Today's Sports Parade

By OSCAR RALEY United Press Sports Writer. By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, July 10 (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures: The most patient people among baseball's fans are the citizens of Cleveland who haven't seen a world series since 1920. All of which explains probably why they are so steamed up over this year's team. The Boston Braves haven't won a pennant since 1914; the Philadelphia Phillies since 1915, or the Chicago White Sox since the "Black Sox" thing of 1919. But, in each of those cities clubs in the rival league have come through for the fans... there's still a long, long trail a'winding. Demon Hammer, the Hambletonian favorite, apphed his odds yesterday by winning the historic trot at Goshen, taking two of three heats. Rollo, the winter book favorite which was expected to give the Demon quite a run, was scratched at the last minute and won't race until Hambletonian Week... So the Demon still is the horse to beat in the big one. Wed Friday Evening

Mrs. Herbert Lee Williams

Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Roberts, 800 Olive street, Murray, Kentucky, became the bride of Herbert Lee Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Williams of Paris, Tennessee, at eight o'clock in the evening on Friday, July 9, in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Wendell H. Rone at the First Baptist Church.

The church was beautiful, decorated with southern smilax, magnolia leaves, huckleberry and Oregon ferns as a background, and tall baskets of white gladioli were placed among the greenery. An arrangement of Easter lilies was placed in the center. Eight seven-branched candelabras and tiers of white candles outlining the choir rail illuminated the setting. The place of ceremony was marked by an arch entwined with smilax and gardenias. The aisle by which the wedding party entered was lined with cathedral candles in wrought iron standards. A beautiful wedding bell made of white gladioli hung in the center over the baptismal, and under the bell was a beautiful arrangement of white gladioli.

As the wedding guests assembled, a program of organ and vocal music was presented by Miss Lillian Watters, organist, and Mr. Hugh McGee, soloist. Miss Watters' selections were, "Meditation," from this (Massenet), "Clair de Lune"

(Debussy), "Liebestraum" (Liszt), and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" (Herbert). Mr. McGee sang, "My Pledge" (Black) and "L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour, Frim!" The traditional wedding marches were used, and as the vows were said Miss Watters softly played "O Perfect Love" (Barbry).

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful antique ivory slipper, satin gown. The petite bodice fastened center back with material self-covered buttons. The heart-shaped neck was outlined with hand-embroidered done in Bridal Rose design with seed pearl. The long sleeves buttoned with self-covered buttons from elbow to point of the hand. The gathered skirt (Poised over period petticoats) joined the elongated fitted bodice which developed into voluminous folds extending into a long, beautiful train. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a halo embroidered seed pearls. She carried white orchids, surrounded and showered with bride's roses, white tulle, and white ribbons.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Jane Roberts McGee, sister of the bride, and her bridesmaids, Miss Marilyn Mason, Miss Sue Upchurch, Mrs. Ruth Armstrong Roberts, and Mrs. Geneva Brownfield, all wore white frosted mouseline de soie over tulle, with tucked bodice and full skirts. Mrs. McGee carried an arm bouquet of two dozen American Beauty roses and the bridesmaids carried lovers bow knots with Better Time roses. Each wore a rose in her hair.

Mr. Williams' father, Mr. W. P. Williams, served as best man, and his three brothers, Percy, Bryant, and James, and his brother-in-law, Vyron Mitchell, were ushers. The bride's mother wore a pale blue crepe ankle length dress trimmed in lace. She wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Williams was attired in a pale blue ankle length lace dress. She also wore an orchid corsage.

The parents of the bride were host at a reception at their home on 800 Olive Street, after the ceremony. The bride's table was lovely with a centerpiece of bride's roses and stephanotis. The wedding cake was surrounded with gardenias. Mrs. M. O. Wraether served at the punch bowl and Mrs. Rainey T. Wells served the cake. Miss Lila Clayton Beale and Mr. Clair McGovern played during the reception. Miss Hazel Hood, Miss Danious Crawford, and Miss Janette Farmer sang several selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left immediately after the reception for a wedding trip to Daytona Beach, Mrs. Williams chose for traveling a beige gabardine suit with dark brown accessories. She wore a corsage of cypripedium orchids.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allen, Memphis, Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Allen, Memphis, Tennessee; Mrs. Ewing Gilson, Paducah, Kentucky; Mrs. George Clendenin, Memphis, Tennessee; Miss Ann Clendenin, Memphis, Tennessee; Miss Betty Martin, Memphis, Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. Ira Elston, Memphis, Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Turner, Marks, Mississippi; Mrs. Alberta Phillips, Birmingham, Alabama; Mrs. S. A. Vaughn, Columbus, Mississippi; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams and son Jim, Atlanta, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sansing and daughters, Loretta and Sandra, Nashville, Tenn.; and Miss Dolores Williams, Birmingham, Ala.

Fairy Godmothers Enlisted to Help Nervous Children

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (UP)—By the time trees get red in Utah canyons, again next fall, Therna Pettay will be in action. She will have called in her fairy Godmothers, which are real-life recordings of the fairy Godmother and her helpers, telling the child that his particular habit will get him nowhere.

The imaginative Mrs. Pettay from the Utah town of Holladay wants to help little children get over their nervous habits, which psychologists call tics. She figured there'd be a whole legion of valuable helpers from fairyland who'd love to help out they've just never been asked.

The "Fairy Godmother" cure will be personalized by real-life recordings from the fairy Godmother and her helpers, telling the child that his particular habit will get him nowhere.

Records Go Over
She tried making a few records over the summer, but the visiting her sister, the film star Laraine Day, and they went over big, she reported.

The first one she ever made was for Laraine's six-year-old daughter Angela. The six-year-old Angela had a nervous habit of biting her upper lip. So the godmother—or Mrs. Pettay—told her via a recording that fairies and brownies and the other small people who help good little children lace their shoes, wouldn't like it very much if she kept on chewing her lip.

And it worked. Laraine Day says her daughter no longer bites her lip.

When she came home Mrs. Pettay decided that there was a chance to help children get rid of their tics.

Program Planned
Mrs. Pettay will start a program called "Behind the Scenes of Fairyland" over a local radio station in the fall. This series tells popular fairy tales with the "Pettay" twist, or as the characters themselves see the story. Eight scripts are ready to go now.

The erstwhile "fairy godmother" figures that the recordings will just be an added feature for the program. When parents get bothered by junior's habits they can ask for help and right away there will be a recording from "Fairyland" with Black Sambo or Tom Thumby, maybe, and the fairy godmother telling him that sucking thumbs and biting lips is not such a good idea.

VIGILANTES OF BUENA VISTA

By FRANK C. ROBERTSON

Josie Pennington, arriving in Idaho Territory to marry Jim Blaxham, gold prospector in Buena Vista, learns that he has been murdered and that the vigilantes are preparing to hang his partner, Bruno Cazette. Sure that Bruno is innocent, she enlists the aid of young Ben Warren. He and his friend John Paul Hudson, hotelkeeper, know that the county officers as well as the vigilante captain, Butcher Gilkie, are controlled by a lawless gang headed by Charles Douglas, and they believe that Bruno is being victimized. They succeed in getting him a change of venue. Douglas plants some stolen diamonds on Ben, who is arrested. Ben, learning that the vigilantes are being incited to lynch Hopsy, tells Gilkie that the thief was him. Meanwhile, Ben, John Paul and their adherents have rescued Hopsy from jail. They send a spy, Nat Fisher, to the vigilante meeting, then turn in at John Paul's hotel. They scarcely get to bed, when John Paul rouses them.

They reached the cabin and fumbled at the latchstring until they got the door open. "Hold it, gents," a steely voice spoke behind them. At the same instant, Tom Hawk's bowie knife was pressed against the breast of the man who had opened the door, and Ben struck a light. The outlaws attempted no resistance. They had been caught completely by surprise. "What's the idee bustin' into a man's house?" Rattlesnake Pete demanded.

They were seen to kill Roy Lacey tonight, Pete, and you just heard you admit having helped to hang Johnny-come-and-eat-sonce, Ben replied. "Douglas and his gang are not the only ones who can do any hangin'." The bearded scoundrels swore and cursed, and then they begged. Convinced at last that their doom was sealed, they became quiet.

THERE was a pine tree on the brow of a hill above their cabin. They were taken up there with their hands tied behind their backs. The ropes were secured about their necks, and each man was forced to sit upon a horse.

"Who hired you to kill Lacey, Pete?" John Paul asked. "Nobody. I just didn't like the color of his eyes," the man said defiantly. "Let her go," John Paul said. Someone quirted the horse the outlaw was sitting upon. Rattlesnake Pete's neck was broken by the fall.

"What about it, Bummer?" John Paul asked the other man. "There may be a chance for you if you are willing to talk. We're more interested in hanging something onto Charles Douglas than we are in hanging you." "You mean you'll let me go?" the man asked sullenly. "Yes; if you'll sign a complete confession."

"All right, I'll tell what I know," the man said sullenly. "Let him down," John Paul ordered.

Back inside the cabin, a smoky lamp was lighted. George Eastbrook took down the words which were prodded from the road agent. The Phils, 13 to 2, Johnny Sam, under no pressure, gave up 12 hits as he scored his 11th victory. Del Ennis hit a Philly homer. The Braves now lead by 3 1-2 games.

The Cubs set back the second place Pirates, 2 to 1 at Chicago when Bill Nicholson hit his 11th homer of the year with Andy Patko on base in the sixth inning to send ace righthander Elmer Riddle down to his fourth loss against nine wins.

Stan (The Man) Mustal hit a two run homer and touched off the winning rally with a single in a 6 to 4 Cardinal victory over Cincinnati at St. Louis in which relief pitcher Gerry Staley scored his third victory in the last five Cardinal games.

Rex Barney, turning in his second straight complete victory after going two years without finishing one in a four-hit, 10 to 3 Brooklyn triumph over the Giants at the Polo Grounds.

Pinch hitter Carl Scheib's double with two out in the ninth gave the Athletics an 8 to 7 victory over the Red Sox at Philadelphia and enabled relief pitcher Charlie Harris, the winner, to gain revenge for being the victim of last Sunday's 14-run Boston inning.

Joe Dimaggio drove in four runs with his 19th homer and a single and left Ed Lopat pitched four hit ball to win his fifth straight game and his seventh of the season as the Yankees defeated the Senators, 9 to 0 at Washington.

After 25 years of pitching, Negro Satchel Page finally made his big league debut with two scoreless innings of relief work for the Indians in a lost cause as the Browns scored a 5 to 3 decision at Cleveland. The Browns clinched victory with four runs in the first two innings including a homer by pitcher Ted Sanford over Cleveland ace, Bob Lemon. Lemon went down to his seventh defeat against 12 victories.

The Tigers won their fifth straight at Detroit, 4 to 2 over the White Sox. Freddy Hutchinson, giving up six hits, had a shutout until Aaron Robinson hit a two-run homer in the ninth.

ELFIN CAP—Sustaining the mood of this summer's popular close-cropped hair-do, milliner Mago Hayes designs a pointed red felt hat that sits far back on the head with its brim at the back. It is trimmed with black braid and silk cord, which ties beneath the chin.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, UNCLE SAM—If Uncle Sam doesn't have a happy birthday on July 4, it won't be the fault of screen player Jacquellina White. The attractive young actress sends hearty good wishes along with a festive cake.

Eddie Stanky Still Wields Influence On Penant Plans Of Boston Braves

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 10 (UP)—Even while hobbling around on a cane, pepperhead Eddie Stanky yielded a big influence in the penant plans of the Boston Braves today through his roommate and pal, kid shortstop Alvin Dark.

Stanky, probably the most earnest player of modern times, plays only to win and had to hold back the tears when told that the broken ankle he suffered in a collision at Brooklyn Thursday would keep him out of the lineup at least six weeks. Last year with the Dodgers, he made a star pitcher out of his roommate Ralph Branca, building the big right hander's confidence and giving him the same tips that are going this year to Dark.

Last night, while Stanky was "sitting it out," Dark hit safety in his 21st straight game, getting a triple, double, single and stealing home as the Braves crushed the Phils, 13 to 2. Johnny Sam, under no pressure, gave up 12 hits as he scored his 11th victory. Del Ennis hit a Philly homer. The Braves now lead by 3 1-2 games.
