THANKS MURRAY WOMAN'S CLUB

A news story in yesterday's Ledger and Times indicated that fifty-one children were found to have some type of infection in the recent county-wide kidney screening project conducted by the Murray Woman's Club with the aid of a number of organizations and individuals.

About 2400 children were screened in a project called the first of its kind in the nation.

The purpose of this kidney screening was to uncover several diseases, none of which would be evident until the children were much older. By that time however, these diseases would be either beyond treatment which would result in an early death, or they would be much more difficult to treat successfully.

The Murray Woman's Club is to be congratulated on this project. We may well have fifty-one young people who will grow into manhood or womanhood and expect a normal life span because these diseases were detected early enough to do something about it.

This is the way it is with most diseases. Many, or rather most of them, are curable if discovered early enough. This was the purpose of the kidney screening project, to find kidney diseases before they had an opportunity to develop.

The Murray Woman's Club met with this same sort of success with the county-wide "pap" smear tests for cancer. This project was carried out either two or three different times and each time two or three women were found with cancer which was beginning, but had not had an opportunity to grow large enough to be detected easily. All received treatment and look forward to normal life spans.

We have often pointed out that America is great because of its people and because of its civic clubs. Civic clubs such as the Murray Woman's Club, perform tasks which a mere group of people is quite incapable of accomplishing because of the great leadership, organization and desire to serve.

We congratulate the Murray Woman's Club on this most recent project which will add to the health and well being of children all over the county. Selfless projects of this kind raise the club in the eyes of the average person and give purpose to the existence of this fine organization.

Centennial Scrapbook 1869

25-E "Two archeological expeditions may soon unravel a riddle surrounding one of the world's wonders," says a 1969 announcement from National Geographic Society. One or two riddles have persisted since John Wesley Powell began, in 1869, intensive bottom-level exploration of the most awesome open cavity in the country.

Powell, a native of Mount Morris, New York, was a 27-year-old teacher of natural science when he volunteered in the Union forces, 1861. He was a one-armed major of artillery (the arm was lost in the Battle of Shiloh); 1865, who returned to teaching as a professor of geology at Illinois Normal, and developed a consuming interest in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River. Garcia Lopez de Cardenas, an officer of the Spanish expedition of Coronado, investigated in 1540 the chasms of which Indians spoke with awe. He found it eighteen miles wide and a mile deep at some places in 280 winding miles. (The most spectacular erosion of the immense potentialities of irrigation farming in vast stretches that had been assumed arid desert. Before the Powell surveys, Colorado was believed capable only of producing gold, silver, other metals, furs and cattle. (More here later about the effect of Powell discoveries which left some riddles unopened.)

Pittsburgh Tops St. Louis 6-2 In Fourteen Innings

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

The New York Mets, who've yet to win an opening day game in their tumultuous eight-year history, helped to make sure the National League's latest two expansion clubs didn't suffer the same fate.

The Mets gave Montreal a hearty welcome to the league Tuesday by losing a wild 11-10 contest to the Montreal Expos. San Diego won a 2-1 victory over Houston in its first game.

Since the American League's two expansion clubs, Seattle and Kansas City also won, it was a sweep for the four new clubs who've boosted the total of major league teams to 24.

Seattle gave up a first inning run but then checked the Astros on three hits the final eight innings to beat Don Wilson. Ed Spisio homered in the fifth and Ollie Brown doubled in the sixth for San Diego's two runs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 6-2 in 14 innings, Chicago beat Philadelphia 7-6 in 11 innings and Atlanta clubbed San Francisco 10-2.

In the American League, Boston nipped Baltimore 5-4 in 12 innings, Kansas City edged Minnesota 4-3 in 12 innings, Oakland beat Chicago 5-4, Seattle topped California 4-3 and Detroit edged Cleveland 6-2.

Montreal blasted four pitchers for 12 hits including homers by Jose Laboy, Rusty Staub and reliever Dan McGinnis. Tom Seaver was tagged for four runs in five innings but Cal Koonce took the loss. Former Met Don Shaw got the win. The Expos built up an 11-6 lead before the Mets rallied for four in the sixth.

After Joe Hoerner blanked Pittsburgh for four innings, the Pirates tagged Mel Nelson for two-run singles in the 14th by pinch-hitter Manny Sanguillen and Matty Alou to beat the Cards.

Pinch-hitter Willie Smith smashed Berry Lesh's second pitch for a homer with one on and one out in the 11th to give Chicago its dramatic victory over Philadelphia. Ernie Banks drove in the Cubs' first five with a pair of homers that raised his career total to 476 and moved him past Stan Musial into 10th place on the lifetime list.

Atlanta remained in first place by beating San Francisco for the second straight game as Felix Millan, who hit on the face by a pitched ball earlier in the game, slugged the first grand slam of his career in the sixth.

Kansas Relays Next For MSU Track Team

By JOE TOM ERWIN

The Murray State track team will nurse its injuries this week and prepare for the Kansas Relays, April 18-19, its next competition.

The Racers won two events, the 440 and 880 relays, at the Kansas meet last year. Three members of that sprint relay are back this season, but the missing member, All-America dashman Jim Freeman, has been hard to replace. Leading candidate for the position is sprinter Lee Roy McGinnis, but he has a pulled leg muscle that may keep him out of action for the meet.

Seven other Racers are injured but the week without competition should give most of them time to recover.

Tommy Turner was the only racer to score in last week's University of Kentucky Relays. Turner won the 660 yard dash handily. Coach Bill Cornell entered but five other individuals in the meet.

ROSENTHAL DIES

BOSTON 870 - Simon "Si" Rosenthal, who played for the Boston Red Sox in the 1920s, died at a Veterans Hospital Monday at the age of 85.

The New York Yankees have won 20 World Series championships - a major league record.

Roger Maris is the last New York Yankee to win the American League home run championship, winning the title in 1961.

Boston Nips Orioles 5-4 Detroit Wins With McClain,

By AL DALY
UPI Sports Writer

This might be a new baseball season for some, but as far as Detroit is concerned, it's a replay of 1968: Denny McClain is still winning and making controversial observations, and Al Kaline is still hitting in the clutch.

The Tigers stopped Cleveland 6-2 Tuesday as McClain allowed the Indians just three hits and Kaline lined a tie-breaking two-run homer to pace Detroit's attack.

In referring to the homer, Kaline said, "I think it was more a case of pride than anything else. I want to play every day."

In other action Boston nipped Baltimore in 12 innings, 5-4, Kansas City edged Minnesota 4-3, also in 12 innings. Oakland topped the White Sox 5-2 and Seattle beat California 4-3.

In the National League, Montreal outslugged New York 11-10, Chicago beat Philadelphia 7-6 in 11 innings. Pittsburgh went 14 innings to beat St. Louis 6-2, Atlanta clubbed San Francisco 10-2 and San Diego nipped Houston 2-1.

Larry Brown homered off McClain in the first inning and Zoilo Versalles hit a sacrifice fly to put the Indians ahead briefly.

Norm Cash gave the record opening-day hometown crowd something to cheer about in the third with a two-run double. Kaline slugged his homer in the fifth, and in the seventh scored the last Tiger run by getting the first of three straight Detroit singles, tallying when Don Wert drew a bases-loaded walk. Dalton Jones' one-out sacrifice fly in the 12th inning scored Tony Conigliaro with the winning run as the Red Sox dispatched 36,100 opening day fans in Baltimore.

A bases-loaded pinch-hit single by Joe Keough made Kansas City's return to the big leagues triumphant after a year's absence.

The Royals, losing 3-1, tied the score in the sixth with two unearned runs which were set up by a throwing error by Harmon Killebrew. The game remained deadlocked until the 12th when reliever Joe Grodzki yielded a single to Joe Foy and walked Chuck Harrison and Bob Oliver intentionally. The walks came after a passed ball and a wild pitch had advanced the runners.

Dick Green's homer was all the support John Odum needed as the Oakland hurler retired 13 of the last 14 Chicago hitters he faced.

The home run by Green, in the fifth inning, put the A's ahead 3-2. Two innings later, Danny Cater, Green and Rick Monday each singled and talked Gary Peters threw wild to first on Monday's hit. Dave Duncan scored the final Oakland run with a sacrifice fly.

Mike Hagan's two-run homer was the key hit in a four-run first inning as Seattle made its successful debut in the American League. Hagan's homer scored Tommy Harper who had led off with a double. All the runs in the inning were charged to Angels starter Jim McGlothlin.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK UPI - There was this thing about their hats and how ridiculous they looked.

The Montreal Expos had to happen to it all spring long and after while it began getting on their nerves. They knew they were an expansion product operating in the National League for the first time and they knew they weren't exactly the cream of the crop because if they had been, their original clubs would have let them go in the first place, but...damn it, they didn't think their hats were that funny.

Jim "Mudcat" Grant, who started the first game in the Expos' history Tuesday and was chased early but enjoyed the 11-0 win over the Mets as much as anybody else, explained this thing about the Montreal hats which are red, white and blue in living color and have an ultra modern twist with a red curly sewn on in front.

"The other teams kept looking at our caps and laughing all spring," said the articulate right-hander from Lacombe, Fla.

"Every time we'd go somewhere to play an exhibition game the press would look at us and say 'Here come the fellows with the funny caps' and 'Here come the softball players.' Even the Baltimore Orioles who don't have the most classic caps themselves, let us have it. We don't happen to think the caps are so funny. I think they're great. Look at them! To me they're beautiful. They're our caps."

Racers Will Play MTSU Saturday

By JOE TOM ERWIN

The Murray State baseball team which has rolled to an 8-1 record, will open its Ohio Valley Conference schedule at Middle Tennessee Saturday after playing at the University of Chattanooga Friday.

Middle Tennessee is defending OC champion and figures to be one of the top contenders for the title again this year.

The Racers have a 3-2 record thus far and are 1-0 in the OVC. Their conference win is over Western. A second game with the Hilltoppers was called because of darkness in the second inning.

In their last series, Murray swept three games with Purdue, 11-2, 6-4, and 7-0. Two other games with Purdue, one with St. Louis, and two with North Dakota, scheduled last week, were rained out.

The Racers continued their torrid hitting against Purdue and six of them have batting averages over .300. Catcher Phil Hayden is hitting .500, second baseman Mike Fitzgerald, .488, third baseman Bob Perlicka .407, outfielder Vito Scovio .368, and outfielder Stanley Holman .313.

Fitzgerald is leading the team in RBIs with 8. Scavo and Tim Mappin have 7 each.

Pitchers Dave Gourieux and Wayne Davis both have 2-0 records. No other pitcher has more than one decision.

Cosch John Reagan says he will likely pitch either Davis or Mickey Holland at Chattanooga and Gourieux, Rodney Fryer, or Don Lee in the doubleheader at Middle.

To qualify for a major league batting championship a player must have made 502 or more plate appearances.

MSU Golf Team Is Out Of Action Until April 16

By JOE TOM ERWIN

The Murray State golf team, which finished 11th in the 40 team Cape Coral Invitational tournament last week, will be out of action until April 16, when they play Southern Illinois in a dual match there.

The Racers golfers had a team score of 1230 in the 72-hole Cape Coral Tournament, and Corky Taylor, Murray's best scorer was 25th among 240 for individual medal.

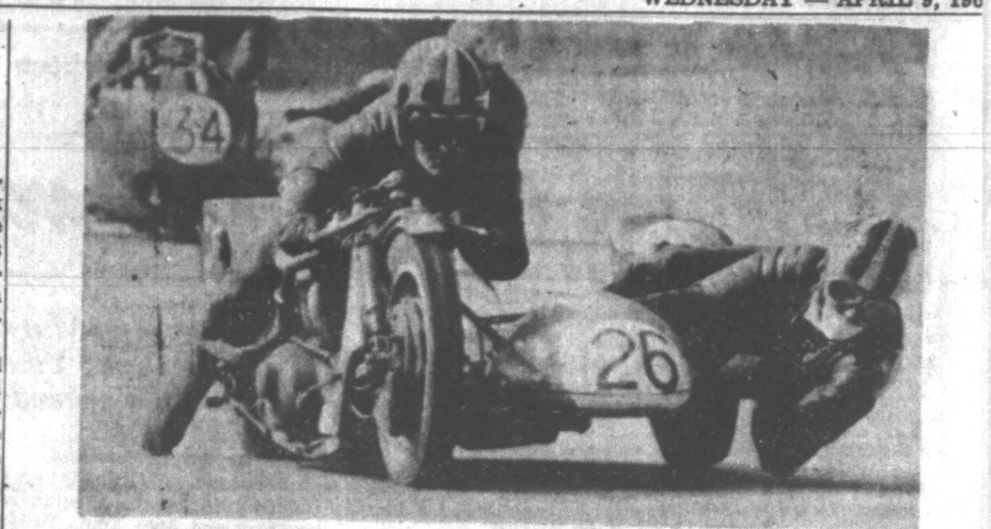

Taylor had rounds of 80, 81, 72, and 74 for a total score of 307. Other Racers scores were: Vernon Marcoviller, 78, 77, 80, 73-309; George Castro, 78, 76, 77, 82-312; Gerry Wilcox, 78, 78, 82, 80-313; Mike Reitz, 76, 82, 76, 82-319; and Chris Pigott, 80, 77, 86, 82-325.

Dear Abby

Teach Sharing by Examples

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am heartick. I have a lovely 13-year-old daughter who I think the world of. Last evening her father and I were going to a very special party, so I asked her if I could carry her new white kid gloves. (She got them for Christmas.) I honestly thought she'd be delighted.

Well, she refused, and I was stunned! I wouldn't even have put them on my hands. I just wanted to carry them.

I don't have to tell you how many nice things mothers do for their daughters, including letting them wear some of their "best," and for my daughter to be so selfish actually made me sick.

What would you have done, Abby? I've considered teaching her a lesson by refusing her the next favor she asks of me, and yet that doesn't seem right. Would a lecture on "sharing and unselfishness" have been in order? PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Don't "punish" her by refusing the next favor she asks of you. Respond in your usual generous manner. She knows she was selfish, and if she is as "lovely" as you say she is, one day she'll admit it and try to make it up to you. Children learn more from example than from lectures. No one knows what triggers the "meanness" in us. We all have our bad days. Maybe this was one of your daughter's. Don't dwell on it.

DEAR ABBY: It all started when I bought a new hat. I rarely wear hats, but this one is very smart, and several of my friends have complimented me on it.

My problem is that my steady doesn't care for hats in general, but he HATES this one with a passion. He gave me a choice. Either him or the hat!

Tonight I am home alone for the second consecutive night because Greg refuses to be seen with me if I wear that hat, and I refuse to give in to him on something so silly.

I think Greg is being unreasonable. The decision is yours, Abby. JUST AS STUBBORN

DEAR JUST: It appears that the decision has already been made, and you made it. But perhaps you're lucky to learn that something so "silly" can come between you and Greg.

If I were you, I'd check the hat. But then I am NOT you, and apparently having your own way is more important to you than having Greg, in which case, I advise you to put on that hat and go hunting for somebody who likes it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a brother who has been married for 26 years. In all that time he and his wife have never invited any of our side of the family to their home. They have accepted invitations to our homes, but have never returned them.

Their whole married life has been spent socializing with my sister-in-law's side of the family. Now their sons are being married. These nephews are strangers to our side of the family, but their mother has included us in all the showers and weddings, which are clearly gift-giving occasions.

I think we are being used. How would you feel? DISGUSTED AUNT

DEAR AUNT: Same as you. But one cannot be "used" unless he permits himself to be. A courteous "decline" to such occasions will get your message across.

DEAR ABBY: My girl friend has a boyfriend. I guess that's okay, but she is only 12 and he is 13. He calls her about every night. He sits with her at the basketball games and they hold hands.

She tells me that sometimes when he comes over to her house they kiss. Also they dance real close to slow music. Should she kiss him? Should they dance like that? How can I straighten out this foolish girl? HER FRIEND (also 12)

DEAR FRIEND: You can try, but I'm afraid it will take more than a 12-year-old to straighten out another 12-year-old. I hope this girl has a good relationship with her mother. She needs one.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal., 90009 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WANT TO WRITE LETTERS? SEND $1 TO ABBY, BOX 6970, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90009, FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Calloway And Murray Students Attend Purchase Area Youth Power Conference Held Last Weekend At Mayfield Inn

By Darrell Crawford

Members of Calloway and Murray High Schools attended a "Purchase Area Youth Power Conference" at the Holiday Inn at Mayfield on Friday and Saturday, April 4-5. All expenses were paid.

Over eighty teenagers registered at the inn between four and six p.m. Friday. This was the first youth power conference in the Purchase Area and everyone was highly enthusiastic. It was a huge success.

The conference was concerned with food and nutrition for youths. The national organization was organized in 1960 and is promoted by over sixty-five food industries and organizations.

The program started with a banquet Friday evening after the students were assigned rooms. Following the dinner Early Perry, chairman of Kentucky Youth Power Conference, Louisville, spoke on "The Purpose of Youth Power."

Maria Peyton of Beilfield High School spoke about her experiences at the National Youth Power Conference at Chicago.

The keynote address was given by J. B. Tuggle, regional supervisor of Convenient Foods of America in Madisonville.

The highlight of the evening was a talk entitled "Youth, Appreciate Your Heritage" by Mrs. Lilya Murphy of Paducah, a native of Latvia, located on the Baltic Sea in Northern Europe. She gave a moving talk on what she went through trying to escape from the Nazis and Communism.

The evening was concluded with dancing to music by "The Peoples Choice" of Murray.

Saturday the speakers were Miss Judy Kelson, first district dairy princess, and Dr. Harry Spazka, president of Murray State University.

A film was shown by Robert Roberts of the IGA Stores, Greenville. Dr. Dennis Fox of the most research staff of the University of Kentucky, spoke on the values of meat, meat products, and its substitutes to the body.

During the afternoon another film, "Where Do We Go From Here" was shown. Bill Thompson then discussed the almost limitless opportunities in the food business. Melaine Hicks, Mrs. Janice Potts, and Miss Pauline Waggoner concluded the day's program with a skit, "Food Puts Pep In People."

All of the teenagers appreciate the opportunity of going to this Youthpower Conference and it was made possible by the donations of many different people in the Purchase Area.

In Calloway County the Bank of Murray, the West Side Home-makers Club, the Peoples Bank of Murray, the Calloway County 4-H Council, the Murray Wholesale Grocery Company, and the Ryan Milk Company all donated toward the $1,200.00 needed to have this conference.

Everyone who attended enjoyed the conference and were enthusiastic when they left. It was a rewarding experience.

Miss Barbie Keel Presides At Meet Of Rainbow Girls

Miss Barbie Keel, worthy advisor, presided at the meeting of Murray Assembly No. 19 Order of the Rainbow for Girls held on Tuesday, April 9, at seven o'clock in the evening at the Masonic Hall.

The minutes were read by the recorder, Miss Betsy Riley, and the regular routine of business was conducted.

Plans were completed for the annual church service on Sunday, April 13, when the entire group, accompanied by their advisors, will attend the service at the First Christian Church.

Members present were Barbie Keel, Patricia Evans, Peuletta Markovich, Irene Futrell, Treas McCord, Marilyn Lanier, Denise Kalberer, Angela Beane, Betsy Riley, Donna Boyd, Linda Showman, Barbara Sled, and Joyce Winchester.

Mrs. Lillian Robertson acted as mother advisor. Mrs. Twila Coleman and George Williams were other adults attending.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 15, at seven p.m. An initiation will be held.

Kathleen Jones Circle Has Meet At Sledd Home

Mrs. Graves Sled opened her home for the meeting of the Kathleen Jones Group of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church of Murray on Monday, April 7, at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

"Prayer" was the subject of the program presented by Mrs. L. L. Dunn and Mrs. E. D. Shipley.

The group chairman, Mrs. Dunn, presided at the business session. During the reading of the prayer calendar listing the names of missionaries whose birthdays were that day, it was noted that Dr. Kathleen Jones, medical missionary in Indonesia, had a birthday on Monday. Dr. Jones is a native of Murray and the group is named in her honor.

Others present were Mrs. Soledad Darnell, Mrs. Myrtle Wall, and Mrs. Robert Jones.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Veterans released from active duty after January 1955 must complete GI Bill education by May 31, 1974, or eight years after discharge, whichever is later.

Miss Twila Adams, senior at Murray State University, presents Miss Sharon Venable, junior, with annual Alpha Sigma Alpha special education award at Murray State University. The award of $50.00 is presented each year to a special education major. Miss Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cody Adams of Farmington Route One and Miss Venable is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Venable of Murray Route One. Both are graduates of Calloway County High School.

Henry Is Kappa Speaker; Group Donates $250 To Pediatric Ward At Hospital

Donald Henry of the Murray Optimist Club was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Kappa Department of the Murray Woman's Club held on Tuesday, April 9, at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

"Honor Law Enforcement" was the theme of the talk by Mr. Henry. He discussed the work of the Optimist Club with the youth of the community in promoting good citizenship and responsibility.

Henry was introduced by Mrs. Donald Tucker.

Mrs. Richard W. Knight, Kappa chairman, presided and the department voted to give $250.00 toward the proposed pediatric ward of the new hospital addition. The department has given $500.00 over the past two years toward the pediatric section of the hospital.

During the business session new officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Mrs. John Bell, teacher at Murray High School, was elected chairman to succeed Mrs. Knight. Mrs. Dan Miller will serve as vice-chairman to succeed Mrs. J. Glenn Rogers.

Re-elected to the positions of secretary and treasurer were Mrs. Dan McKinney and Mrs. Robert J. McCoart respectively. Mrs. Knight expressed appreciation from the state chairman to the members of the department who helped in the Kidney Screening program in the city and county.

It was announced that the canvas of the city for the Arthritis Drive was set for May 9. Names were tabbed for new members and announcement of the state convention in Louisville April 21-24 was made.

A social hour was held with refreshments being served by Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Robert J. McCoart, Mrs. James E. King, and Mrs. Bobby J. Wade.

CORRECT SEATING HELPS IN SCHOOL

Does seating affect the learning rate of children? Yes, it does.

In surveys that have been made in classrooms, it has been learned that the type of seat that school children occupy influences their ability to learn, as well as their general conduct. When seats are well-designed for good posture, children are relaxed, comfortable, and alert. When seats are poorly designed, children tend to be restless and inattentive.

This is not difficult to comprehend when we consider the fact that school children spend 90 percent of their time seated. This exceeds the amount of time spent in a chair by the average adult. Even preschool children are seated a great majority of the time, whether it be in a high chair, on the floor, or in front of a television set.

While proper structural support is important to everyone, correct seat construction is even more important to the child because of his soft-growing bones. Good seating aids in healthy structural growth.

Children should be provided with chairs that fit the needs of their bodies. This means chairs of correct height and size, which allow their feet to rest on the floor with knees at a right angle and the seat not too deep so as to cause pressure behind the knees. The back of the chair should give support to the lower spine to prevent sagging back ward or flattening of the chest and relaxation of the abdominal wall.

The obvious problems in school is the varied sizes of children and the need for costly chairs and desks. But the expenditure is well worth the benefits to health and education.

In the home, parents should seek adjustable furniture for young children to make possible expansion as children grow. Rocking chairs are good because they provide exercise for the legs and stimulate blood circulation.

Correctly constructed chairs don't guarantee that your child will be an "A" student. . . . but they help. If you have any questions about correct posture, contact your doctor of chiropractic, who is a specialist in problems of the back and spine.

THIS "BOWL GAME" played by secretary Carole Morford is a prelude to manned underwater research at ocean depths never before reached by man. The bowl is a 700-pound glass hemisphere whipped up at PPG Industries in Pittsburgh. Two will be joined to form a 56-inch diameter glass bubble hull of a manned underwater research vehicle. The deeper the glass sphere goes, the stronger it becomes, engineers say.

RECORDS

CONCERT POPULAR

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joan Sutherland has now recorded Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment," and a happy choice it was since it adds a mirkful quality to perhaps the most celebrated acrobatic soprano voice of the times. It is a quality which enhances the voice wonderfully, by giving uplift to vibrancy, and there are few sources for such in her bel canto specialty.

The role of "La Fille" suits her perfectly. She sang it in the London Covent Garden revival of the opera, and the other members of the cast are with her in the recording—Luciano Pavarotti and Monica Sinclair in the other principal roles. Her husband, Richard Bonynge, conducted. (London-1273).

More fun is to be had in the music of Bizet's "Carmen" as the young Russian composer, Rodion Shchedrin, "freely" arranged it into a ballet score for his wife, Maya Plisetskaya, premiere ballerina of the Bolshoi Ballet. He did it for strings and 47 percussion instruments, and so "freely" is an understatement.

He gave it a different sound while retaining, though sometimes altered, Bizet's rhythms and melodies. It amounts to a highly danceable re-working of extremely familiar music. The recording is the first of the score. It was made by the Bolshoi Theatre Orchestra under Gennady Rozhdestvensky (Melodiya-Angel-4067).

Another pleasurable Russian record is of Russian folk songs justly yet tenderly sung by the USSR Russian Chorus which is directed by a Moscow conservatory professor, Aleksandr Sveshnikov. It's all soundly academic yet with the flow of seeming spontaneity.

The songs are, of course, quite authentic, even to the traditional nature of their settings. They include such quaint titles as "Ah, What Was the Use," "Montomony Rings the Little Bell," and "Don't Reprove Me, Don't Scold Me." That should give you the idea (Melodiya-Angel-40070).

An outstanding recording of Rachmaninoff's 3rd concerto is a new one, made by Alexis Weissenberg and the Chicago Symphony. Georges Pretrud conducting. Like most youngish pianists, Weissenberg has real enthusiasm for the score, and to that he added respect, a quality not always given to scores so familiar (RCA Victor-3040).

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? But what if everybody in this country were to throw their hands up in despair and say they don't give a hoot. Indeed, there would be no tomorrow. But fortunately, Americans have a way of solving their problems. And that's just what's going to happen in these troubled times. Simply because it's always been an American tradition. Now, how can you, as one little ole citizen in this big, wide country of ours, be of any help? Well, take a minute and think about a U.S. Savings Bond. That's right, a U.S. Savings Bond.

No, it isn't an immediate remedy for all our ills. But it helps. If everybody were to buy just one $25.00 Savings Bond (cost $8.75), your country would be stronger economically to wipe out some of those scars we've been sporting. Of course, everybody would be helping themselves, too. If you were to sign up on a Bond purchase plan where you work or bank, you'd have quite a nice nest egg for yourself one of these days. You'd have a lot more dollars in the kitty for things like college educations, that new home, or a secure retirement. So think about a U.S. Savings Bond today. And then go out and buy one. Tomorrow.

GRANTS STAY—WASHINGTON UPI - Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas Friday granted a stay of execution to Robert Lee Sims, scheduled to die April 18 in Arizona's gas chamber. Sims was sentenced for the 1963 robbery-murder of Glendell M. Soape, an insurance man, near Sahuarita, Ariz.

WILL RUN AGAIN—WASHINGTON UPI - A spokesman for Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., says Ellender, 78, has every intention of running in 1972 for a seventh term. "There is no doubt in my mind the senator plans to run again," the spokesman said. "He is quite active."

Veterans Administration hospitals helped train 35,000 doctors, nurses and other medical personnel during the past fiscal year.

Only 2.8 percent of the more than $7 billion appropriated for veterans in FY 1968 went for administrative expenses, the VA reports.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK UPI - Peace hopes offer the only incentive for opening in the market at present, according to Harris, Upham & Co. The company says that the sharply oversold condition that existed late in February has now been cancelled, the income tax surcharge will be continued, the 7 per cent investment credit will be reduced or eliminated, and the administration and the Federal Reserve board appear determined to check inflation. Investors, therefore, should exercise caution, the firm believes.

The weak part of the antitrust argument concerning the stock market, W. E. Hutton & Co. says, is the huge and growing accumulation of cash in the hands of institutional and private investors. No matter how much deterioration exists in the liquid position of banks and corporations, the firm adds, the liquid position of potential and actual common stock investors is improving rather than declining.

Bache & Co. notes that investors continue to stand on the sidelines, lacking any concrete developments from the Paris peace talks and any significant indication that economic restrictions are becoming effective. What may develop the firm says, is a "trading type of market with short term swings taking the place of a definitive trend."

With interest rates at historically high levels and the market uncertain, convertible bonds may be a particularly suitable investment at this time, Reynolds & Co. says. The bonds offer fixed potential appreciation combined with limited downside risk, the firm points out. The lower price limit is protected by the fact that a bond will usually stabilize in an area where it affords an interest rate competitive with comparably rated fixed income securities, it adds.

GETS RESULTS

THORPE BAY, England UPI - Eleven-year-old Kevin Macey wasn't impressed by the army's weaponry exhibit at the Imperial War Museum and said so in a letter to the War Office. Too old fashioned, he complained. But the War Office was impressed.

They promptly dispatched a guided missile, complete with mobile launcher, 10 tons of supporting equipment and six soldiers to Kevin's front door to show him more modern arms.

CLEARLY UNHAPPY

ST. LOUIS, Mo. UPI - Peter Beayitt, a member of a group dedicated to helping men during and after divorce cases, is unhappy with his own divorce settlement and he made it abundantly clear.

Beayitt, ordered to pay his former wife's attorney for child custody hearing costs, walked into the lawyer's office and dumped 40,000 pennies on the floor.

MOST WANTED

ROSARIO, Argentina UPI - Police said they captured Juan R. Antunes, one of the city's most wanted holdup men, when he enrolled to become a police security guard.

Solution Of Problem Not In Sight

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Window on the World: Mideast Talks: Mideast experts see little hope for early concrete results from the Big Power search for a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict. They expect the talks to go on for weeks and even if a Big Four formula is to be found, its simultaneous acceptance by Arabs and Israelis is considered unlikely. No Arab leader could survive major concessions to the Israelis who in turn are unlikely to accept anything short of powerful safeguards including territorial gains.

Pressure on DeGaulle Eased: President Charles DeGaulle may have to devalue the franc after all, inflation is now beginning to show some signs of leveling off, the strain on the reserves has been slowed to a trickle and French industrialists report that their export orders are higher than ever before.

Wide Open Race: The Philippines opposition Liberal party can't make up its mind on the candidate who will oppose President Ferdinand E. Marcos in next November's elections. Sen. Sergio Osmeña won a close straw poll by a narrow margin in last month's unofficial Liberal convention but Osmeña's rivals refuse to recognize it. As a result, some leaders are advocating a wide open, all-comers affair when the party meets formally in June.

Nationalist Chinese observers on Formosa are predicting that Peking will take an even harder line toward the United States and the Soviet Union after conclusion of the ninth congress of the Chinese Communist party. They say the promotions of Chiang Ching-wei of party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, and Chen Po-ku, chief of the cultural purge on the Communist mainland, indicate the hardliners dominate the party hierarchy. They predict the Red Chinese will attempt to take advantage of the renewed Soviet-Czechoslovak crisis and possibly create more troubles along the long China-Russia border in the near future.

New Test for Mrs. Gandhi: A new test of strength is imminent between India's Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi and her rightwing opposition in the Congress party, in Gujarat state, an openly pro-American and veteran party member, former Railways minister S. K. Patel, is seeking a parliamentary seat in a bye-election. Opposing him is Himat Singh with the strong backing of Mrs. Gandhi. Her opponents charge that Mrs. Gandhi is leading India ever closer to the Communist camp and claim that Soviet money is being used to back Singh.

LONG SIDEBURNS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) - Police are looking for a young man who keeps popping into the men's room of area coin laundry, emerging in the nude and walking away with his clothes under his arm.

Police say no one came out about 20 times. Eyewitnesses described the youth as having long sideburns.

NORTH FORK NEWS

By Mrs. R. D. Key
April 3, 1969

Miss Zipora Morris returned home from the Henry County Hospital on Saturday where she underwent surgery two weeks ago. She is doing fine and sends thanks to all for the nice cards, calls, flowers, other gifts, visits, to all the nurses, Dr. Newman, Dr. Rhea, and Dr. Minor. Special thanks to all the staff on the first and third floor of the hospital for their kindness in making her stay and the ones who stayed with her, more pleasant, and most of all for the prayers for her recovery.

Visitors in to see Miss Morris on Wednesday and Thursday in the hospital were Mrs. Cordia Morris, Mrs. Gary Beecham, Ann Paschall, Linda Kay Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Tardington, Mrs. Vaden, Barren Nance, Mrs. Moness Irvin, Elbert Elkins, and Mike Jenkins.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Key were in Nobles Hospital Saturday to see Dr. Newman.

Dr. Vaden and Mrs. Carlene Paschall visited Mrs. Ella Morris and Zipora Morris on Monday.

Mrs. Ruby Owen visited the R. D. Keys Tuesday night.

Visitors to see Zipora Morris at home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Key, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jenkins and son, Kenny, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gallimore, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon H. Morris and daughter, Mrs. Gaylon Morris, and Mrs. Bertie Jenkins.

Mrs. Polly Paschall remains about the same at the Henry County Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Orr and son visited Mrs. Bertie Jenkins Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wyatt and children from Nashville, Tenn., spent the weekend with the Glynn Orrs in Puryear. Dinner guests on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Glynn M. Orr and son, and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Key.

Mrs. Wattie Taylor of Puryear, Tenn., underwent surgery in the Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., last week. We are glad to report she is doing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Berthal Grooms and family are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Grooms this weekend.

Adolphus Paschall is in General Hospital with the flu and pneumonia. Mrs. Paschall is home with the flu. Several cases around here and in Puryear causing the schools to be closed.

COBB'S CURSE - William D. Cobb, 65, shows in San Francisco's 14-pound cauliflower-size pearl he wants to sell for $3.5 million. Cobb got the pearl from a South Seas chieftain after curing the chief's son of malaria. Cobb kept the gem for 21 years because of a curse on it: that the son of the pearl's owner would die if the gem was sold within 21 years.

Kentucky State Police Trooper David M. Whitehouse, Lebanon, gets congratulations and a plaque from S. O. Reiter, chairman of the Kentucky Petroleum Council, for having been named the "most outstanding" trooper in the state for 1968. A member of the force since 1961, Whitehouse received the award for exemplifying the best traits of a state trooper. The Trooper of the Year program is sponsored by the Council in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Public Safety.

Solution Is Worse Than The Problem

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI - A colleague of mine deposited the following note on my desk:

"A few days ago you mentioned West's Third Law of Dynamic Frustration, which states that 'the solution to any given problem is likely to create a bigger problem than the one it solves.' 'If any additional evidence of the validity of this law is needed, feel free to cite my experiences.' 'About three years ago, after the Public Health Service began releasing warnings on the cigarette hazard, I quit smoking. When I felt the need for a cigarette, I would have a soft drink instead.

Gain Weight

"That solved that problem, but almost immediately I began gaining weight.

"I was then confronted with a series of warnings about the dangers of being overweight. So I switched to diet drinks, which use artificial sweeteners to reduce the caloric content.

"That solved that problem, but now I notice that the Food and Drug Administration has raised a warning about the unrestricted use of cyclamates, the sugar substitute used in diet drinks.

"It has proposed that soft-drink labels list the cyclamate content and advise adults to limit their daily intake to 3,500 milligrams.

"Unfortunately, I am in the habit of drinking more than that. To break that habit, I would have to switch to something else that might be even more potentially harmful.

Only Solution

"So the only solution I can see is to start smoking again."

"I was grateful to my colleague for his advice, and I got to thinking that if new health menaces keep on being discovered we will end up in a situation like this:

Washington - The Public Health Service warned today that living is bad for your health.

It cited a recent study which showed that 98.2 per cent of all the people who developed hay fever last year were alive at the time.

"This proves that living is very definitely a health hazard," a spokesman said.

He said new statistical data also indicate a definite link between living and other types of ailments.

"Anyone who chooses to go on living in the light of this evidence must do so at his own risk," the spokesman said.

State Artist Petite And Meticulous

FRANKFORT - Kentucky has a wildflower artist who is pet and petite, speaks in a soft, breathless little-girl way and meticulously applies watercolor to paper with such purity of color as overall freshness is noticeable. Nellie Kennon Meadows of Clay City is the name of the new artist who is creating much interest with her paintings.

Less than a year ago Mrs. Meadows was still thinking in terms of "some day." Some day she would concentrate only on watercolor painting; some day she would, at her own expense, have her paintings reproduced in prints. She talked this over with her husband, Roscoe Meadows, Powell County businessman, and he agreed to underwrite her efforts... though, as it turned out, he didn't.

At last October's Mountain Parkway Art Show held down in Island, Natural Bridge State Park, Mrs. Meadows exhibited only original watercolor paintings. Her work impressed Kentucky naturalist Neville Shackelford of Bentleyville whose later comment about Mrs. Meadows came to the attention of Fayette County Prints Inc.

The reproductions, numbered and signed are 14 inches, will sell for $12.50 each and only 1,000 prints of each painting will be available.

Released in two, the first prints are Cattail and Thistle. To be released at intervals of six weeks are Spiderwort, Chalcory, Golden Rod, Partridge Pea, Violet and Dandelion. To be available in later issues will be Mountain Laurel, Trumpet Vine, Agave, Sunflower, Gerardia and Sticktight.

An additional 1,000 prints of each painting are being reserved for a book to be published in collaboration with Shackelford.

Criticizes British Narcotic Program

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UPI) - Dr. Henry Brill, international authority on drug and narcotic abuse, says England's drug control program may actually have produced more addicts. Brill said in a speech that before England began allowing physicians to prescribe drugs to addicts, it had only "about 300" illegal users in the entire country. The number has now grown to several thousand, he said.

Brill is chairman of the American Medical Association Committee on Drug Dependence.

Yep, folded. Developed by B. F. ### Crime Causes Extra Police In Capital

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI - President Nixon has proposed that 1,000 additional policemen be hired to help cure crime in the nation's capital.

This may be a good idea as far as the District of Columbia is concerned, but it is causing some alarm in the surrounding suburbs.

Suburbanites fear that if crime becomes impractical in Washington, the holdup men, muggers, looters and purse snatchers will move out to their neighborhoods.

Already officials of a neighboring Maryland community have complained that they are getting a big spillover of crime from Washington.

So here we have another application of West's Third Law of Dynamic Frustration, which starts that "the solution to any problem is likely to create another problem bigger than the one it solves."

Suburbanites, however, are a far-sighted breed. "Plan ahead" is their credo, and they are unlikely to let a problem sneak up behind them.

Just the other day a real estate developed disclosed plans for a new subdivision of $200,000 homes protected by guard houses, an encircling wire mesh fence and electronic sensors hidden in the shrubbery.

A spokesman said the project would provide "maximum security for residents during this crime-ridden era."

This may be the beginning of a late 20th Century adaptation of the medieval walled city concept. But with a reverse twist, in the Middle Ages, people built walls around cities to keep evil-doers out. The modern version may be to build walls around cities to keep evil-doers in.

If all of the suburbs around Washington and other American cities erect barriers, criminals will have no place to go when the police force is strengthened.

I will hazard a prediction, however, that the "fortress suburbia" solution to the crime problem also is subject to West's Third Law of Dynamic Frustration.

Most suburbanites are commuters. If they think the rush hour traffic is bad now, wait until they are converge on the drawbridge across the most. Being a commuter myself, I'm inclined to favor a "fruit basket turn over" or "musical chairs" approach to the problem.

Once the extra cops have chased the criminals into the suburbs, I intend to move into the city. If enough other suburbanites follow this plan, the holdup men will have nobody to hold up except other holdup men.

Glamor Of Hollywood Is Weapon

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD UPI - I was out at Universal Studios early in the evening, and as the combination of dusk and sunset settled over the lot, the old thrill of Hollywood glamor suddenly hit me.

Whatever the big thinkers say, glamor is still the secret weapon of this town, and the ability to maintain the illusion and image of glamor in the terribly real year of 1969 is no mean achievement. But Universal has somehow managed to do it.

Unless you have worked in and around this town for a while, it may be difficult to understand exactly how important glamor is to the substance of the dreams of those who hope to succeed here. The people who forge ahead here could do just as well in steel or farming or mining, but they choose Hollywood-and-glamor is the reason in their heart of hearts.

No Secret

The toughness and ruthlessness of a town like Hollywood are hardly secrets anymore. And only a fool would go around saying that every bit of film turned out by a studio is to be treasured because of the glamorous surroundings in which it was turned out. But I feel it is impossible not to be a little forgiving toward any studio that can surround its production with that very special Hollywood glamor.

You hear an awful lot about Filmtown being a rather dull place nowadays-compared with the past-and there are those who say that Hollywood is dead. And I suppose that is what I was thinking the front gate of Universal, watching all the activity as streams of people drove out, saying goodnight. For Universal has helped put the lie to any notion that Hollywood is dead.

On sight alone, Universal challenges any of the great studios-past or present-for the right to be considered the most spectacular and colorful and glamorous. No studio, of course, can hope to match the fantastic rosters of stars who used to be under contract to the oldtime film organizations-because actors today operate independently. But Universal has done the next best thing in terms of glamor-by bringing the touch of Hollywood magic closer to the average person.

The tours offered by the studio now are widely known, and highly successful. It was a concept cleverly devised, and-like the large amount of film product turned out by Universal for television and movies-was, in its own way, an added step to help amortize the tremendous overhead of the 420-acre studio in the San Fernando Valley.

Standing at the front gate, one gets an immediate idea of the studio's all-inclusive attempt to incorporate the glamor of the new with that of the old. To the left, there is the sleek, awesomely efficient-looking building that houses the chief executive offices. Straight ahead, one sees into the working quarters of the studio itself. And now, just recently, up on the right, on a hilltop, is a new 21-story hotel, the Sheraton-Universal.

TV CAMEOS: The Lennon Sisters

The Girls Hit It Big-And Plan a Walkout

When the four Lennon girls taped their upcoming TV special last August, Janet (at r.), others in order, Dianne, Kathy and Peggy) were seven months pre-gamut-so these "mummu" shifts come in handy.

By MEL HEIMER

COME MAY 6, the Lennon sisters will be starred in their very own ABC-TV hour-long special. Come next September, the Lennon sisters will be starred in their own Friday night series in the prime time of 10 to 11 (EST). Life is a glorious cycle of song, as Dorothy Parker once wrote, and everything is beautiful pie in the sky for the lovely Lennons. Their goal is in sight.

That goal-fatten your seat belts-is to quit.

"EVEN AFTER 12 years with Lawrence Welk, and the subsequent months of guest shots and personal appearances and so on," says blonde Janet Lennon, "show business just isn't in our blood. We don't have performers for our friends and none of us really likes the limelight."

"When the time comes that we can afford to quit, it'll be wonderful. It'll be just like four typists who finally find that they can stop typing to make a living. The four of us will just melt away and become wives and mothers-which is all we really ever wanted, anyway."

The Lennons undoubtedly will continue to sing for their own amusement, as the cliché has it

-but between Janet, Kathy, Peggy and Dianne, there are four happy marriages and nine children already... and they're not about to bring up their kids out of a vaudeville trunk.

"I know I speak for all of us," Janet says, "because we're our own closest friends. None of us is a party-goer and our idea of a wild night on the town is to go out to dinner. We're exactly the same size, dress-wise (although our figures are a bit different) and our personal tastes in life and living are a lot alike."

The retirement goal is about three to four years in the offing. "We left the Welk show after a dozen years," Janet says, "because we thought that striking out on our own, we could become better known and make higher salaries-and be that much closer to settling for the wife-and-mother, P.T.A. bit."

The Lennons began in Venice, Calif.-where Dianne and Janet still live-where their father and three of his brothers once worked the singing Lennons who worked with Freddy Martin and his orchestra and Paul Whiteman. There were 11 little Lennons in all and the four oldest started performing at church musicals. Dianne was dating Lawrence

Welk Jr., who went to the same school that she did, and after he heard them sing, he invited them up to his house one day when "Dad is sick in bed with a cold and can't get away; he's a captive audience."

On his bed of pain and sniffles, Lawrence Sr. heard them; phoned his musical director, had the girls sing over the phone to the latter-and signed them. "We were fortunate," Janet says. "Mr. Welk was very considerate-we're still the best of friends-and scheduled rehearsals around our school hours, our proms, our graduations, etc."

MISS LENNON admits with a grin that she and her sisters, and maybe a lot of their listeners, are squares. "I know it isn't 'in' to be square," she says, "but you know, I really think that the majority of the people, as hip as they may try to be, are square themselves, deep down."

But only three, four more years of career "Listen," Janet says patiently. "Our careers are our families. Singing is just a job." It may be that the four Lennon girls are the smartest show business performers ever to come into your living room.

Metal Industry Makes Changes In Life Of Finns

By HAROLD H. MARTIN

JYVASKYLA, Finland (UPI)—For most of the past century the smell of new hewn wood and new sawn lumber has been as common here as milk and butter but new smells are taking their place with the old.

Since 1837, when the town was founded, the "green gold," as Finland fondly calls its forest, has held economic dominance.

But now metals and machine industries are making inroads. Twenty-five years ago the logs to lumber industry supported most of the town's 8,000 people.

Now there are nearly 60,000 people and Valmet, a state-owned tractor factory, is the largest employer with nearly 4,000 workers.

The wood industry still makes 40 per cent of the area's money but the metals and machinery industry has 30 per cent and furniture and chocolates 25 per cent.

In the near future the metal industry will gain and the gap will be closed in 10 years, a local banker predicted recently.

New Outlook

The arrival of the metal and machinery industries and the development of smaller industries have brought a change in the outlook of the area.

No longer do all roads lead south where the raw material is made into finished products.

Now there are roads leading west, to the Finnish ports and abroad to carry finished products to the world.

Wilhelm Schauman, which dominates the area's wood industry, has expanded its chipboard and plywood branches and has built the largest door factory in Northern Europe.

Other firms have begun making furniture, hockey sticks, toys and other finished wood products for sale abroad.

Between 1964 and 1968 export sales jumped from 1 million marks ($238,000 dollars) to 3.5 million marks ($933,000 dollars).

Little Jealousy

Surprisingly there is little jealousy among the wood people over the progress of metals and machines industry.

Speaking of the wood industry a Schauman spokesman said, "I think it is not our whole future. We must have the chemical industry and the metal industry."

He did not complain about the government's plans to make heavy investment in other industries with money gleaned by an export levy, money that largely came from the wood industry.

"There is not that kind of jealousy. Good investments are always good investments and if it is good for them it is good for the wood men," the spokesman said.

Small industries have also benefited. In 1964 they sold finished products worth only 8.8 million marks (at that time $2.7 million). By 1968 this figure had jumped to 20 million ($4.6 million).

Tourism and fish farming are two small industries gaining in importance.

Chase Bobbitt (above), nephew of former President Lyndon Johnson, is charged in Princeton, N.J., along with companion Gregory Traverton of Denver, Colo., with breaking into a liquor store across the street from the campus. Police say Bobbitt, 21, and Traverton, 22, broke a window of the store and were loading liquor bottles into suitcases.

BOTH PATIENTS DOING JUST FINE—Sharon Vinick, 7, Sunnyvale, Calif., checks the "heart beat" of her most prized possession, a stuffed animal named George, before leaving the hospital at Stanford University where she underwent open heart surgery. She insisted that George go to surgery with her. When she regained consciousness, she discovered that doctors also had "operated" on George—complete with sutures and bandage.

God in the White House—The Faiths of the American Presidents, by Edmund Fuller and David E. Green (Crown $5.95). In drawing up a treaty involving Mediterranean trade with the Moslem state of Tripoli in 1796, President George Washington noted that "the presidents themselves ranged from philosophical deists to rock-bound Calvinists.

God in the White House is more than a book about the presidents' religious beliefs, however. It offers finely drawn vignettes of their characters in which humanistic actions speak louder than pious pronouncements, and it underlines the fact that, while some presidents may have been short on prayer, the White House has yet to be occupied by the religious fanatic or the secret atheist.

The authors offer a religious glossary on the Presidents: 2 Episcopalians, 6 Presbyterians, 5 Unitarians, 2 Dutch Reformed, 2 Methodists, 2 Disciples of Christ (Christian Church), 2 Baptists, 1 Congregationalist, 1 Quaker, 1 Roman Catholic, and 8 unaffiliated, though worshipping in various churches.

From George Washington, an Episcopalian parish vestryman, who steadfastly avoided receiving communion, to the unorthodox, but deep religious spirit of Abraham Lincoln, the book reveals the traditionally American suspicion of pomp and ritual.

Although damned by many of his more pious contemporaries as irreligious, Thomas Jefferson compiled a book on the teachings of Jesus, and in doing so, criticized "Platonists" and "preachers of the gospel" who "have compounded from the heathen mysteries a system beyond the comprehension of man, of which the great reformer of the ethics and deism of the Jews, were he to return to earth, would not recognize one feature."

Lincoln, exasperated by visiting clergymen who told him the Lord had advised them on what actions Lincoln must take, finally told them: "I hope it will not be irreverent for me to say that if it is probable that God would reveal his will to others, on a point so connected to my duty, it might be supposed he would reveal it directly to me."

Warren G. Harding, the small town "booster" who became president, perhaps carried his American religious nonconformity to its heights of business glory when he explained: "American business is not a monster, but an expression of a God-given impulse to create, and the savior and guardian of our happiness, of our homes and of equal opportunity for all in America. We cannot get on all alike or be regarded precisely alike. God Almighty never intended it to be so else He had made us all alike."

God in the White House, with its smooth-flowing narrative, is an excellent reference work. Its authors have avoided the easy temptation toward sardonic comment and have placed each man in the historical context of a country whose evolving religious attitudes have been publicly stern and privately permissive.

Soft Underbelly, by Truman Higgins (Macmillan $6.95). An analysis of what may have been America's most unnecessary campaign of World War II—the invasion of Italy.

Higgins, one of the more respected of American military historians, digs into the Mediterranean campaign in which the British admitted, in Winston Churchill's phrase, may have "led the Americans down the garden path."

Churchill claimed "the garden path was strewn with peaches, nectarines and other treasures" ignored by Britain's partners. For the Americans, led by Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall, yearned to spend their fighting power elsewhere. But it was not a military decision, Politics dictated the campaign.

In early 1942 Britain had little power to engage in major attacks against Adolf Hitler's Europe. Her generals, her politicians and her people remembered the giant daily casualty lists of World War I's trench warfare (60,000 Britons dying in a single day). Britain still was the major warrior in the allied army in Europe but America was growing steadily each GI sent to Europe lessened British political influence that much.

Unable to withstand President Franklin D. Roosevelt's pressure for some major action, the Americans wanted a D-Day landing in France as early as 1942—the British summoned their logic and their wiles and led the allies into the Mediterranean.

The argument that Italy was the soft underbelly of Hitler's Europe did not hold water. It led to no German disaster. It did not help the Normandy landings when they came in 1944. It did not give the allies the political jump into the Balkans, ahead of the Russians.

There were some side benefits, says Higgins. For one, the British used the opportunity to smash a Communist grab for power in Greece in 1945.

The trip up the road to Rome, argues Higgins, was unnecessary. His book makes a good case.

It might be difficult going for those who prefer anecdotes of Willie and Joe and Ike and Winnie up front. But it is short, terse and to the point, as are the briefs of all good prosecutors.

Richard H. Growald (UPI)

The Rich: Are They Different? by G. G. Kirslein (Houghton Mifflin $5.95). No matter what you may think of the very wealthy, there is no denying that they are fascinating. What they do or don't do is always news, and the public is hungry for all the details—Jackie and Aristotle Onassis, for instance.

In many ways the rich are not as free as the not-so-well-off, but they occupy a unique position in being completely free economically.

The purpose of this book is to examine what effect this economic freedom has on human behavior. Since multi-millionaires differ from each other as widely as lesser folk, there is no easy answer.

Many of the wealthy, Kirslein points out, work at their jobs just as hard as anyone else. The difference is that they don't have to, and are merely exercising personal choice.

Styles of wealthy behavior too have changed. Affluent Americans of not so long ago built pretentious town houses, sailed extravagant yachts and employed large staffs on their huge country estates.

Today they shun the vain display, having come to recognize "what the aristocratic rich of other countries had long known — namely, that luxury has more to do with taste than with expenditure" and that physical comfort may be better served by simplicity than by ostentation.

But Kirslein does more than generalize. He has researched his subject well and much of his more interesting findings came from the wealthy themselves in personal interviews.

As to an answer to the question: Are the rich different? Kirslein indicates that they are, but not in an easily defined manner — they simply have enough money—whatever that may mean.

Sinatra: Twentieth Century Romantic, by Arnold Shaw, (Holt, Rinehart and Winston $5.95). Frank Sinatra is an entertainment phenomenon, a towering talent both as a singer and actor. He has left some pretty impressive footprints in the sands of the past 25 years. This is an exhaustive report on what the author describes as the "public man."

"It is not a couch or a key-hole probe, but an analysis of a unique show business career, viewed in the context of the popular arts of our time," he says. "It is neither an etching limned in acid nor a portrait painted in oils, but a black-and-white drawing of a remarkable man and his world."

Shaw follows Sinatra, song by song, movie by movie and marriage by marriage, up the years from the skinny kid who made the bobbysoxers swoon during World War II to today's wealthy, powerful "chairman of the board."

Sinatra's personality does not inspire neutrality. The people who know him tend either to like him a lot or to hate him. Shaw, whose personal contacts with Sinatra do not seem to have been extensive, belongs in the first category.

That is not to say that he tries to conceal the over-reactions sometimes produced by Sinatra's hair-trigger temper and his burning impatience, but he does give his subject the full benefit of any doubt there could possibly be.

Shaw is a pop-music professional, a former publishing-company executive with a couple of composing credits who has written and lectured extensively about jazz and popular music.

His previous works include a novel, "The Money King," and "Belafonte: An Unauthorized Biography."

"SHIRTSLEEVE WARRIORS"

BEHIND THE BATTLE SCENES in South Vietnam are some 2,000 Americans—Agency for International Development field workers—called "Shirtsleeve Warriors" who are striving to make a better life possible for the people there. In the 44 provinces are educators, farmers, nurses, engineers and others teaching the Vietnamese how to do things and better ways to do things they already are doing. Here are some of the AID field workers on the job.

Nurse Lois Nugent of Denver, Colo., gives instruction at the Long Xuyen Provincial Hospital in swampy Mekong Delta.

Chuck Husick of Brooklyn, N.Y., shows a lad in the Long Xuyen trade school in Mekong Delta how to run power saw.

George Cosgrove of California demonstrates first aid on a little boy's cut finger in refugee camp in Phu Yen Province.

Agricultural expert Vaughan Stapleton of Topeka, Kan., gives farmer in Darlac Province, 150 miles northeast of Saigon, pointers on how to grow beans to make them better.

The Family No Help On Income Tax

WASHINGTON UPI - During the taxable year of 1968, it was my good fortune not to have been attended by a single physician.

I have, however, a wife and two children who were afflicted by an assortment of maladies, all minor and mostly of the type that any good quack could handle.

In compiling their medical expenses the other day for purposes of income tax evasion, I was pained to note that the three of them were treated by a total of eight different doctors.

"Holy mustard plaster" I muttered. "I wonder what the total would have been if one of us had been really sick."

Pretty soon, I suppose, I'll have to try to find a doctor who can cure me of muttering. Staggering Variety

It was the staggering variety of medical examination they received that caused me to take typewriter in hand and nostalgically lament the scarcity of general practitioners - the storied medicos of yore who were all-purpose healers - who ran the gamut from handhills to herpes.

Well, as you travel along life's highway you quickly learn that one man's nostalgia is another man's throwback to the dark Ages.

The ink was hardly on my peroration before I received a letter from the wife of an orthopedic surgeon defending the advent and proliferation of medical specialists.

It is the specialist, she vowed, who is largely responsible for medical progress. But for specialists, she averred, patients would still be treated with "chicken broth and hot water bottles."

No Argument A salient point certainly, and one that will draw no argument from me. I'm as thankful as anyone for the development of modern "miracle" drugs, such as Bromo Seltzer and Mentholatum.

The fact remains, however, that a vast number of ailments respond very well to chicken broth and hot water bottles. This, I might add, is not just a layman's opinion.

I mentioned the matter this week to Maynard I. Shapiro, president of the American Academy of General Practice, who was in town to testify at a Senate hearing.

He agreed with me that chicken broth and hot water bottles still have some relevancy in therapeutics.

Dr. Shapiro, by the way, also is concerned over the scarcity of family physicians. In a subsequent dispatch, I shall relate how he hopes to solve the problem.

Meanwhile, take two aspirins and get lots of bed rest.

COMPANY CAR—Alex Lee Carocci, 20, failed to negotiate a curve in the road and ended up in the living room of Blaine Doyle in Belle Vernon, Pa. The Doyles were out when the car came hurtling into the house.
