Correspondent Deported From Russia To Be Main Speaker

The First District Educational Association will convene at Murray State college tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock for an all-day session. The morning will be given over to general sessions, and in the afternoon various departments will have individual meetings.

Schools in Murray will be closed for the meeting, and all teachers in the Murray school system will attend the sessions.

Robert Magidoff, one of the main speakers at the 64th annual meeting of FDEA, served as an American correspondent to Moscow for 12 years until one day in April of this year when he was accused of being a spy and deported from Russia. He was serving as NBC's correspondent when a letter from his former secretary, a Soviet citizen, charged him with espionage and led to his eviction.

The Soviet Government did not formally investigate the charge nor did they formally accuse Magidoff of espionage. Magidoff has made the remark that if it had been any proof of his guilt, he would not have been allowed to leave the country.

Russian-born Magidoff came to the United States as a boy. He became an American citizen, attended New York City schools, and graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1932.

Following his graduation he returned to Russia as a correspondent for the Associated Press. Later he became the correspondent for NBC in Moscow. During his 12-year stay in Russia, he traveled extensively throughout the Soviet Empire.

During the war Magidoff covered the entire conflict from inside Russia. He visited the Soviet-German front 14 times. He also covered lend-lease convoys, and accompanied Eric Johnston, former head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, on his trip through Russian territory.

After the war the correspondent made trips to Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, and Finland. He investigated war damage and steps that had been taken toward rehabilitation.

JUNIOR VARSITY WINS 21-0 OVER TENNESSEE T. U.

The junior varsity of Murray State college defeated the University of Tennessee junior college at Cutchin stadium last night with a score of 21-0.

Murray scored in the middle of the first quarter on a long pass from Sam Vinyard to Billy Mae Bone. Bone took the pass far down field in the open and scored without any U. T. hands touching him, for a net gain of 46 yards. Bone's kick was good for the extra point.

In the second quarter Joe Davis set up the second touchdown when he intercepted a U. T. pass on the U. T. 13-yard line. On the next play Cliff Applegate took Bob Perkins' lateral and went across the goal line. Perkins converted.

U. T. outplayed Murray in the third quarter when their passing attack clicked. They bogged down after driving to the Murray five-yard line.

Billy Ferguson scored last for Murray in the middle of the fourth quarter after a series of rushing plays which resulted in two first downs. He scored from the six-yard line. Bone kicked for the extra point.

The varsity journeys to Richmond to play Eastern State college Saturday night.

Cleveland Comes From Behind To Win Over Boston In Second Game

BOSTON, Oct. 7 (UP)—The surprising Boston Braves, out to make it two victories in a row over the Cleveland Indians, sent their ace left hander, Warren Spahn to the pitching hill today against young Bob Lemon in the second game of the World Series.

It was a mild, sunless day and there was a stiff breeze blowing in from left field—a factor which figured to minimize the power of Cleveland's predominantly right handed batting lineup just as it did yesterday when the Braves won the opening game, 1 to 0.

A capacity crowd of 40,000 was on hand after drifting slowly into the park.

Manager Billy Southworth took Spahn to one side before the game and talked to him at length, giving him a last minute briefing on the Cleveland hitters.

The Indians took the field promptly at noon and ancient Mel Harder went to the mound to pitch batting practice.

A play-by-play description follows:

Cleveland first: Mitchell, on the second pitch, fouled to Elliott. Clark struck out. Boudreau grounded out, Elliott to Torgerson.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Boston first: Holmes, took two called strikes and then sent an easy grounder to Lemon, who threw him out. Dark was safe at first when Gordon fumbled his easy grounder. Torgerson rifled Lemon's second pitch to right for a single, sending Dark to third. Elliott singled to left scoring Dark. Torgerson stopping at second, Torgerson was picked off second. Lemon to Boudreau. Rickert struck out.

One run, two hits, one error, one left.

Cleveland second: The sun started to break through the partly overcast skies as Cleveland came to bat. The game was delayed as two kids who had climbed up under the left field scoreboard were chased away.

Gordon grounded out, Dark to Torgerson. Keltner flied to Rickert.

Doby drove a three and one pitch for a double to left center, the first extra base hit of the series. Robinson walked on five pitches, and Red Barrett started warming up in the Braves' bull pen.

Hegan flied to M. McCormick.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Boston second: Salkeld singled to right. M. McCormick, trying to sacrifice, popped to Lemon. Stanky walked on a 3 and 2 pitch, Salkeld going to second. Spahn grounded out on a 3 and 2 pitch, Gordon to Robinson. Salkeld going to third and Elliott to Robinson.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Cleveland third: Lemon lined to Rickert. Mitchell fouled to Rickert just over the left field line. Clark grounded out, Elliott to Torgerson.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Boston third: Dark singled to center and there was a tie in the Cleveland bull pen. Torgerson flied to Clark just behind second base. Dark holding first. Elliott struck out. Lemon threw out Rickert.

Cleveland fourth: Boudreau doubled down the right field line. Barrett warmed up again in the Braves' bull pen. Gordon singled to left, scoring Boudreau and Gordon went to second on the throw-in. Keltner fouled to Rickert. Gordon holding second. Doby singled to right, scoring Gordon. On the throw to the plate Doby went to second. Robinson lined to Rickert. Hegan was purposely passed. Lemon grounded out, Spahn to Torgerson.

Two runs, three hits, no errors, two left.

Boston fourth: Salkeld walked on a 3 and 2 pitch. M. McCormick singled to left on the first pitch, Salkeld stopping at second. Stanky sacrificed. Robinson to Gordon who covered first. Salkeld went to third and M. McCormick to second on the play. Spahn grounded out, Lemon to Robinson, the runners holding their bases. Holmes, on a 3 and 1 pitch, flied to Mitchell.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Cleveland fifth: Mitchell singled to left. Clark sacrificed, Torgerson to Stanky who covered first, Mitchell going to second. Barrett warmed up again for the Braves. Boudreau singled to center, scoring Mitchell. Salkeld and Southworth and catcher Salkeld went to the mound to confer with Spahn. The Braves' left hander was taken out and replaced by Barrett, a right hander.

Gordon grounded out, Torgerson unassisted, Boudreau going to second. It was not a sacrifice. Keltner grounded out, Elliott to Torgerson.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Boston fifth: Dark struck out. Torgerson grounded out Robinson to Lemon, who covered first. Elliott fouled to Hegan.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Cleveland sixth: Time was called while attendants brought out a new first base bag. The old one would not tick in place. Doby struck out going after a low curve ball. Robinson singled to center. Holmes made a one-handed catch of Hegan's line drive in right and threw to Torgerson to double Robinson off first base.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Boston sixth: Rickert popped to Boudreau. Salkeld walked for the second time. M. McCormick singled to center, Salkeld stopping at second. Masi ran for Salkeld. Stanky grounded into a double play, Boudreau to Gordon to Robinson.

Cleveland seventh: Masi went in to catch for the Braves. Lemon flied to Holmes along the right field line. Stanky made a nice pickup of Mitchell's grounder and threw him out at second.

COMMISSIONER BEGINS PLANS FOR RURAL ROADS

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 7.—Emerson Beauchamp, newly appointed Rural Highway Commissioner in charge of an expanded rural road program, declared today his intention to work toward development of a rural highway program in co-operation with county officials, public spirited groups and his associates in the State Highway Department.

"I intend to go to work immediately on plans for next year's rural road program," said Beauchamp. "The building of rural roads is not to be undertaken in a haphazard fashion," he said.

"We want the best advice possible, and we welcome suggestions from people in the counties—officials and citizens alike—on what roads are needed most. Then with co-operation of every one, local groups, county and state officials, we expect to proceed."

Beauchamp said, too, he intended to study proposed suggestions that are being made by the Highway Department's engineering staff as to the best method of distributing the funds to be spent under the increased gasoline tax law passed by the 1948 General Assembly. The new road year begins next April.

A definite method has not been determined upon how the additional funds are to be spent. The act makes it discretionary with the Highway Department as to how it will be expended, but tentative plans call distribution of a portion of the funds in each county in the state.

The governor already has promised to begin next spring the tax money from this source will be equitably distributed among the 120 counties of the state.

It is estimated that the added gasoline tax will bring into the Treasury approximately $8,000,000 which will be available for expenditure next spring.

Latest On Politics

By United Press

President Truman took off through Pennsylvania today in full cry against what he called the "unholy alliance" between the Republican party and big business.

The President planned to make five speeches in the Keystone State and wind up the day with a major address in Frank Hague's Democratic Citadel of Jersey City, N. J.

Mr. Truman's Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, meanwhile completed plans for a nine-state campaign trip that will start Sunday and will take him into the Midwest and as far South as Kentucky.

Confident of his own election, Dewey will devote most of his efforts to plumping for Republican Senatorial candidates in "doubtful" states.

During the second day of his three-day swing through the Northeast, Mr. Truman was expected to lambast the Republican record on labor and prices again as he did last night in Philadelphia.

Speaking to some 12,000 persons in the huge Convention Hall, the President charged that the Republicans are determined to herd all the "plain people" together in "one big company union and run it for the benefit of the National Association of Manufacturers."

He also chided Gov. Dewey and his Vice Presidential running mate, Gov. Earl Warren, on their familiar "unity" theme.

"They have all their promises wrapped up in a package called 'unity' which they guarantee to cure more ills than any patent medicine you ever saw," the President said, "and they won't tell you any more about what's in that package than a quack doctor will tell you about what's in the magic cure-all."

Mr. Truman will stump upper New York State tomorrow, then return to Washington for a Saturday conference on international affairs with Secretary of State George C. Marshall. Both he and Dewey will set out for the Midwest on Sunday.

The Republican standard bearer and his campaign manager, Herbert Brownell, Jr., worked out the final details of the Mid-Western trip yesterday. Dewey will make at least 38 appearances, including major speeches in Pittsburg, Kansas City and St. Paul.

Brownell said he believes the Governor's campaign is "in excellent shape." Reports on Dewey's recent Western tour, he said, indicate that the GOP candidate's speeches had an "encouraging" effect on Republican efforts to retain control of the senate.

—Elsewhere along the political front:

States' Rights—Bidding for Virginia's 11 electoral votes, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina assailed both President Truman and Dewey for supporting the Fair Employment practices proposal. The States' Rights Candidate said it was "the main plank in the Communist platform." In Maryland, the States' Rights party planned to appeal a superior court ruling barring the Thurmond-Wright ticket from the ballot.

Progressives—Progressive party candidate Henry A. Wallace told a San Francisco audience that the policy is "a gigantic red herring" intended to divert attention from the revival of a war economy at home. He also sided with the striking maritime workers in their fight against West coast shippers. The latter, said Wallace, are out to break the unions.

Forecast—All 50 of the political writers polled by Newsweek Magazine predicted that Gov. Dewey would win the White House, and that the Republicans would retain control of both house and senate.

V-P. Candidates—"In" Chicago GOP Vice Presidential nominee Earl Warren hit at "secret deals" through which, he said, the Democratic administration has made its foreign policy commitments. Sen. Alben W. Barkley, Democratic Vice Presidential choice, said in Casper, Wyo., that the Republican policy for the West is characterized by "inaction" and "exploitation."

Crump—Democratic leader E. H. Crump of Tennessee came out for the States' Rights slate of Thurmond-Wright. Breaking a long silence on his stand in the election, Crump said: "Truman has sold the South down the river for Negro votes; Dewey is no friend of the South; Wallace is completely out."

Eighth Inning Single Wins First World Series Game For The Boston Braves

By Leo H. Petersen
United Press Sports Editor
BOSTON, Oct. 6.—(U.P.)—The Boston Braves, behind the stout-hearted pitching of big Johnny Sain, won the first game of the 1948 World Series today, 1 to 0, on an eighth inning single by Tommy Holmes, one of the two hits yielded by Bobby Feller of Cleveland.

Bill Salkeld, who drew the starting catching assignment from Manager Billy Southworth, started the victors off when he drew the second pass yielded by the Cleveland fireball.

That was the end of the ball game. The Indians got a break with two out in the ninth when Keltner raced all the way to second on Bob Elliott's wild throw to first on his grounder.

But Sain bore down and got Judnick on three straight strikes to shut the door on the Indians. It was the 10th two-hitter in series history and the second time a pitcher has lost with such a brilliant performance. The last two-hitter was pitched by Mort Cooper of the Cardinals against the Browns in 1944 and he, like Feller, lost.

It was a heart breaking defeat for Feller, one of the greatest pitchers in baseball history who finally achieved his ambition, to hurl in a World Series. But as well as he did, it wasn't good enough for Sain refused to yield.

The game was a tight one all the way. Keltner got the first hit of the game, stirring up the crowd of 40,133 for the first time in the second inning. It was a single to left with one out, but Sain disposed of Judnick and Eddie Robinson to get out of that hole.

In the third Elliott made his first error of the game, falling to center up with Jim Hegan's grounder. But Feller, Dale Mitchell and Larry Doby were easy outs. With one out in the fourth, Gordon got the second Cleveland hit, a single, and stole second as Keltner struck out, but Sain got Judnick on a fly ball.

It was a heart breaking defeat for Feller, one of the greatest pitchers in baseball history who most picked the Boston catcher off second. It was a close play and Boudreau protested Umpire Stewart's decision.

DOG TALES

A PUP AND HIS FAULTS
BY Tom Farley

A pup is a self-sufficient little animal. He comes complete with a great big heart for loving the whole world and a boundless capacity for fun and frolic.

Unfortunately, however, Mr. Pup also comes with certain propensities toward mischief, which if they're not corrected, can cause him to become a nuisance.

Three of these faults which you'll probably notice immediately are jumping up, chewing and begging.

When your pup jumps up shove him gently and quickly with your foot. This action will throw him off balance and he'll soon learn to connect this discomforting sensation with his jumping.

With an older dog, another routine which is claimed by many dog trainers to be more effective, may be used. As your dog jumped-up catch his front paws. Hold them firmly and walk him backward for about a dozen steps. This places all of his weight on his hindquarters and the unorthodox motion causes leg-weariness. Your friends will have to help you with this since your dog must be made to realize that his discomfort occurs whenever he jumps on a person and not merely on his master.

Chewing: Here you have a choice of two methods depending on whether you believe it's necessary to give your dog some object that is his personal property to chew to his heart content. Personally, we don't think so. Anyway, whenever he shows a desire to munch on your favorite bedroom slippers or your newest necktie take him by the loose skin on the back of his neck, shake him lightly and say "no" in a firm voice. If you must give him a "chewing piece" let it be a smooth, hard knuckle-bone from which he can't break off any intestine-entangling fragments.

Follow the procedure outlined above and after you say "no" give him the bone. Usually a few repetitions of this act will suffice to teach him that he's not to

Woman's Association Holds Meeting With Mrs. Wehling Tuesday

The Women's Association of the College Presbyterian Church held its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. J. G. Wehling, Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 with seven members present.

Mrs. Mary W. Brown, president, presided over the business session.

The group decided to have an all day foreign mission study of the book on China the second Tuesday in November at the home of Mrs. Wehling.

The nominating committee for the new officers for the coming year was appointed by Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Jessie Rogers, chairman, Miss Bertie Frye and Mrs. B. F. Scherffus were selected to serve.

An appeal was made for food and clothing for a needy local family.

The program for the meeting was on Alaska and Japan with two special stories taken from the "Presbyterian Life" given by Mrs. Jessie Rogers. Mrs. Charlie Crawford had charge of the devotional which was from the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians.

The hostess assisted by her daughter, Ella, served strawberry shortcake and coffee to the members and Mrs. Rogers' grandson, Frankie.

THOSE CRAZY BARTLETT'S

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

IT WAS, in Susan's ecstatic opinion, an altogether perfect day, a day to remember as long as she lived. She caught two fish that segued to her enormous, which Rusty did not try to help her land.

Rusty had a bit of luck with one bass, but it was obvious, even to the excited and all but delirious Susan, that Rusty's thoughts were a long way from the water.

They came back to the boat-house for lunch, because there was no safe place where they could tie up the motor, or even take it very close ashore, along that part of the river. The tide was going out, and Win said that if they wanted to fish again in the afternoon they should wait until the tide came in again. This river rose and two came away from the ocean, was salt, of course, and less than two feet with the tide. And handling a big business in such a spot meant they had to build a fire beneath a portable grill, to make coffee, or broil hamburgers or frankfurters—it was a very pleasant job.

Susan loved it. And Celia rejoiced in Susan's delight. Now and then she caught an odd, measuring look in Rusty's eyes as he looked at her, but when she looked back at him, he was gone.

Win had been very charming to Susan. He had not treated her with the exaggerated manner most grown-ups use toward children, but exactly as though she had been grown-up herself, and suddenly Susan burst out, in the midst of lunch, "I'm glad you're marrying Celia!"

Win did not try to conceal his delight. "Thanks, Susan. But weren't you at first?" asked Win.

The child blushed and said uncomfortably, "We—well, no, not exactly. You see, well, I had other things planned for Celia. But you are nice! I'm going to like it when you marry her!"

Rusty, with a queer little tauk look about his mouth, stood up and walked out on the veranda. For a moment Win's eyes followed him speculatively before they swung to Celia and his eyebrows went up a little and he made a swift little gesture of amusement and gratification.

There was an awkward silence, and then Susan said something and followed Rusty. A moment later they could be seen the tall, broad-shouldered young man and the thin little girl, going down the steps and out into the woods that surrounded the boat-house.

WIN came over and sat beside Celia. He put his arm about her and drew her close to him and kissed her.

"That's a very understanding little sister of yours, darling," he said contentedly. "Are you going to like it when I marry you?"

"Of course," said Celia, and trembled a little in his arm.

"Then how about setting a date?" said Win. "Tomorrow, maybe? Or next week, at the very latest?"

"Oh, no!" gasped Celia so sharply that she felt instantly impelled to apologize. "I mean—well, I couldn't marry you, Win, until Aunt Judith knows, and she's in Mexico and I'll have to write her."

Impudent Candid Mike Now Televised

NEW YORK (U.P.)—The couple in the restaurant were nettled when the impudent waiter told them there was nothing on the menu but liver, then sat down at their table and started munching crackers.

They didn't know that movie cameras were trained on them and that their "waiter" was Allen Funt, creator and m.c. of the radio comedy program, "Candid Mike." Funt now is adapting his candid interviews to television and his shows are appearing on the television station of the American Broadcasting Company.

Funt's radio show made a big hit. With a microphone hidden in the shrubbery, he sat down on a park bench and tried to make a date with a girl. He acted as a flirtatious shoeshine salesman, as a department store clerk who refused to sell his goods and in other roles. The spontaneous and usually hilarious interviews then were broadcast from transcription.

Now Funt is putting down the encounters on film and televising them. The water routine was one of his first broadcast and television shows. In another he posed as a doctor and explained to a four-year-old about babies.

One of his helpful mechanical gadgets is the two-way mirror which has a normal appearance from one side but is as transparent as a pane of ordinary glass from the other. With the camera behind the mirror, Funt plans such stunts as pictures of a girl making up her face in the powder room and a man performing his morning shave.

Funt, also has a station wagon with a camera concealed inside-for street corner interviews. He was standing beside the station wagon recently when a man came up and, for no plausible reason, began telling Funt all his troubles. The alert cameraman picked up the entire scene, which Funt says is one of his best yet.

SWEETS BUENOS AIRES BUENOS AIRES (U.P.)—American bubble gum is one of the few products to break the dollar shortage barrier with relative ease. Every child in the city wants bubble gum, according to the Buenos Aires Herald. Harrods Ltd., the famous British department store, told the children that bubble gum was on the way. When the great day arrived the entire stock disappeared the same morning. Five tiny pieces were sold for two pesos (about 50 cents) at Harrods but by the weekend, irate teachers reported schoolboys were blackmarking it for five pesos the piece. The Herald added that airmail letters to relatives in the United States resulted in bulging pockets of every airline passenger and official. At least one business man ordered a supply by cable for his clamoring clan. Power Of Reds Is Broken In Balkan 'Hot Corner'

TRIESTE (UP)—Communist power is broken in this one-time "hot corner" of the East-West struggle in Europe. Allied military government officials believe Trieste is more like just another support town now than the strident city which made headlines during the turbulent period from 1945 until early 1948. AMG officials are glad to have it that way. "We are quite satisfied that what once was one of Europe's toughest, most uncontrollable Communist parties now looks like the weakest one in Europe," they said. Trieste has done it. AMG officials said the Italian election defeat of Communism, the church's all-out anti-Communist campaign and the Tito-Cominform argument has so divided the Trieste Communists on nationalistic issues that no faction of the party packs a wallop any longer. "We do not have any fears for the future from local Communists," one AMG man said. "The Communist organization is a shadow of its former self." Trieste's mixed population of Slavs and Italians were bound to start trouble when the Free State of Trieste was first proposed. Slides were drawn either for Yugoslavia or for Italy. There was no popular support for the Free State idea, now repudiated by Anglo-American government leaders as well. But while nationalism was the first instinct, Communist leaders quickly moved to wield the anti-free state populists into a powerful fighting party, concentrating on fighting the Anglo-American occupation policy in the zone administered by AMG. AMG spokesmen said the Communist organization grew to its peak around 80,000 members at its peak. Parades and demonstrations, which were frequent, always drew up to 10,000 persons. Riots were common and AMG's job of trying to keep order in its zone of the Free State was a tough one. The Free State came into being with the signing of the peace treaty. The Yugoslav military took over control of the southern part of the state. The rest, including Trieste city and harbor, was run by AMG with 5,000 American and 5,000 British soldiers. The Communists concentrated on stirring up trouble in the local slum areas, accusing AMG of violating civil liberties, charging discrimination against Slavs and the harboring of known fascist criminals. The Communists campaigned for "unification" of the Free State, backing up Yugoslav forces toward the same goal, on Yugoslav terms. AMG plugged ahead with its independent policy. The standard of living rose steadily until Trieste city and the rest of the Anglo-American zone was in a remarkably good condition compared with the hungry Yugoslav zone. Citizens were given more and more voice in the zone's administration and the Communists were checked in every effort to get control of key positions. The April 18 election defeat of Communism in Italy hit the Trieste party hard. Italianis began bolting the party and Slavs, listening more intently to Tito's nationalistic propaganda, began ignoring the Cominform's pronouncements. The Tito-Cominform break was the last straw. Slavs lined up on the side of Tito. They are still Communists but more nationalistic in favor of Yugoslavia than anything else. The pro-Cominform Communists regrouped slowly and before they collected themselves, the Titoists managed to snatch the party's funds, leaving the others broke. At Long Last PINE RIVER, Wis. (UP)—The First Congregational church here has just had its only wedding in 30 years. Nina Stewart became Mrs. Donald Peterson in the first wedding ceremony held in the church.

What They Laugh At In England Appears Just As Funny To Them

LONDON (U.P.)—In vaudeville they used to say, "He who laughs last is English." He who laughs last is English. But the British know that old cliché about their alleged lack of a sense of humor isn't true. They laugh as often and with the same response as the Americans. Only they don't always laugh at the same things.

This probably is natural, considering there is an ocean between the two nations. Recently a British poll was taken on who laughed at what and when in this country.

It showed that the British city dweller is more apt to laugh at jokes about war and current affairs, while the countryman guffaws mainly at domestic humor.

People over 40 laugh more at religion and drinkiness and direct stories. Younger folk seem to go for "shaggy dog" stories.

All the above refers to printable jokes. Both sexes and all ages giggled and smirked at the other kind and the poll takers reported that 4,000 of the 10,000 jokes they analyzed couldn't be printed in any form.

"I can enjoy no joke but one that is low and funny," a housewife told the poll-takers. "This combination pleases me immensely. Otherwise my life is pure and simple."

Four years ago the same poll asked the same questions on humor and decided that this was the favorite British joke. Having ordered a plate of cabbage a restaurant customer plastered it over his head. "What are you doing with that cabbage?" demanded the proprietor. "Is that cabbage?" said the customer. "I thought it was spinach."

The same joke has reappeared in many forms in this year's poll. Here's one of the variations: A man enters a pub, orders a beer, drains it and walks straight up the wall, across the ceiling, down the other side and out of the door. "That's odd," said another man at the bar. "Yes," said the barmaid, "he usually orders ale."

"And another," says a man to a friend. "Julius Caesar got on the number 9 bus with me at Marble Arch and told me he had to race back to Rome for the idea of March."

"You're lying," snapped the friend. "The number 9 bus doesn't go to Marble Arch."

Among other typical jokes that the British find funny were these: "Two spinsters went for a tramp in the woods—he got away."

A friend met Harry Pollitt, British Communist leader in brilliant sunshine with his umbrella up. "It's raining in Moscow," Comrade Harry explained.

Winston Churchill met Health Minister Aneurin Bevan in the House of Commons and the Socialist leader asked Churchill for two-pence to ring up a friend. "Here's fourpence," said Churchill, "ring up all your friends."

A child climbed on a hobby horse in a department store and refused to get off. The store psychologist was called and after he whispered in the child's ear it immediately went home with its mother. "What did you say?" marvelled the mother, "to make my naughty child so obedient?" Said the psychologist: "I merely whispered 'get off that hobby horse or I'll break your dashed neck!'"

What's funny about all-health? Here's one British example: A friend spends an hour con-templating a bedridden comrade. After 60 minutes of solid comforting he turns to go, trips over the door jamb. And mutters aloud: "What a helluva place to carry a coffin."

HOLLYWOOD FILM SHOP

Hollywood (U.P.)—Porter Hall is the unfortunate psychiatrist who had to rule that Santa Claus is crazy.

That was the last straw. The kids in his neighborhood used to say nasty things to him. Now they don't speak to him at all.

"In a way, this is sort of a relief," Hall said. "How can a man achieve dignity in his neighborhood and standing among his friends if small children are always yelling after him?"

"Why aren't you in Alcatraz?" Hall has had a long career as a movie villain, and while it's made him a bank-full of money it hasn't made him happy. People always are making nasty remarks to him and writing mean letters.

He was the psychiatrist, you'll remember, who examined Santa Claus for sanity in "Miracle on 34th Street."

"That was bad," he said, "in view of my previous record. I killed Gary Cooper in 'The Plainsman,' you see, a few years ago. For months, children bleached when I appeared."

"I admit the murder, but I did it fair and square according to the rules of the script. I didn't give him a single mean glance that the writers didn't order."

After his role as the psychiatrist, Hall received bundles of letters, all unfavorable.

"I was just doing my duty," he said. "It's possible Santa Claus may have benefited by my conclusions. Actually, I love Santa Claus. I love children, too, but the feeling isn't mutual."

Hall is playing an attorney now in 20th Century-Fox's "That Wonderful Urge." He's glad to have a part that won't destroy his character any further.

"I'm a little on the sharp side as a lawyer," he admitted, "but I can't do any harm either to Tyrone Power or Gene Tierney. The 10-year-olds who see this picture won't have any cause to hate me."

U. S. Counter-Spies To Re-Live Cloak And Dagger Days

CHICAGO (U.P.)—War stories to end all war stories will be told and re-told in Chicago when the Counter Intelligence Corps Association meets this month.

The CIC are the boys who steal away the cloaks and blunt the daggers of the enemy cloak and dagger boys.

The army depends on the CIC to stop sabotage before it starts and to catch enemy spies before they have a chance to do any spying.

The 450 members of the Chicago association, all former agents, took the initiative in forming the scattered local groups into a national organization, said C. Kenneth Crowell, a member of the board of directors.

Crowell, former Lt. Col. in charge of the CIC detachment with the 7th Army, said the association has a dual purpose.

"We hope to renew friendships with men who shared common experiences and we hope to keep the nation intelligence conscious and prepared," he said.

When we were chosen to do this work after Pearl Harbor, we found the army was disinterested in counter-espionage. It wasn't until we produced results that we were accepted," Crowell said.

"We also found the Army rank-conscious," he said. "Men who were lawyers and newspaper executives were given corporals' rank."

"Under-ranking created morale problems—naturally," Crowell continued. "Overseas we solved it by putting our non-coms in news correspondents' clothing. Then a corporal could rush in, tell a general how to stop sabotage in his command and not waste time saluting."

"If the Germans made any moves about their intelligence service I suppose we were cast as the villains," Crowell observed.

"Our biggest job was keeping the atomic bomb secret," Crowell said. The success of the CIC on the more important job can be judged by the extraordinary efforts made
