Seen & Heard Around Murray

Now comes a letter from Glenn D. Hughes who has placed great concentration of thought on our traffic problem. His deliberations are as follows:

Dear Mr. Williams:

Reading through your Seen and Heard column last Friday, I was suddenly inspired to act as a temporary traffic expert, of a sort.

Leaping from my seat I donned my traffic expert cap, and grabbed the nearest phone book (they always come in handy when you know someone's name, but not their address). Bowker John 1601 Keeneland jumped out of the page and was immediately impressed in my memory.

I then flew to my car, and rushed to the scene of which you spoke, which in itself turned out to be confusing. It seems that Keeneland runs east and west, more or less. And at this particular intersection, Keeneland is met by two different streets at exactly, more or less, the same place. Coming in from the north side of Keeneland is South 17th Street. And hurrying to meet it is Catalina Drive from the south, or thereabouts.

With my bearing thusly coordinated, I pursued the situation with great intent. I found one stop sign on the corner of Catalina and the western section of Keeneland. On the corner of South 17th and the eastern section, I found one stop sign pole, minus the octagonal red stop sign.

After assembling all these facts in some sort of order, I began a confused deliberation, and after several agonizing moments I made my decision. Assuming (for what are theories without assumptions) that the vacant pole is a stop sign, I concluded that the north bound traffic on Catalina Drive destined for this intersection, and the south bound traffic on South 17th also destined for this intersection have the right of way over the east and west bound traffic on Keeneland also headed for this intersection.

So I present to you, Mr. Williams, my decision. Obviously the next step in the absolute completion of this problem is to have a stop sign put-upper put one up.

Sincerely
Glenn D. Hughes
404 North 17th
Murray, Ky. 42071

Murrah for you Mr. Hughes and your solution. You did indeed sir, come to a sound conclusion for this vexing problem. Some person apparently removed this stop sign and it needs to be put up again by the sign put-upper.

However you sidestepped the most vexing problem of all and that is right at the curve where John Bowker lives. This is the "U" shaped intersection where everyone has the right of way and no one has the right of way.

Visit this intersection where Richland joins in with Keeneland and Magnolia. This is a real mind snapper.

Our only solution for this situation is to place "Yield" signs for one-half block in all directions.

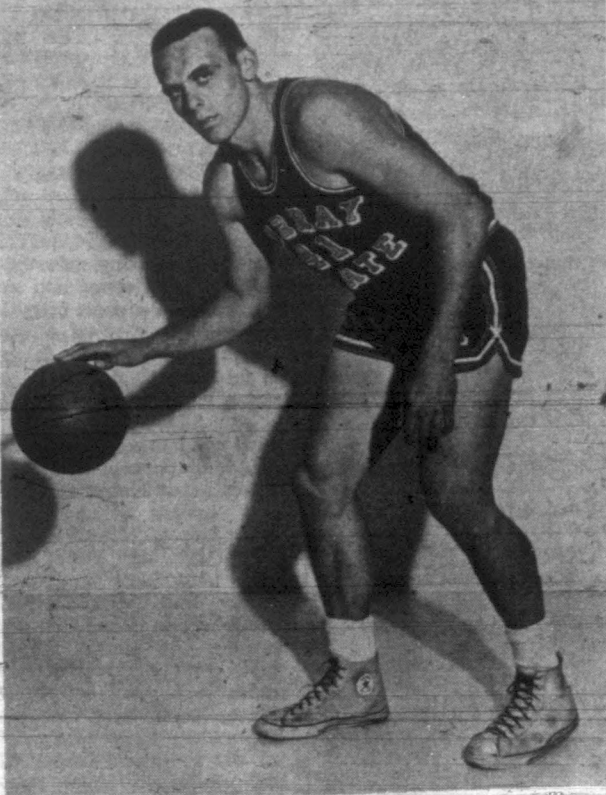

If you can figure this one out, we will present to you our traffic planner pin which consists of a small stop sign mounted by two wrecked cars, with the entire pin contained within an old 1932 Packard bumper.

Tom Moran...
In Need of Kidney Transplant

Fund Raising Drive For Former MSU Cage Star Initiated Here

A former Murray State University basketball player will be the recipient of Kentucky's next kidney transplant. Tom Moran, who sparked the 1967-68 Racers team to an OVC championship in the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington where doctors say his only hope for survival is a successful kidney transplant.

The operation is tentatively scheduled for the first week in August.

Doctors discovered Moran's condition, caused by calcium deposits in the kidney, this spring, just after he had completed his M. A. degree at Murray State.

He was named the head basketball coach at Farmington, in Graves County, for next year but he now will not be able to accept the job. No successor has been named for the post.

Despite his own desperate fight for life, Moran's greatest worry is his family for whom he is the sole support. The Moran's have one child, and Mrs. Moran is unable to work because it is necessary that she be in Lexington with her husband.

A group of Murray citizens has made plans to initiate a fund raising campaign to help pay for the kidney transplant and related medical expenses and support of the Moran family but no definite plans have been formulated.

The committee is composed of Ronald Churchill and Frank Ryan, co-chairman; Elroy Sultzer, Ray Roberts, Max Hurt, Ronnie Christopher, Don Overby, Galen Thurman and Bill Fandrich.

Hurt perhaps best expressed the sentiments of the committee.

State Certifies Assessments In Calloway County

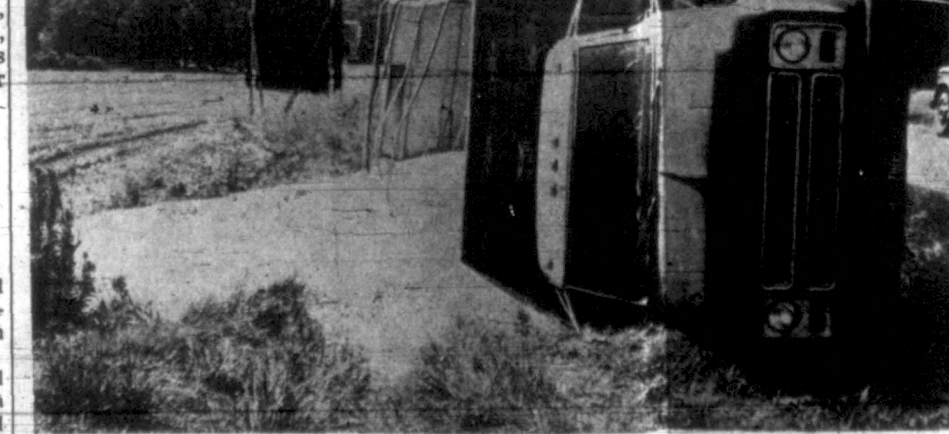

Charles Hale, Property Valuation Administrator for Calloway County has been notified by the Department of Revenue that certification is being issued to Calloway for their 1970 property tax assessment.

"Notice was issued to Calloway County that the farmland assessment must be improved for the 1970 assessment to be acceptable," by the Department of Revenue," Holland said. "This was completed during the assessment period and prevented Calloway County from receiving a blanket increase and prevented a delay in the collection of taxes for the schools and other taxing districts," he added.

Other counties in West Kentucky that were required to improve their assessments since the 1965 full value assessment are Hickman County, Fulton County, Carlisle County, McCracken County, Graves County and Livingston County.

Two final decoupage workshops of a series to explore a technique of the of the popular art form are scheduled for Murray State University July 17-18.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Answers About Drugs

As a part of the stepped-up Federal effort against drug abuse announced by President Nixon earlier this year, a new publication has been prepared, presenting the latest scientific answers to some of the most frequently asked questions about drug abuse.

The 42-page booklet is being made widely available through the National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information, which was also established to aid the invigorated attack on the drug problem.

A letter from President Nixon as an introduction to the booklet highlights the reasons for its issuance and other important points.

"Drug misuse is a growing national problem. Hundreds of thousands of Americans — young and old alike — endanger their health through the inappropriate use of drugs of all kinds. More than 100,000 of these Americans lead totally unproductive lives because of their addiction to narcotics," the President said.

"The blight of illegal drug traffic — the lives it ruins and the lives it takes — is a serious concern for every American."

"For the first time, all of the concerned Federal agencies and departments have pooled their knowledge to produce a single source book on the national drug problem. The answers are based on the latest research findings of the National Institute of Mental Health and are presented in accord with the policies and programs of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; the Department of Justice; the Department of Labor; and the Office of Economic Opportunity."

"Unfortunately, this book does not provide all of the answers to all of the questions about drugs. The causes and consequences of drug abuse are not yet fully understood."

"But the concerted pursuit of knowledge by all concerned Federal agencies continues. As new facts — and new answers — are discovered, they will be incorporated into revised editions of this publication and, more importantly, into programs to curb the misuse of drugs. We will need more research, greater control of illegal drug traffic, and intensified information and education efforts."

"This publication will be distributed to several million readers throughout the country. Let it be a symbol of our determination to unify and help support the efforts of State, community, and voluntary agencies in the control and prevention of drug misuse, and in the rehabilitation of the addict."

The content of "A Federal Source Book: Answers to the Most Frequently Asked Questions About Drug Abuse," covers general questions and answers, then marihuana, hallucinogens, stimulants, sedatives, narcotics, and other abused drugs. It also contains a glossary of drug terms to help the reader.

Free, single copies of the new source booklet may be obtained by requesting it from: National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information, National Institute of Mental Health, 5454 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20015.

Robertson Predicts:— Films in Cassettes For at Home Viewing

By ROBERT LYLE
Central Press Association
Correspondent

FILM ACTING and flying accurately describe Cliff Robertson. It has been a little over a year since the La Jolla-born actor won the Academy Award for his sensitive portrayal in "Charly," and it has been a period filled with activity.

Having completed "Too Late to Hero" on location in the Philippines, Robertson has launched himself into writing, producing and directing "I Shot Down the Red Baron," which is one-third completed. The film continues Robertson's passion for flying vintage aircraft.

Bearded and tanned, he walked into the restaurant across from the United Nations Plaza to sit down and discuss acting. Hitchcock and young film makers.

"OVER the past years it has been somewhat of a struggle to be independent, uncompromising and willing to gamble on your own feelings as opposed to so-called 'safe advice,'" Cliff said.

These words aptly highlight Robertson's career. A contract player to Columbia Pictures after success on Broadway appearing with such stars as Helen Hayes and Arlene Francis, he took several suspensions at that studio rather than accept "sure thing" roles for a lesser part that would ultimately have more promise.

Cliff's belief in himself paid off. Robertson's faith in "Charly" as a TV drama enabled him to buy the film rights and several years later he was the recipient of the Academy Award when "Charly" was brought to the screen.

WITH the vast changes going on in the film industry, Robertson said "our homes will be the citadel of movies." As we now have cassettes for music, in the future we will have cassettes for home viewing.

It is a revolutionary thought, but if you think about it you can see the possibilities. It's all being done by young film makers. Production costs reduced, due to the near extinction of the large studios, more films will be made on location and they will eventually be made available to the public in cassette form.

Robertson pointed out young students at school are working with cameras and there are even classes in film making on the junior high school level. He thinks this is a boom to the industry as new people will be involved in the media and more opportunity for creativeness will be achieved in the future.

As far as acting is concerned, the Oscar and Emmy Award winner said he would work in any media — films, TV or stage, as the role and characterization are more important than the means in which they are presented.

Sale of liquor was legal in 129 of Texas' 254 counties as of Aug. 31, 1969.

TV NOTES

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a ninth season coming up for NBC's "The Virginian," and there will be some changes in the fall. James Drury remains in the title role, and Doug McClure continues as Trampas. Movie star Stewart Granger becomes the new owner of Shiloh ranch, succeeding John McIntyre, who succeeded Lee J. Cobb. Lee Majors of the late "Big Valley" series becomes a new ranch hand who will alternate with the others as central figure in the episodes. The time element will be advanced about a decade into the mid-1890's.

It seems now that Jackie Gleason and Red Skelton next season, although there might be some sort of late compromise with Gleason. Someone has to be out of his network mind.

ABC has five new shows slated for the Saturday-Sunday children's programming for the fall. They are "The Reluctant Dragon and Mr. Toad," "Lancelot Link, Secret Chimp Hour," "Will the Real Jerry Lewis Please Sit Down?" and "Scooper and the Doubledeckers" on Saturday and "Jonny Quest," an oldie in a new spot, on Sunday.

Two other westerns, like "The Virginian," go on and on. NBC's "Bonanza" and "The High Chaparral" are in Hollywood production for the new season. Missing from the "Chaparral" family will be Mark Slade in the role of Blue, son of the ranch owner. He is being "written out" late this season in an episode that shows he has a future as an artist, a reason for him leaving the old homestead to seek fame and fortune in the outside world.

Rain Forces Delay In 99th Open

By JOE NAGLE
UPI Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI)—Sixty years ago a tremendous thunder storm swamped St. Andrews on the first day of the 99th Open golf championship. It happened again for the 99th renewal, forcing the opening round to overrun into today's program.

A deluge flooded bunkers, swamped fairways and left the greens at the world famous old course under deep pools of water Wednesday afternoon.

The same thing happened in 1910. The difference was, and it appears to be the only difference, all scores were scrapped and the round replayed the following day. This time the Royal and Ancient's committee, decided to merely "suspend play temporarily," and restart, with all scores standing, today.

Neil Coles, a balding 35-year-old British Ryder Cup player was the leader when play was stopped Wednesday, but his record seven-under-par total of 65 looked in some danger after an incredible opening day of sub-par rounds.

Defending champion and U.S. Open winner Tony Jacklin was in the midst of a history-making round and would surely have overhauled his British teammate had the earlier balm conditions continued.

Jacklin was eight under par after 13 holes, including a front nine of 29 which was a record for St. Andrews and equals the best nine holes ever carded in the championship anywhere.

Tommy Horton of Britain shot a 66 to be second best of the completed rounds Wednesday, followed by a quartet at 67 which comprised Florentino Molina of Argentina, South African Harold Henning and Britons John Richardson and Maurice Bembridge.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Australian Peter Thomson, who have won the trophy eight times among them, were locked in a five strong group on 68 with Doug Sanders and Brian Haggett.

Boating

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coast Guard is looking forward to a lot of headaches when the 21st challenge series for the America's Cup sails away from the starting buoy off Newport, R.I., on Sept. 15.

Officials predict a spectacular fleet of more than 4,000 pleasure craft will head out to sea to view the start of the four-out-of-seven series between the U.S. defender and a challenger from either France or Australia.

The Coast Guard's task will be to keep these avid spectators at least 100 yards outside the boundaries of the six-legged, 24.3-mile racing course which starts at a buoy seven miles south-southeast of the Brenton Reef Light Tower.

It won't be easy. The Coast Guard found this out in 1958 when the Cup series was revived using 12-meter yachts and about 2,000 pleasure boats sailed out to view the start in a scene reminiscent of the British rescuing their troops from Dunkirk in World War II.

Thirty-five hundred spectators were on hand for the 1962 challenge, 2000 in 1964 and 2,500 in 1967. In 1964, a small sailing craft squeezed through the Coast Guard screen and almost collided with the American defender.

Lt. Cmdr. M. R. Dumas, Coast Guard public information officer for the races, says the expected record 4,000 spectator boats this year is strictly an estimate, but that is the basis the Coast Guard is using to set up its patrol fleet.

This fleet will include about 50 vessels ranging from three 320-foot cutters down to 40-foot utility boats.

The United States has defeated Australia twice since 1958 in the battle for the Cup and if the Aussie boat—Gretel II—wins the challenger's role in the four-out-of-seven series against the French boat starting Aug. 15, spectator interest may not be so great.

But if the European boat—France—becomes the challenger, Dumas believes interest will be at such a peak that the spectator fleet may go far in excess of 4,000, especially if the France indicates it has a chance of copying the Cup.

The United States won the Cup from the British in 1851 and has successfully defended it 20 times in a series that began in 1870.

American contenders for the defender's role this year include two new boats—Valiant and Heritage—and Intrepid, successful defender of the Cup in 1967. They already are holding preliminary trials in Long Island Sound off Stamford, Conn.

The 12-meter yachts which were designated for America's Cup competition after a 21-year lapse in the Cup series usually average about 68 feet in length, 12-foot beam, 9-foot draft and have a sail area close to 2,000 square feet. Displacement is usually about 30 tons.

Apology Issued To American League Relief Pitchers

By DICK DEW
UPI Sports Writer

BOSTON (UPI)—American League relief pitchers still aren't being given All-Star recognition but at least they have an apology for being slighted again in the selections.

Earl Weaver, manager of the defending champion Baltimore Orioles and the 1970 AL All-Star team, issued the apology through league headquarters

Wednesday after naming nine pitchers, all of them starters, for the July 14 confrontation with the National League in Cincinnati.

Noting that he was compelled to name at least one player from each of the 12 American League clubs, Weaver singled out seven relief pitchers as particularly deserving but said he still had to go with nine of the league's ranking starters in making his 1970 selections. Weaver's selection of nine pitchers included three members of his own team with 33 victories among them at the time he made the choice. Thus Dave McNally, Jim Palmer and Mike Cuellar make up one third of the mound staff the American League will use in a bid to break the National League's seven-year domination of the mid-season All-Star games.

Other selections included All-Star game veterans Sam McDowell of Cleveland, and Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Jim Hunter of Oakland, Jim Perry of Minnesota and first time choices Clyde Wright of California and Fritz Peterson of the Yankees.

"I have not and did not select any relievers on the grounds that if we selected one, there would be five or six that are qualified to be placed in the same category," Weaver's

Ron Santo and Billy Williams. Maury Wills, who has been sidelined with a foot injury, cracked a two-out, two-run pinch-double to spark a five-run ninth-inning rally and pace the Dodgers to their seventh consecutive triumph. Pitcher Claude Osteen scored the Dodgers' final run on a single by Bill Grabarkewitz.

Clay Kirby and Ron Willis combined on an eight-hitter to pace San Diego past Cincinnati. The Padres literally knocked Reds' starter Jim McGlothlin from the game in the second with a liner off the bat of Ramon Webster. McGlothlin was replaced by Ray Washburn, who was tagged with the loss.

statement said. He then named Eddie Watt and Pete Richert of Baltimore, Ron Perranoski of Minnesota, Darold Knowles of Washington, Ken Tatum of California and both Lindy McDaniel and Jack Aker of the Yankees as the top relief choices—if he could pick them.

In naming his mound staff, Weaver picked all the league leaders at the time the decision was made. The nine pitchers had combined for exactly 100 victories through games of Monday night.

Danny Walton Is Proud New Father

The baby was born at 5:47 p.m. CDT at St. Francis Hospital. He was not immediately named, but Walton said, "If my wife has her way, it'll be named 'Danny.'"

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—All it takes sometimes is one man. He can do a lot of good or a lot of harm, start a riot or end one depending on which words he chooses.

Roberto Clemente was the man who cooled off Sunday's big blowup between the Cubs and Pirates at Wrigley Field. He was the right man. More important, he chose the right words so that what could have degenerated into a real nasty situation wound up nothing more than one of those typical baseball brawls in which the pushing far outweighs the actual punching.

The trouble which flared between the two clubs can be traced to one word. It's a dirty word. Particularly these days. The word is "old" and Dock Ellis, Pittsburgh's 25-year-old righthander, used it on Leo Durocher, Chicago's 63-year-old manager.

Tacks on Another Word
That was bad enough but when Ellis tacked another word onto that one, an already unhappy Leo Durocher reacted in a most predictable way. He took a couple of steps toward Dock Ellis. Not giant steps, but steps forward nonetheless.

Here's where Nick Colosi, the plate umpire, showed some good sense. He grabbed Durocher and led him away. By that time players already had started off both benches and when they suddenly found themselves facing each other, they automatically did what came naturally, they started pushing.

The activity on the field immediately got the fans all worked up—psychiatrists call it "identification"—and a few even jumped over the wall and onto the playing surface with the obvious intention of making a bad situation worse.

Takes Advantage of Pause
Billy Williams, one of the other umpires working the game, took advantage of a brief pause in the skirmish to address Dock Ellis, who had been at bat when the disturbance began. This looked like the lull before the storm, the point at which the trouble could either mushroom or deteriorate altogether.

"Go ahead up there and bat," Williams instructed Ellis. "C'mon now, it's all over. Go on up there to the plate."

Dock Ellis, who had pitched a no-hitter for the Pirates three weeks before, wasn't sure it was all over. He hesitated.

"You listen to the umpire," Roberto Clemente said at precisely that moment to Dock Ellis. "He's right. Go up there and bat."

Dock Ellis started walking to the plate and pretty soon all the other players started going back to the dugouts.

When hubby snores who changes bedrooms?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Eugene and I have been happily married for 26 years, but like everyone else, I have a problem. His snoring!

I don't know whether he's snoring louder lately, or if my tolerance is wearing thin, but it's gotten so bad I can't get a decent night's sleep—especially if Eugene has had a few drinks during the evening, then he snores like a mountain lion!

I have asked him gently to please stop snoring, nudged him, and rolled him over, which helps temporarily, then he starts in again.

Last night it was so bad, I woke him up and asked him to please go sleep in the spare room. He went, but he was very angry. The next morning we had a few words about it. Eugene said I was very selfish for waking him up and asking HIM to go to the other room. He said that since he was sleeping soundly, and I was up, I should have gone to the spare room to sleep. I say that since HE was creating the disturbance, HE should have gone. What do you say?

PAM

DEAR PAM: I say Eugene was right.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-age housewife with two teen-age children who make the honor roll regularly. I keep a nine-room house clean, but not immaculate. I sew all my own clothes and my daughter's, too. [I've even taught her to sew.]

My children and I attend church regularly, and we have a host of friends whom I feel think well of us.

My husband, who is an only child, is hard-working, capable and provides adequately. He is also well-liked. These are the assets. Now here are a few of the liabilities:

I am about five pounds overweight, I am graying in the temples. I have only a high school education. I dislike my mother-in-law intensely because she makes me feel dumb, dirty, and inferior. Now, tell me, how can you like someone who makes you feel dumb, dirty, and inferior?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your first two "liabilities" strike me as being somewhat trivial. [It's no big deal to get rid of five pounds and a few gray hairs.] And if your limited education is causing you to feel "dumb," you can become better informed by reading. Forget about your mother-in-law. No one can make you feel "dumb, dirty, and inferior" unless you think you might deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: So many people have written to you to complain because they sent a gift "six months ago," and they didn't receive a thank-you for it.

Why don't these people call up [or write] to the person they sent it to and find out if the gift was ever received? If they did get it and were slow in sending a "thank you," they deserve to be embarrassed.]

There is always a chance that the gift was not received. I work in the department of the postoffice where packages are undeliverable because the address has "fallen" off, or become smudged and cannot be read. And there is no return address on the package. Also, when a package is returned to the store because it cannot be delivered, the card will read, "From Uncle Ted and Aunt Mary," and the store has no way of knowing WHO bought it.

Please tell readers to put their full names and address INSIDE every gift, and not to sit around for 6 months wondering if the gift they sent ever got there. HELPFUL

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GOING CRAZY" IN SIOUX CITY, Ia.: Tell him you married him for better or worse—but not for LUNCH!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

French Nazi-fighter set up spy network

By GEORGE SIBERA

PARIS (UPI) — "Colonel Remy," the almost legendary leader of the only French spy network to operate from the Nazi occupation to the Allied liberation, believes Paris ought to raise a monument to Germans who died fighting against Adolf Hitler.

Colonel Remy's real name is Gilbert Renault. He took the rank when he went underground in 1940 and today at 65, one of the last of the great spy ring leaders, he is better known to admiring Frenchmen by his nom de guerre.

The suggestion for a memorial to anti-Nazi Germans emerged during an interview at his country home at Saint Maurice-Montouronne, 31 miles south of Paris. The house is filled with mementoes of the conflict in which he played so important a role.

"In a country such as Germany with such strong traditions and an organization pervading all facets of life an open struggle against Hitler was more difficult than elsewhere," he said. "I hope there will one day be a monument honoring their memories in Paris."

Col. Remy knows first hand the kind of difficulties the German anti-Nazi fighters must have faced. In November, 1940 the short, powerfully built Breton brought into being his "Confrerie Notre Dame" (Brotherhood of Our Lady) which lost 200 men executed by hanging, the firing squad or even beheading by the Nazis.

Another 200 of his friends died in Nazi death camps. Deeply religious—hence the choice of a religious name for his group—Remy was a film director before the war. On the day France capitulated in June, 1940, he escaped to England aboard a trawler.

"When I returned to France later that year," he said, "I didn't know much more than when I left about gathering intelligence. In England they taught me a secret code. They also gave me invisible ink, which was never of any use to me. I was told to keep an eye on German activities along the coast from Spain to Mont Saint Michel, in Normandy. If they had asked me to watch the coast all the way up to Scandinavia I would have said yes."

But the stay in England was invaluable psychologically for it showed Remy a nation so determined to continue fighting that ordinary Britons were practicing archery in the hope of shooting holes through landing parachutes if Germany invaded.

In the ceaseless duel with German counter-intelligence Remy's brotherhood of volunteers twice met near total disaster when members spoke out under torture or Nazis managed to infiltrate the network.

On one of these occasions, in November, 1943, most of the active members of the brotherhood were rounded up, but by then Remy had already shipped 80 regular pouches of information to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement in London which distributed to the Allies.

Each pouch, smuggled out via Spain and Portugal, contained 500 tightly typed notes and about 150 plans of German positions and troop movements, all very detailed. Other vital information went out by radio; the radio operators knew that arrest meant death.

Walking in the streets of French towns among enemy troops, knowing that one after the other his friends in the network were being picked up, was a harrowing experience, Col. Remy said.

"On certain days the feeling of being followed by the Gestapo filled me with an unbearable tension. I was beginning to hope I would be arrested so as to end it all."

Most of the information gathered by his ring came from ordinary Frenchmen—the little farmers and workers watching every move of the Germans and reporting it to French agents at the peril of their lives. Autographed letters from Allied leaders on the walls of his study thank him for information on German coastal defenses against invasion.

One of them is from General Omar N. Bradley, Commander of the First Army on D-Day, who once told Remy that without this intelligence Allied losses would have been much greater.

Britain supplied Remy's ring with radio transmitters but for some reason he has never been able to fathom—considering it was death to help the allies—they were "all clearly marked 'Made in England.'"

"I guess they were proud of their product," he said, smiling.

Maxi-midi mix befuddles Rio

RIO de JANEIRO (UPI) — The maxi and the midi fashions are having their troubles this year in Rio de Janeiro, a tropical city.

Except for people with money, Rio is stalling when it comes to accepting long skirts.

A 15-block stroll on Rio's main thoroughfare, Avenida Rio Branco, showed that not a single woman—and this includes the middle-aged—was wearing a maxi. Two 50-year-old spinsters wore the nearest thing to them—skirts four inches below the knees. "This thing they call the mini-skirt is obscene," one of them huffed.

But that's what girls in Rio still wear—either a mini or a length cut above the knee in varying degrees.

Miss Mirtes Barros, a 26-year-old social worker, predicted that eventually "the maxi will be worn only by the rich, and, then, it will only be worn at night. Mini, yes, it belongs to everybody."

Odilon Pereira Alencar, a 29-year-old government worker, predicted that the maxi would never catch on among the poor. The amount of cloth and styling made them "anti-economic," he said.

However, some in Rio's high society are certain that the maxi will catch on in the cooler months of the southern hemisphere winter (summer in the northern hemisphere). A few can be seen on the street already in the beachfront, middle-class neighborhood of Copacabana.

Florida phosphate

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Florida produced 28 million tons of phosphate in 1969, about 70 per cent of the total national production, reports the Florida Phosphate Council. This production was valued at $157 million and was 4 per cent lower than in 1968.

The council said an average of 80,000 tons of phosphate ore is mined daily in Florida, more than 90 per cent of it going into production of high grade fertilizers. The state supplied 30 per cent of the world's need for phosphate during 1969 and exports more than 12 million tons of ore each year.

TESTING THE NEW SAFETY DEVICE — Tests and evaluations on the newly-developed inflatable air-bag safety restraint system, which actuates before a collision, were conducted at Toyota's research and development center in Toyota City, Japan. The potential substitute for lap belts — which recent surveys have shown are generally ignored by automobile passengers — was introduced at an international auto manufacturer's conference last month.

Toyota Unveils Safety Air-Bag at International Auto Meeting

An inflatable air-bag safety restraint system designed by Toyota Motor Co., Ltd., was unveiled last month before auto manufacturers from 15 nations at the first International Conference on Passive Restraints sponsored by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and co-hosted by the Transportation Department and the U.S. auto industry.

Designed as a safe, effective alternative to current lap and shoulder belts, the air-bag drew loud applause from the 300 experts gathered at General Motors' proving grounds in Milford, Michigan.

A product of Toyota's continuing research and development program, the Toyota design contrasts markedly from other experimental versions of the air-bag restraint system in that the others go into action only after a collision occurs.

Tohru Takahashi, Chief of Automotive Safety Engineering, and Toyotaro Yamada, Deputy Manager of Engineering for Toyota, introduced the device, which relies on radar and a small computer to signal for inflation just before a collision. Upon receipt of the signal the bag automatically inflates, enveloping the driver and passenger in the front seat so that they are already protected when the collision occurs.

The National Highway Safety Bureau and the auto industry are committed to putting bags in cars as soon as possible because surveys have shown comparatively few people use lap belts. A recent study by the bureau shows only 20 percent of passengers use the lap belt while about 4 percent use both the lap belt and the shoulder harness.

The air-bag system, which requires no action on the part of either passengers or driver, is as effective in preventing injuries as the combination lap belt and shoulder harness, according to Mr. Takahashi.

Travel bug decided a career in movies

By ROBERT MUSEL

MONACO (UPI)—Marianne Hold is a very beautiful girl and Frederick Stafford worked so hard getting her to marry him—it took a week from the moment they met—he did not have time to inquire into her background.

"I was shaving on our honeymoon," he said, "when she came in with a newspaper carrying her photograph. An actress! I nearly cut my throat. All I knew about actresses was drugs, drinks and love affairs."

All this took place in Bangkok. Then a bouquet of orchids arrived from a French producer who had witnessed the whirlwind romance and wanted to buy them a drink as well on the ground he had rooted Stafford home.

Over the drink the producer suddenly examined Stafford's handsome, six-foot, three-inch physique with professional interest.

"You ought to be in pictures," he said.

"You need a psychiatrist," Stafford retorted cheerfully. He was a doctor of chemistry and a dealer in chemical supplies.

"I want you for my next film," the producer insisted. "I took a hard to keep him quiet and said I would look him up some day," said Stafford. "Marianne and I were going to Saigon but due to the situation there we went to the Midwest and eventually Paris and there, at Fouquet's one day, he was."

"I've got a script," he said. "Are you ready?" "I'm not an actor," I said. "You are, but you don't know it," he said, adding shrewdly, "we're filming this one in Rio."

"Well, I hadn't been to Rio, so I accepted and here I am." Where is he? He has starred in two highly successful films as "O.S.S. 117"—a continental adventurer in the James Bond mould. Alfred Hitchcock was so impressed he flew over and signed him for "Topaz". Now Stafford is reported to be on the very short list to become the new real James Bond in the next film of that cycle, "Diamonds are Forever."

Stafford, who is Czech-born but carries an Australian passport—he left his homeland in 1948—would like the Bond role but emphasizes he has not been asked and that even if it does not happen he has contracts for several other films in Europe and Hollywood.

Miss Hold, a Polish-Austrian dazler, has given up her own film career for the moment to help her husband. What's her explanation for his switch from chemistry?

"Scratch any man and you'll find an actor," she said. "Ask any girl."

Mao lost son in Korea, says Red Guard report

HONG KONG (UPI)—According to an alleged Red Guard document smuggled into Hong Kong, the eldest son of Red Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung was killed during the Korean war and still lies buried in North Korea.

The document said the son, Mao An-Ying, heroically laid down his life in November, 1950, in the Korean theater of war. At the request of the Korean people, his body is still buried in Korean soil.

Other references to Mao in the document said:

—His only sister, Mao Tse-Chien, was executed by shooting "at Hengshan (in Hunan Province) in August, 1929, at less than 24."

—His father died at the age of 70 of typhoid in 1920; his mother died a year earlier at age 52 of tonsillitis.

Litter drive in the home

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chances are your home has more than a bushel basketful of litter around it. Right now.

Couldn't be? Perhaps not, if you've just swept, raked and shovelled everything. Otherwise, you may be amazed at the quantity of trashy debris tucked here and there.

Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national litter prevention organization, suggests that homeowners take a "litter inventory" at least twice a year, followed, of course, by anti-litter action.

A spruced-up home, says KAB, not only gives personal pleasure and satisfaction, but actually increases property value. It also encourages less diligent neighbors to keep their own land as litter free as yours, thus enhancing the entire neighborhood's appearance.

foreign workers in Germany

BONN (UPI)—About five per cent of the 21.5 million men and women employed in West Germany are foreigners. At the end of January, the number of foreign workers tallied a record 1,574,700, the government reported. Thirty per cent of them were women. The largest contingents of foreign workers were Italians, Yugoslav, Turks, Greeks and Spaniards.

Big busing

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Southern California Rapid Transit District is the second largest bus system in the country after New York City. It operates 1,500 diesel buses driving 180,000 miles each day.

The size of the average camping party is 4.26 persons, says the New York State Department of Conservation.

Nature takes over

GEYSERSVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—The Geysers Power Plant in Northern California is the nation's only geothermal electrical generating plant—powered by natural steam from within the earth. Deep wells are drilled to tap the steam-trapped far beneath the surface, with 57 active wells now in use. The geothermal process is smog free and the costs of producing electricity are among the lowest in the power generating industry.

Governor's "J.J." likes the rustic life

by VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Julie Sommers, the willowy beauty of "The Governor and J.J.," lives alone in a mountain cabin smack dab in the middle of Los Angeles about a mile from the studio in which she works.

The rustic house consists of two small bedrooms, a tiny kitchen and a large, beamed-ceiling living room with a field-stone fireplace.

Incredibly — for a bachelor girl and actress — there is only a single, not very spacious closet. But Julie prefers the outdoors and nature to frilly gowns anyhow.

There is a small stream running through her property and she has brought the outdoors indoors with hanging flowers in baskets in the living room. The furniture is a conglomeration of comfortable old pieces and odds and ends from various apartments she has rented.

Julie is an Indian buff, collecting pottery, Navajo rugs and artifacts of other tribes. There are several prints by Frederick Remington, the famed painter of American Indians, on the walls, and prominently displayed is her prized possession, an ancient book of his drawings.

For a single girl Julie is one of Hollywood's better cooks. She turns out delicious lasagna, chili and beef stew. To impress friends she makes a special pumpkin bread. Later this year she is taking a course in French cooking.

"My friends are beginning to get bored with my chili," she says.

Julie's working day begins at 9:30 at Cinema Center studios, a two-minute drive in her old Mercedes, and ends at 5 p.m.

Because her co-star, Dan Dailey, enjoys long weekends, the CBS series is closed on Monday. This affords Julie the opportunity to play tennis, go to the beach where some of her friends have homes, and to take singing and dancing lessons.

Julie plays mother-to-a-pair of pigeons named Julie and Woody, but she is looking for another home for them. Kitty, an alley cat who wandered in five years ago, however, will stay.

The youthful actress has her wardrobe problem solved. She buys her dresses from the television company. Those outfits she likes best on the show she purchases for her private life.

Julie restricts her dating to weekends, saying that a girl cannot spend the evening dining and dancing and be alert and fresh to rehearse the following day.

She cooks only for special beaux. The others take her out to dinner. "I think you have to cook for someone you really care about," she says. "Otherwise it's a waste of time."

Because of her admiration for the works of Remington, Julie has taken up oil painting. Thus far she has managed to work with a teacher specializing in still life. She plans to branch out as she progresses into landscapes and portraits.
