Seen & Heard Around Murray

A reader sends us a part of the New York Times of Sunday, November 30 which carried the following story.

Dog Jumps On Accelerator
And Car Hits A Restaurant

MURRAY, Ky. (AP)—H. B. Bailey stopped his automobile in front of a restaurant with King, his collie, in the front seat. Mr. Bailey got out to buy a newspaper from a machine outside the restaurant. He apparently left his motor running and his shift in the drive position.

King leaped onto the floor of the car and struck the accelerator. The car crashed into the restaurant's front wall and broke a plate-glass window. The patrons of the restaurant escaped with only a good scare.

We reckon that a dog driving a car is news even in New York.

The dog is not a Collie however. It is a Shetland Sheep dog.

The Rescue Squad is performing a real service for the people of the county and deserves strong support. Contributions to this worthy group are always welcome although they do not charge for their services.

The Rescue Squad still needs money to finish paying for their fire truck so all you folks who think you might call on them for aid might consider some kind of contribution.

Someone said Radar is spelled the same backward as forward, they get you coming or going.

Christmas is three weeks from today, and the shortest day of the year is two weeks from Sunday.

Sometimes the faster we work the behinder we get.

The Christmas Tree thieves are at it again. A number of people grow Christmas trees to sell at this time of year. They plant them, nurture them, trim them, mow around them, fertilize them for several years for this time of year, then some thief moves in and cuts them down. This is frustrating to say the least. This proves the point that property rights represent personal rights.

NIXON TO FIGHT SENATE'S PERSONAL EXEMPTION BOOST

Increase In SS Benefits Should Pass

By MICHAEL L. POSNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may pass a 15 per cent boost in Social Security benefits as a Christmas present for 25 million Americans, with actual delivery in April.

The House Ways and Means Committee paved the way Wednesday for the across-the-board increase. It sent the proposal to the floor of the House, where passage is certain next week.

The Senate may attach the 15 per cent increase to the tax reform bill it is now considering, said Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio.

President Nixon has proposed a 10 per cent general increase in Social Security benefits effective in March, a cost of living adjustment for future increases, and higher taxes to pay for the boost.

The increase for retired workers and their wives, disabled people, widows and children would be effective Jan. 1. Actual increase would not be until April, when the March checks are sent.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said a supplemental check would go to beneficiaries for January and February benefits. The delay would be caused by computers, which must be reprogrammed.

The present minimum payment is $55. The new minimum benefit would be $63.25. The average benefit of $100 for a retired worker would go to $115. Average checks to aged couples would go from $168 to $193.20; aged widows from $87 to $100.05; disabled workers from $112 to $128.80; and widows with two children from $255 to $382.50.

Another boost in benefits could be voted by Congress next year. Mills said that the whole question of increases will be "wide open." He has talked of a 5 per cent boost July 1. The committee plans to consider higher Social Security taxes also. No taxes were included in the committee action Tuesday. The $4.2 billion in new benefits over a 12-month period would come out of the surplus in the Social Security trust fund.

Chances For Killing Bill Look Good

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration thinks it can convince a House-Senate committee to kill a boost in the income tax personal exemption to $800 — a tax cut its sponsor said would help "the man with a big mortgage on a little house filled with children."

Its chances of doing so look good. Most of the senators who will represent the Senate in the conference committee voted Wednesday against the proposal of Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., to boost the $600 exemption to $700 next year and to $800 in 1971.

The tax reform bill passed by the House last summer did not change the exemption but made an equivalent $9 billion worth of tax cuts chiefly through cuts in tax rates and in a raise in the maximum standard deduction of $1,000 to $2,000. The deduction is used by taxpayers who do not itemize their expenses.

The conference committee will have to work out a compromise bill from the competing approaches taken by the Senate and the House. The committee would be convened probably in January — after the Senate passes its version of a tax reform bill.

Gore, who probably will be a member of the conference committee, described his approach as one which benefits "the man with a big mortgage on a little house filled with children."

Gore's plan was adopted with the support of 48 Democrats and 10 Republicans against the 5 Democrats and 32 Republicans who opposed it.

FIXED INCOME CITIZENS ARE HURT

We received a letter in yesterday's mail from an elderly reader who asked that her letter not be printed, but that we comment on the substance of what she had to say.

This reader's principal point is that there are many people who have saved over their entire lives so that they could live the remainder of their years in comparative comfort. They looked ahead to the day when they would no longer work.

The position they now find themselves in is that inflation has cut their buying power to a minimum and the constantly rising tax structure has caused them to pay out in taxes what they had planned to spend for themselves on necessities and possibly a few luxuries.

She has a good point. She suggests that some consideration be given to persons in this predicament.

What this reader has written, is all too true. A slight increase in the garbage collection charge, a school tax increase, an increase in the cost of the necessities of life, an increase in the cost of some of the small luxuries of life, means that many fixed income people find themselves in financial straits which become almost intolerable.

We are not thinking so much of people who have not worked toward preparing for their later years, but of the people who recognized early that they must prepare for the time when they could no longer work.

This particular reader now lives on her Social Security check. This represents her entire income. As prices and taxes rise, she must cut down on her living expenses. The only way this may be done is to do without the luxuries first, then start reducing the necessities.

The great fanfare that accompanied the beginning of Social Security "so that a person could retire in his old age in dignity and comfort" has been proved to be so much hogwash. This, in the face of the fact that Social Security has risen to nearly five per cent and includes the total incomes of most working people as a ceiling.

We just do not know the solution to this widespread dilemma.

It has been suggested that certain low income people be given tax breaks, and in the case of welfare recipients many already receive surplus food and subsidies of one kind or another.

The latter move is of help to those on welfare, of course, but the citizens who have worked all their lives and depended on themselves alone have no recourse at the present.

This category of our citizens, those on fixed incomes which are barely above a minimum subsistence level, should get some attention from some source.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

DETECTING DISORDERS EARLY

Detecting emotional and mental disorders in their very early stages—and preventing their further development—can be a most important part of a good school health program.

Training school personnel to this end is therefore the subject of support by the Division of Manpower Training Programs of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Promising among examples of new endeavors thus aided is a recently launched program by the Rochester, N.Y. public schools and the University of Rochester. An earlier pilot project showed that encouraging results could be obtained.

Not only will school professional personnel be trained to work in the new program, but also housewives, inner-city residents, high school dropouts, and retired people.

Then a mental illness prevention program will be developed, patterned initially after the pilot project, and set in motion in about 12 Rochester elementary schools.

The program which the newly trained workers will develop will include early personality evaluation of first grade children. This will be based both on testing and on teacher observation.

There will also be social work interviews with mothers of school children. These will be designed to assess the climate for learning and growing provided by the family—and also to introduce the school as a helping factor.

Then, it is expected, the program will detect and spot those who give evidence of existing or beginning emotional problems.

For these children, the followup to help them includes after-school day-care activities, psychiatric consultations as needed, teacher-parent meetings, and counseling of the child's teachers, parents, and others.

The pilot project showed that children with early emotional problems who were handled in this way were doing significantly better in school several years later than students whose problems were detected, but who did not receive this kind of special handling.

ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, Dec. 4, the 338th day of 1969 with 27 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1918, President Woodrow Wilson called for France to attend the peace conference at Versailles.

In 1942, President Franklin Roosevelt ordered the liquidation of the Works Progress Administration, created in 1935 to provide work for the unemployed.

In 1946, the United Mine Workers of America was fined $3.5 million for refusing to call off a 17-day strike.

In 1965, America's Gemini 7 spaceship was hurled into orbit on a successful 14-day voyage around the earth. On Dec. 15, Gemini 7 and Gemini 6 made their historic rendezvous in space and orbited the earth only yards apart.

A thought for the day: President George Washington said, "There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon favors from nation to nation."

The problems of interracial dating

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When young people date one of a different race [and I mean "color"] they tend to develop stronger relationships because they are defensive about the raised eyebrows and stares that follow them in public.

A child will say to his parents, "If I marry one of another race, it's MY life and MY business!"

This is not quite true, because the parents will have to bear the stares and raised eyebrows with him.

And if their "great love" miraculously survives the rejection they are sure to meet on both sides, their children will have to pay the price of never fully belonging to one race or the other.

Don't we have the right to speak for our unborn grandchildren who cannot as yet speak for themselves?

I am sure that if the truth were told, most Oriental and Negro parents are as much opposed to these mixed marriages as we Caucasian parents. And where do the "white" kids get the supreme arrogance to think that other races have less pride and are better off diluted by Caucasian blood?

What is wrong with evaluating an individual for his own worth, but not accepting interracial marriage as the answer? ACCUSED OF PREJUDICE

DEAR ACCUSED: Witness the unconventional appearance adopted by so many of our young people today, and it is obvious that they aren't as disturbed by raised eyebrows and stares as their parents.

I, too, believe that most Oriental and Negro parents would prefer that their children marry within their own races. I also think that many of our fine, liberal young whites go in for interracial marriage in a conscious effort to give more than lip service to the lofty ideals of "equality and brotherhood." But many are motivated by the unconscious desire to have that which has been forbidden by their parents. And parents who discourage such marriages are unfairly labeled "bigots."

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in the service and recently went overseas. Before he left he always took me to shop at the Community P. X. which was a big saving.

Now that he is gone, a friend of mine is all the time offering to drive me to the P. X. so I can do my shopping there. This is a big help as I have two small children and no car. Now I know why she is so anxious to drive me. She gives me her "list" and asks me to buy at the P. X. for her, too. I really didn't want to, but I didn't know how to refuse her without getting her mad at me, so I did her shopping for her a few times and she paid me back. Finally, I started feeling guilty and told her that I couldn't shop for her at the P. X. anymore. I said if I got caught they could take my card away, and even fine me. She laughed and said, "Oh, don't be silly! They could never catch you!"

Abby, what can I do? Buying at the P. X. is a privilege my husband has earned. [Hers has not.] But how can I do my shopping there and still get out of doing hers?

TRIOUBLED

DEAR TRIOUBLED: Tell her that you will not shop for her at the P. X. anymore because it's dishonest! Find other transportation there, and if you lose the friendship of this chiseling friend, you haven't lost much.

DEAR ABBY: We have a Tuesday afternoon bridge club, and the same women have been playing together for a number of years. I win my share, but this last year I found that I had been winning less and less. I just happened to check over the scores and I discovered that one of the girls has been padding her score, like putting a "one" in front of a "200" when she added the scores for the day's game.

I am just sick to think that she would do such a thing. What is the best way to solve this problem without embarrassing her? NO NAME OR TOWN PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Tell her privately. Of course she'll be "embarrassed," but the embarrassment will be minimized, which is more consideration than she deserves.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Shawls Appear In Many Of The Designs For The Spring Collection Showings

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some American designers apparently had air conditioners in mind when they put together spring collections.

The season, normally warm, hardly seems shawl-wearing time. However in many collections being shown fashion scribes in New York there were gobs of shawls. Some, in the American designer showings, were shown over long-sleeved, high necked dresses.

Among such outfits bound to be appreciated by a woman in a room made nearly frigid by an air conditioner was a mini-skirted costume in the Oscar de la Renta collection.

Except for the short skirt this could have been a Victorian dress. Long sleeves were puffed at the shoulder, high neckline was ultra modest, shawl was fringed. Adding to the old-fashioned touches were ruffles around neckline and hemline.

Women Look Like Women
Apparently more than air-conditioners were to be credited in this swing to the covered look.

The clothes that in fashion lingo "make women look like women" apparently add up to a backlash at unisex togs, and especially the pants suits which permeated many collections last time around.

Highlights of other designer collections at the week-long fashion event:

—Cardinal's spring parade began with trim little cardigan suits and dresses in geometric floral prints on white imported cotton, coupled with deep color crepeback satin blouses. Next came cotton coatdresses with "popcorn pockets" all the way to the hemline and trimmed with white leather buttons and braided belts. Magnolia side-wraps followed, iced with wide, notched white collars and rolled cuffs.

Shows Feminine Line
—Cell Chapman showed a soft, entirely feminine line. There were easy skirts and a choice of silhouettes from the popular skimmer to the newer defined and belted waistline.

—David Kidd, designing for Marquise, came up with outstanding dress and jacket costumes, and in costumes featuring textured or patterned coats over supersoft silk dresses. The jackets were mostly short, with smallness emphasized by a high contrasting belt, and had an interesting design-on-design created by the use of four pockets placed to give added interest.

—Leo Narducci called his collection the "no season" collection, eliminating the word spring. It was full of clothes designed for all seasons.

Sample: A dinner suit consisting of a wrapped kimono type cardigan with loose, floppy trousers. Another any season ensemble for evening included a tri-leveled jacket, mid-calf tank dress, and trousers.

The Theta Department of the First United Methodist Church WSCS will meet at the church at seven p.m.

The Cordelia Erwin Circle of the South Pleasant Grove United Methodist Church will meet at the church at seven p.m.

The New Hope Homemakers Club will have a dinner at the Community Center at six p.m.

The Theta Department of the First United Methodist Church WSCS will have an open meeting at the club house at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Olga Freeman as guest speaker. Hostesses will be Mesdames Roy Starks, Edward Shroat, William Pinkston, and George Ligon. Members are to bring gifts for Western State Hospital.

The Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club will have its Christmas party for their children. Hostesses are Mesdames Allen Russell, Clegg Austin, Donald Henry, Dolores Warner, Buddy Valentine, James Claypool, and Robert V. Johnson.

Tuesday, December 9
Kappa Omicron Phi, national home economics honor society, MSU, will have a Christmas bazaar from one to five p.m. in the lobby of the Applied Science building.

Lightweight fabrics need a lightweight button. Heavy fabrics can support heavier buttons. Choose a button color to accent a color from the fabric design.

Tuition Strain

United Pro

With the higher education the gap between the universities and the schools is widening rapidly. As the percentage of college students who are from the private sector each year shrinks.

What does this mean? Dr. president of the University of Wisconsin, who is convinced that there will be a monopoly on the method of financing higher education.

He believes that the financial liberalization will fall financially on the shoulders of the university system.

Tuition Gap Is Putting A Strain On Private Colleges

United Press International

With the cost of providing higher education skyrocketing, the gap between the tuition charged at state financed universities and privately financed schools has widened rapidly. As a result, the percentage of the nation's college students enrolled at private colleges has declined each year since 1964.

What does that mean ultimately? Dr. Miller Upton, president of Beloit College, is convinced that in 10 to 20 years there will be a government monopoly on higher education in every state unless a different method of financing is adopted. He believes the privately financed liberal arts colleges will fail financially and, rather than close their doors, will be absorbed by state college and university systems. The universities of Pittsburgh, Houston and Buffalo already have gone that route.

High Cost

In Wisconsin, where Beloit is located, the state-supported University of Wisconsin charges tuition and fees of about $450 a year. The state's privately financed colleges must charge about $2,000 to $2,200 to meet their costs, Upton said.

"You have to have a remarkably differentiated product to get people to pay the differential," he said.

The Beloit president believes that the privately financed and controlled colleges should be saved to preserve diversity and freedom of choice of education.

Today's Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened lower Thursday in moderate turnover. With the Dow Jones Industrial average now under the 800 line, long regarded as a major support area, analysts wondered whether the market can muster enough support for a breakthrough on the upside. They noted that the news background has been decidedly bearish, but they also said a technical rebound was overdue. Shortly after the opening, the UPI marketwide indicator showed a loss of 0.46 per cent on 323 issues traded. There were 166 declines and 55 advances. The DJIA, which reflects movement in 30 selected blue chips, was off about a point.

Walter Kilde eased 1/4 to 51, while Dana Corp. lost a full point to 22 1/2. Dynamics Corp. of America was down 1/4 at 10 1/2, Benguet 1/4 to 12 1/2, and Minnesota Mining 1/4 to 11 1/4. Johns-Manville eased 1/4 to 31 1/2, Kennecott Copper 1/4 to 43 1/2, and Sears, Roebuck 1/4 to 65.

In the steel group, U.S. Steel dipped 1/4 to 34 1/2, and Jones & Laughlin 1/4 to 15 1/2. Armco rose 1/4 to 26 1/2. Republic lost 1/2 to 34 1/2.

Among the oils, Standard of Ohio was unchanged at 9 1/4, as was Cities Service at 40 1/4. Gulf gave up 1/4 to 28 1/2. Jersey Standard was steady at 60 1/4.

In the automotive group, Chrysler was unchanged at 35 1/4. Ford picked up 1/4 to 41 1/4. American Motors gained 1/4 to 9 1/2. General Motors eased 1/4 to 69 1/2.

Sperry Rand lost 1/4 to 43 1/2. Litton 1/4 to 48 1/4. Westinghouse and RCA were unchanged at 57 1/2 and 36 1/2, respectively. International Telephone eased 1/2 to 55 1/2. American Telephone was off 1/4 to 50 1/2.

al opportunity—an alternative to the bland homogeneity of the huge state systems in which the undergraduate student all too often is the forgotten man.

Upton says the way to achieve this is through state support of individual students rather than institutions. That way, the subsidized student can select the college or university that best fits his educational objectives, not have his decision be based largely on financial considerations.

Means Test Asked

Further, the Beloit president urges that a means test be applied to the state student subsidies. "Instead of giving money to people who can pay, give it to those who do not have it. When you subsidize everybody equally, as you do by supporting state institutions, you're giving money to millionaires sons as well as those who can't afford college," he said.

Another economy of subsidizing students would be better utilization of resources: such a plan should ease the need for rapid expansion of overpopulated state schools while there are empty seats at privately financed schools.

Upton thinks student subsidies should apply only to tuition, not extending to room and board, and should only cover the costs of instruction. The states still would finance the capital assets of state-supported schools.

Letter To Editor

Dear Mr. Williams:

"Do your own thing," "Do your own thing" . . . that is the cry of our youth today. And justifiably so, in many cases. Thus, our generation gap . . . (or is it a communication gap) gets wider and wider. This is certainly no new "gap" although the "lingo" may be different.

But, I am writing and excited about what may be a new outlook on the communication gap in Calloway County. Eleven students at Murray State University have been concerned about communication. Concerned enough to spend many hours (48+ per student) to talk with every child enrolled in Calloway County Elementary Schools.

These students not only talked with, but listened to each child, and with trained ears to pick up any speech problem that would make any child "different". Each child then was given an individual hearing test to be sure that he heard normally. Any child who failed either or both tests was then re-tested two to three weeks later.

These seniors in speech and hearing therapy are all young enough and yet old enough to be in the "hippie" group. Most of the teachers, principals, bus drivers, lunchroom cooks, secretaries were in the "over thirty crowd". And yet, you know, I actually saw these two different groups communicating. Last night, I knew they had communicated when I read that Calloway County had hired a speech therapist.

We, members of the speech and hearing faculty at MSU, are delighted that our service somehow contributed to the employment of a competent therapist for our county children. But isn't it a shame that the "hippies" and the "yippies" and the striking school teachers make the front page news stories? In Murray, our teachers opened their classroom doors to our students. They opened their hearts to our student's eagerness and concern to help the speech handicapped youngsters in their classrooms.

Communication gap??? Yes, it's there as it has always been, but you know in Murray the future looks good. And because it does, we thank Mr. William Miller, Mrs. Lucille Ross, R.N., every school principal, teacher, employee and child at Almo, Faxon, Hazel, Kirksey, Lynn Grove, and New Concord.

And, we thank the Board of Education for adding the crucial link in Calloway County's communication gap: a qualified speech therapist.

Sincerely yours,

Miss Barbara F. Harrod

Movement Of People From Cities Causes Urban Crisis

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Man's dominance over a world populated by stronger animals began toward the end of the Stone Age, when he invented towns. City building goes on 500 centuries later, but man wonders if he will ever learn to do it right.

The reason there is an "urban crisis" is that the cities, which are necessary to sustain what is called civilization, are becoming increasingly uncomfortable, unsafe and impassable. The city seems to be reverting to the jungle.

Cities did not just happen. Men left their caves to live together closer to water, arable land or good hunting grounds. The cities of today grew where there was some lasting advantage to trade and industry—a good harbor, a deep river, a mineral lode or a junction of highways and railroads.

Ghost Towns
If a city has a good reason to exist, even atomic bombs cannot kill it, as Hiroshima and Nagasaki have shown. If its basic reason for being dies, so does the city, as demonstrated by the crumbled capitals of vanished ancient kingdoms and the ghost towns around exhausted mines.

Today's cities stand at the center of the nation's fantastic complex of wealth-producing enterprise. They have better reason now for existence than ever before.

But the people whose talent, training and money is needed most to give full life to the great centers of commerce, technology and education plainly do not want to live in the cities as they are now. They are leaving the cities to the poor, who have little choice but to stay, and who have neither the political power nor the financial resources to make them better places to live and work.

From all of this grows a classic vicious circle that can end only in paralysis or chaos. So what is to be done? Some say return to the simple and uncrowded country life. Others say abandon the old cities and build new ones. And some say stay and rebuild.

Economic Advantages
It is obvious that the temptation to run away from the cities is strong, but it also is sharply limited by an unwillingness to give up the still potent economic advantages and creature comforts of urban life. So the great bug-out stopped at the suburbs that live off the cities and increasingly share their problems.

New towns, independent, carefully-planned communities, appear to some to be the alternative to trying to remedy the decay of the inner cities and the clutter of their suburbs.

Some new towns may be able to build their own economic life on the growth of new industries and the expansion of older ones. But unless they are to undertake, at a cost almost beyond reckoning, the relocation of mass employment heavy industry and large commercial enterprise, new towns at best can only be satellites of the real cities where the nation's basic business is carried on.

The practical choice remaining is to reclaim the old cities, to eliminate the physical and social blight that traps the poor and drives out the affluent. However halting and painful the present effort to do this now seems, it will have to be the major domestic task of the United States in the 1970's.

It is easier to find solutions for the physical problems of the cities than to deal with the political and social hangups that are hurting them. The slums need to be replaced by decent housing. Cheap and fast mass transit is needed to get cars off the streets. Air and water pollution has to be controlled, parks and playgrounds must be provided. All of this and more is or shortly will be within the capacity of existing technology and resources.

Milko-Tester Ruled Legal In Kentucky

LEXINGTON, KY. — The electronic transistorized Milko-Tester, an apparatus which can determine the fat percentage in milk, cream, and skimmed milk in less than one minute, can now be legally used in Kentucky to obtain the butterfat content for pay purposes in raw, unhomogenized, whole milk, Kentucky becomes the first state to officially recognize the unit as a method of measurement.

The Creamery License Board of the License Section, Division of Regulatory Services at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, approved use of the Milko-Tester. The regulation was then sent to the Kentucky Legislative Research Commission. It automatically obtained legal status thirty days after being filed with the L.R.C.

Major advantages of the testing machine will enable the technician to perform his duties with greater speed — at least 90 samples per hour; better accuracy; increased uniformity, and ease of operation. The University of Kentucky plans to install a second Milko unit in the spring.

The unit eliminates the extensive use of concentrated sulphuric acid, a required ingredient with the Babcock method. The state regulation still requires calibration of the machine with control samples employing the Babcock technique. It does, however, reduce the continuous use of the highly dangerous acid — an argument against the Babcock Test since its development in 1890.

Persons interested in obtaining the official regulation on use of the Milko-Tester may secure a copy by writing Glynn Williamson, Agricultural Regulatory Services, Room 122, Agricultural Experiment Station, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Lexington, Kentucky (40506).

Furnishing other home

NEW YORK (UPI) — You have a vacation home! Now, how do you furnish it?

Leftovers and hand-me-downs are a solution, of course — bits and pieces from your attic, your relatives' attics. Unless you are among the artistic — and handy — types, clever at refinishing, reupholstering and refurbishing generally, you could end up with a hideaway resembling the local thrift shop.

Another solution is "outdoor furniture": inexpensive, sturdy, colorful, easy to maintain.

There's a variety to suit any taste, from rugged redwood to sophisticated but sturdy steel mesh. On chairs and settees, cushions, mostly vinyl covered, always easy-care, provide comfort. Chaise lounges, grand for fireside, a comfortable corner or a window overlooking the view, can be folded-down to use as guest beds.

There are tables and chairs in wide variety — many of them foldaways, easy to store out of the way until company calls for added facilities.

The New Mexico Legislature comprises a senate of 42 members and a house of representatives of 70 members.

Second home boom offers a wide choice

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not so very long ago there were just two kinds of second homes: big country estates for the very rich, and hideaway cabins for the not-so-rich. And there weren't very many of either kind around.

Times have changed. We're in the midst of a second home boom. There are whole communities of leisure homes in all parts of the country. There are beach homes, mountain homes, homes used for summer sport, for winter sport and for both. Most could serve easily for full time living; many are designed for just that with retirement in mind.

The price range is wide, ranging from a few thousand dollars on up. Most families who can afford a second car and annual vacations, probably could afford a second home instead.

The why of it? Increased leisure and affluence, of course. But other reasons, too.

The Weyerhaeuser Co., a leading manufacturer of building materials, did some research on the subject and came up with some basic reasons for the boom.

An investment
Second homes provide both pleasure and economic investment opportunity. Leisure property is just about the only investment a family can make in the entertainment area and still stand to gain an economic return.

A good many people, Weyerhaeuser found, have come to realize that money spent on a two or three-week vacation is just about equal to the down payment on a leisure home. And with the general upward trend in property prices, there's a good chance the down payment eventually will be a growing investment instead of just one more expenditure.

In talking to those who sell second homes, the company's researchers found that one of the best times of the year for sales was the end of the summer vacation. It seems a good many families, just returned from long, tiring, expensive trips wish they'd stayed a lot closer to home.

It was found some values tend to become apparent only after a second home owner has had his property a season or two. One is the ability to stretch a three or four-day holiday weekend into a real vacation period. With vacation property just a few hours from home, it isn't a major project to get away.

Highways, which have made vacation areas more accessible, also have made the second home more desirable, the study found. Time and time again it was pointed out that crowded highways are a strong incentive to head for the woods.

Some of the factors are more subtle.

One is the psychological value of a change of mood and scenery. Apparently, vacations are more satisfying when they occur in a place set aside for relaxation and fun. The change in family routine, plus the relaxed atmosphere, seems to contribute to more enjoyable leisure.

Then, there is status appeal. But not the same kind associated with the rambling country estate of yesteryear.

Single family homes bow to apartments

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The single family home, once the hallmark of the American middle class, may be becoming too expensive for all but the very rich.

The Commerce Department reported recently 45 per cent of the new housing units produced so far this year were apartments or other multi-family dwellings. The multi-family share of the market was 35 per cent just two years ago.

Starts of single family homes reached their all time peak in late 1965, the department said. By contrast, starts of apartment units in the first quarter of this year were 50 per cent higher than in 1965.

The department listed several reasons for the swing to apartments. All of them, boiled down to one thing — money.

Rental costs increased 8.25 per cent from the end of 1965 to mid-1969 while homeowner-ship costs increased 23 per cent.

Land costs have increased sharply, making it an economic necessity to "stack" more homes in apartment buildings. Increasing land costs now have pushed the price of single family homes beyond the reach of many families.

Tax influence

Tax considerations have encouraged builders to turn more of their efforts to apartments.

It has proved to be easier to find money to finance apartment projects in current very tight money markets because of the use of "equity kickers." The kicker provision, which guarantees the lender a share of the income from the project, is being demanded with increasing frequency by lenders. Single family homes are frozen out of the kicker market.

In 1965, 50 per cent of all new homes sold in the United States cost less than $20,000. This year, the figure was down to 25 per cent. At the other end of the scale, houses costing more than $35,000 accounted for 6 1/2 per cent of the sales in 1965 and 22 per cent this year.

The monthly payments on new houses rose even faster than the sale price because of steadily increasing interest rates.

The sharply increasing cost of single family homes has also helped stimulate the sales of mobile homes. Shipments of mobile homes have increased 50 per cent since 1965.

The Commerce report also emphasized the home building industry is in a serious slump because of a shortage of money to finance both single and multi-family units.

"There is no evidence of a letup in credit restraint, and further sizable declines in housing starts appear to be in the offing," the report said.

THE PIASTER PROBLEM in South Vietnam is aired by these two witnesses before the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee in Washington. Sgt. Albert Chang explains how the 118-for-$1 plaster gets black-marketed into a Hong Kong bank at 200-for-$1, and G. T. Kerekes, a U.S. economist, says the South Vietnam economy is on the brink of disaster and "all the deficiency, we make up" with economic aid. He said "complete novices" in key U.S. posts are ignoring reforms which could hamper black market operations.
