patient. Also, when the beneficiary has used up his 100 days of care under Medicare, the facility may then ask for a deposit toward additional care; but the facility cannot require that this deposit be made while the patient is still receiving Medicare benefits.

Speedy Steve McQueen Advises Slow-Down

By ARMY ARCHERD
Central Press Association Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—"Nowadays we move much too fast and should try to return to the less frantic life this country enjoyed at the beginning of the century. We need to escape from our cities of cement. I believe all of us have the instinct to return to the soil. We've got to slow down."

In this scene from his new movie, a singing Steve McQueen and Mitch Vogel, age 13, enjoy a ride in the '1905 Winton Flyer Steve 'borrowed' from his boss.

Can you believe, Steve McQueen is saying this? True. He was philosophizing to us in the super-modern bus-trailer dressing room parked alongside the stage of his current film, "The Reivers."

It's a "new" Steve McQueen. The rugged actor displays a light comedy touch in the role of a fun-loving hired hand, Boon Hoggenbeck, in the film version of William Faulkner's last novel, a Pulitzer prize-winning comedy.

Seven previous Hollywood films based on Faulkner stories were all dramas. Two of them, coincidentally, "The Long Hot Summer" and "The Sound and the Fury," were written by Irving Ravetch, producer, writer on "The Reivers," and his wife, Harriet Frank, Jr.

Winton Flyer at a breath-taking 20 miles per hour on Mississippi dirt roads.

McQueen treated the Flyer with as much loving care as his own sports cars and stable of motorcycles.

Driving speedy cars and motorcycles is a form of therapy for Steven who reluctantly retired from racing competition after winning honors as one of the five motorcycleists representing the U.S. in an international meet in East Germany in 1963. (He was seriously injured, but continued to race.) He rides his motorcycles these days in the desert at Palm Springs.

DESPITE his current "slow-down," McQueen plans to return to the world of speed again as he prepares two films for his motion picture company, Solar Productions. One is "LeMans," based on the famous international race in France, and the other, "Yucatan," in Mexico, will include a motorcycle race in the desert, rivaling his "Great Escape" escapade on wheels.

Maybe that's why he's "practicing" at Palm Springs? McQueen likes the role of producer, though he refuses to take any official screen credit on any

New Between-Lakes Campground Located Near Paris Landing

A new family campground will open July 1 in the southwestern corner of Land Between the Lakes, near Scott Fitzhugh Bridge, Tennessee Valley Authority has announced.

TVA said its new Piney campground will be on the Kentucky Lake shoreline in Stewart County, near the former site of Fort Henry, a Civil War embattlement.

Addition of the third major family campground will enable LBL to handle still more visitors this year. TVA said its big outdoor recreation area was host to more than a million visitors in 1968.

Piney will have 100 tent and trailer sites with electricity and an additional 200 units are planned for future development. Two existing campgrounds offer more than 500 campsites. Hillman Ferry Campground will open April 1 near Rushing Creek on May 1. All three campgrounds have modern central service buildings, boat launching ramps, playgrounds, cooking grills, picnic tables, and swimming beaches. Camping is on a first-come-first-served basis. Campsites within the developed campgrounds are $1 per night, with 25 cents additional for electrical outlets, and 25 cents additional for trailers with holding tanks. There is a two-week maximum occupancy in the campgrounds.

Turkey Hunters Converge On The LBL This Weekend

Turkey hunters will converge on Land Between the Lakes this week for the first of three weekend hunts for wild turkey gobblers. The hunts are scheduled for April 4 and 5, 11 and 12, and 18 and 19. The area open to turkey hunting is the Government-owned land north of U. S. Highway 68 to Barkley Canal except as restricted by signs, as is the Conservation Education Center. Weapons allowed are shotguns (including muzzleloaders) and longbows. Shotguns must not be larger than 12 gauge nor smaller than 20 gauge, and only No. 2 shot or smaller is permissible. Hunting hours are daylight to 10 a.m. (CST). Bag limit is one gobbler with visible beard per hunter. Hunters must check in and out daily. The checking stations will be open at 4 a.m. (CST) and will be located near the intersection of The Trace (Kentucky Highway 453) and U. S. Highway 68 and on The Trace near the former site of Twin Lakes. Land Between the Lakes hunting permits may be obtained by presenting your Kentucky hunting license at the checking stations or at the information office in Golden Pond.

The camping season gets under way in Land Between the Lakes this week with the opening of Hillman Ferry Campground on April 1. Hillman Ferry is located on the Pisgah Bay inlet of Kentucky Lake four miles south of Barkley Canal. Rushing Creek Campground, just across the Kentucky-Tennessee line, will open May 1.

Fishing activity has been slow in Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley the past week due to cool and windy weather. Much of the activity the past few days has been below the two dams where white bass and crappie are hitting white and yellow jigs and minnows. Crappie fishermen who brave the weather are picking up good catches in Kentucky Lake on minnows at 10 to 15 feet along the main channels of the creeks, rivers, and bays. At Lake Barkley crappie are being taken on small minnows at 3 to 5 feet in the stick-ups, submerged fence rows, and treetops. Scattered catches of large-mouth bass have been reported from both lakes by jigging large minnows or purple plastic worms and by casting lead-headed single and dual spinners with pork frog or strip. The water temperature is 48 to 50 degrees, and dingy to clear in both lakes.

The big Kentucky Lake crappie run is just around the corner, and a few days of warm weather should produce some of the best fishing of the year. Kentucky Lake is scheduled to start rising Tuesday, April 1, and will rise gradually, reaching normal summer pool sometime around May 1.

MSU Biological Station Will Study Effects Of Waste

Murray State University's Biological Station has been asked by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to study ways of testing the possible effects of wastes from "a concentrated industrial complex on a large river."

A federal grant of $6,750.00 has been received by the state, according to Minor Clark, Kentucky commissioner of Fish and Wildlife Resources, but state funds will bring the total to $9,000.00.

Dr. Hunter Hancock, director of the MSU Biological Station, said the seven-phase study will be completed by June 30. It will be made on the 2.4 mile section of the Tennessee River between its juncture with the Ohio River and Kentucky Dam.

The U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries specified that the study deal with:

1. Distribution of fishes in relation to discharged wastes.
2. Effects of wastes on fishes.
3. Water qualities.
4. Benthos (plant and animal life) distribution on the river bottom.
5. Analysis of benthic organisms.
6. Chemical composition of bottom muds.
7. Analysis of fish tissue.

Assisting Dr. Hancock will be Dr. Evelyn Cole of the biology department and Dr. Marshall Gordon and Dr. B. E. McLellan, both of the chemistry department.

Two biology majors will also assist in the survey. They are William McLenore, Murray, a graduate student, and Paul Mathai, Murray, a senior.

Fishermen, and hunters are the twenty lake access areas located along the shorelines of Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake. These areas have boat launching ramps, picnic tables, cooking grills, and chemical toilets. Although designed primarily for day-use activities, they provide ideal campsites for the outdoorsman who is looking for something a little more primitive than the developed campgrounds. Five of the lake access areas have drinking water. There are no fees for using these facilities.

COON HUNTERS — Stog Wilson, Billy Porres and Davy Province are shown with Old Charlie and the four coons they bagged during the regular hunting season in Tennessee. Going on the hunt also were Bob Washer, Pigeon Wind, Tom White, Johnny Pitts and Tom Scruggs. Other dogs used were Cuff, Tommy, Della and Old Queen. The group hunted from Palmersville levee to the Islands Fields in Tennessee. The five dogs freed 45 coons under the leadership of Old Charlie. This dog is owned by Stog Wilson and he says "anybody's time is well spent when a hunting trip is made with this old coon hound."

Miniature Electronic Billboard Seen Aid to Business, Communications, Etc.

By Central Press
TOLEDO, Ohio—Miniature electronic billboards connected to computers and automatic typewriters may soon spell out the reasons Why Johnny Can Read.

The same little billboards also may help Dad speed up his airline reservations, keep Mom's change straight at the supermarket, and keep the family stockbroker in closer touch with the stock exchange.

THOUSANDS of tiny lights in this electronic gem are part of a new electronic glass display panel on which the judicious selection of electric currents can convert an apparently clear piece of glass into a miniature billboard.

"When this panel is excited electronically, tiny glowing cells form letters, numbers and patterns like the glowing bulbs of a billboard, picturing a message as it is received from a computer," according to Raymond H. Mulford, board chairman of Owens-Illinois, Inc., which developed this unit. "The message can be projected or it can be printed on paper."

THE COMPUTER signals are all that are needed to activate the billboard... the same signals which command computer-driven typewriters to type paychecks and computer-driven card sorters. The key difference now is that computers can write with lights on the "Digivue" brand display panels.

In a "Digivue" display of numbers or letters, a central computer can turn on just those miniature lights that form letters and numbers, in the same manner that cheering sections at a football game spell out "Army" or "Navy."

Experts predict that the new display panels will be used by stockbrokers on their desks to

This youngster proudly points to the correct answer to a historical question asked on a miniature electronic signboard.

The "Digivue" panel will display current market information; by airlines for displaying reservations, flight arrivals, departures and gate assignments; and on cash registers to show purchasers the cost of each item and the total.

An early use, however, may be in computer-aided teaching. In a system developed by the University of Illinois called "Plato," which stands for "Programmed Logic for Automatic Teaching Operations," in a student station including "Digivue" panels would be connected to a large central computer. Each panel will have an associated electric keyboard for the student to communicate with the computer about information that appears on his individual "Digivue" display panel.

FOUR "Plato" demonstration centers, with a total of 50 student positions in an earlier generation of electronics, are completed at Parkland Junior College, Washington Elementary

Locomotive Still Puffs In Europe

By RICHARD M. SUDHALTER

BELGRADE UPI—For romantic-minded Westerners, the sight of a black steam locomotive puffing across a Yugoslav landscape can be an unforgettable adventure in nostalgia.

For economy-minded Yugoslav railway officials, it is just a headache.

"If the consequences of the balance sheets were to be rigorously drawn," the economic journal Ekonomika Politika announced solemnly this week, "Then... bankruptcy proceedings would already have been opened for all our railway transport enterprises."

Yugoslav rail fares are a bargain and among the cheapest in Europe. A 95-mile train trip for one third what it does in neighboring Italy, one fifth as much as in Britain, and one sixth as much as in Austria.

Yugoslav railways are plagued by outmoded cars - more than 50 per cent of them more than 20 years old - in which such facilities as heating and ventilation break down as often as they work.

Most of these cars cannot stand speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour, making them unfit for international transport.

Aid has not been in short supply. The International Bank for Development and Reconstruction contributed a $70 million loan for modernization. Various other foreign agencies also have granted generous credit terms and capital import duties on railway equipment have been lowered from 25 per cent to 10.

Still the ailment persists. A consultative meeting of Yugoslav railwaymen last year in Ljubljana prescribed what seems so far to be the one effective treatment - greater commercialization of business.

In effect, this means extension of the policy of "self-management" - decentralization of control of public agencies - to include the state-owned, state-run railroads.

Friendly Intrusion Costly to Sitter

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was babysitting last Saturday night when a girl I knew from school came to the door. I opened it to let her in and a whole gang of kids (boys and girls) forced their way into the house. It took me quite a while to get them out, but unfortunately they were in long enough for one of the kids to steal a coin collection valued at $600.

The people I sat for are not holding me responsible, but I hope to get the money to pay them back some day.

The police questioned me, and naturally I had to give them the names of the kids I gave names, and they say they are going to make trouble for me.

Abby, can you help me? I am considering running away.

DEAR SCARED: Don't "run" anywhere. Your biggest mistake was in opening the door in the first place. The girl who appeared "alone" and made it possible for the "gang" to gain entrance should be reprimanded. And I hope this is a lesson to ALL sitters. NEVER open the door to ANYONE.

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy with a crazy problem. I have a pen pal overseas. I asked for a girl, hoping that maybe we'd like each other and she could be my "girl friend," but I got a boy by mistake. Just for the fun of it I wrote to him saying I was a girl. I sent him a picture of a very pretty girl I know and now this pen pal is coming over for a vacation this summer.

He keeps writing me these love letters and now I am on the spot. What should I do? GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

DEAR GUILTY: Tell him the truth. And tell the girl whose picture you sent the whole story. Your pen pal "fell in love" with YOUR letters and HER picture. Perhaps the girl will want to correspond with him and give him a chance to "fall in love" with HER letters. It's a cinch he's not going to fall in love with YOUR picture.

DEAR ABBY: I recently happened upon a column of yours, which, in part dealt with a second wife complaining that her husband's ex-wife had their child call and ask where the support check was if the check was one day late.

I ask you, what about the truck driver or salesman who isn't in town on payday? Or the person who happens to be confined to his bed, sick, or in the hospital?

Your answer, "Make sure the check is there on time every month" was a classic example of the narrow-minded attitude of too many who think of the divorced woman with children as "that poor woman."

My foot, lady! This is from one former husband who divorced his wife because she liked to play musical beds, and even in such a case I couldn't get custody of the children, so I pay up.

I pay support money every week, and my attorney advised me that no "ex" has any complaint until at least one month has passed without receiving the check. Your obvious solution shows you to be ill-informed. In short, it smells.

"BAD GUY" IN IOWA

DEAR BAD GUY: The writer didn't say how "late" the check was. Maybe it was "one day later" than the 30 days grace allowed by law. I don't go along with putting a child up to calling folks to bug them, but when one knows he has a business to meet it - on time. Illness? Out of town? That could happen once in a while. But not often.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE CHECKER IN A HESSTON, KAS. SUPERMART: No, you don't have to put up with a boss who has too many hands. Ring up "NO SALE" on the register and be sure he sees it. If he doesn't improve his conduct, tell HIS boss.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Trouble: Python In The Plumbing

PARIS (UPI) - Charles Clerin glanced at the toilet in his third-floor apartment and much to his surprise found a python peering back at him.

After a moment of stunned silence the snake disappeared back into the plumbing and Clerin headed downstairs to report the matter to the concierge. On the way he ran into his first floor neighbor, Lucien Peraldi, who reported "I've lost a python."

"I've found it," Clerin replied.

A quick search failed to turn up the snake, but other apartment dwellers in the building decided not to wait around. They called the fire brigade.

A fireman was stationed at every toilet in the building and after a five-hour wait the python showed up in the first-floor toilet. The waiting fireman bravely tagged him out.

Peraldi quickly sent the python off to a veterinarian to get over the experience. "The snake doesn't like people and gets frightened easily," he explained.

OKEMAH, Okla., UPI - Oklahoma County Sheriff Wiley Brewer commented Wednesday "There seemed to be this fellow sitting on the benches throughout the courthouse at different times. We started an investigation on him, but before we could arrest him he arrested us."

The man turned out to be a federal agent investigating Brewer and his deputy sheriff on charges of conspiracy to violate federal liquor laws.

Keynolds & Co. says that fundamentally the "secret peace talks which are no longer secret" are without doubt the source of current optimism in the market. Real peace in Vietnam would be a sound reason for the market to score a gain, the firm adds, but without this peace a continuation of the up and down markets of the past four years is most likely.

Connector Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) - Sales of the connector industry increased to an estimated $350 million in 1968, according to Benjamin Fox, president of Elco Corporation of Willow Grove, Pa., a leading producer of electronic connectors and connector systems.

He said further sales gains for the industry were expected in 1969, and noted that the trend towards higher performance and miniaturization continues in the connector field, reflecting the needs of the electronics industry.
