Murray Sends Large Delegation To Cairo Festivities Today

Bobby Sue Orr To Compete In Queen Contest

A large delegation left Murray this morning to participate in the bridge-building ceremonies at Cairo, Egypt, today. The bridge to be freed from toll charges spans the Nile river at Cairo.

Occupying an honored place in the delegation is Miss Sue Orr who will represent Murray in the Beauty Contest. Miss Orr, daughter of Mrs. Goldie Orr, Murray, is a student at Murray State college. She was selected by the executive board of the Murray Women's Club.

A giant float was prepared jointly by the city and college to take part in the parade which was scheduled for 11:05 this morning. The float, which won second prize in the college homecoming parade here, was reworked by six boys and nine girls who are members of the college Dramatics club. Miss Orr rode on the float in the parade.

Also taking part in the parade and the festivities during the day are the Murray State college and Murray high school bands.

The motorcade from Murray left the high school this morning at 8:00 o'clock led by Col. Brigham Futrell of the state police. Included among those from Murray who took part in the procession were Dr. Ralph Woods, Marvin Wrathe, Paul Gholson, Carrie Hendon, Owen Billington, Max Hurt, Mrs. Aubrey Hatcher and Mrs. Max Crawford. At 7:30 this evening the Murray delegation will be in the city of Cairo, Egypt, for the day's festivities. Included in the day's festivities were speeches at 10:00 o'clock this morning by the governors of Kentucky, Missouri and Illinois; the parade; entertainment at 1:30; and boat races and an air show at 2:30. At 7:30 this evening a fireworks display will be presented, and at 9:00 o'clock the Bridge Queen will be crowned at a ball in the Cairo armory.

Murray Delegates Attend Meeting

Those attending from Murray were the pastor of the First Methodist church, Rev. George Bell; Dr. S. D. Sexton, delegate; Tom Stokes, reserve delegate; Dr. Fred Melien and Prof. Leslie Putnam.

KENTUCKY TEAMS PLAY FIVE GAMES THIS WEEKEND

By United Press

Kentucky college football teams declared no armistice today, despite the date. Instead, they lined up for a five-game football weekend.

Murray's Thoroughbreds, with the classic won-lost mark in the state, get into action first with a game tonight at Murfreesboro, Tenn. against Middle Tennessee State.

The Breds will carry a record of six victories against only one defeat against the Blue Raiders at Murfreesboro.

The leadership in the Ohio Valley Conference will be at stake Saturday night when Louisville travels to Evansville. The Indiana entry has won both of its conference starts while Louisville defeated Western in its lone conference game.

Louisville can't win the conference title, since it plays only these two league games.

At Lexington Saturday afternoon Kentucky will be taking on a one-die Florida Gator that has suddenly developed teeth. The Gators pushed Georgia to a 20-12 margin last week, and probably will rate a slight edge over the Wildcats.

Another OVC game will pit Eastern against Western at Bowling Green Saturday afternoon. But Centre takes on perhaps the toughest job of all, relatively speaking, at Hanover, Ind.

The Hanover college crew currently is leading all the small college teams in the nation in scoring, and in total yardage. Centre's 28-19 victory over southwestern last week afforded some cause for Louisville optimism, however.

FORMER CALLOWAYAN DIES IN PADUCAH

D. G. Stubblefield, formerly of Paducah Tuesday, died at Paducah Tuesday and was buried at Mt. Pleasant cemetery this morning. Funeral services were conducted at Mason's Chapel, near Hazel by Revs. Underwood and Rev. Lax. Mrs. Roy Craig, Hazel, is a sister.

Mr. Stubblefield left Calloway in 1925 and for a number of years has been engaged in the real estate business in Paducah.

WARTIME CASUALTIES RESTORED—With the aid of a magnifying glass and a sharp knife, Jacob Kohnert removes the bindings from salt-encrusted books. Some 200 volumes of valuable, old books recently were discovered in a salt mine in Germany's Harz Mountains, where they had been stored by the Berlin State Library during bombing of Berlin. As a result of this experienced bookbinder's painstaking work, it now seems that the salvaged books will be almost as good as new.

Lions Club To Present Male Beauty Show

Murray women are invited to practice up on their wits and help their man win the all-male beauty contest which will be presented by the Lions Club in the Murray high school auditorium Thursday, Nov. 18.

Approximately 25 Lions will parade across the stage in their wife's best evening gown until the three most pulchritudinous males are selected. (Bathing suits will not be permitted). The escorts for the fragile she-males will be Leonard Vaughn and Oliver McLemore.

The winners will be selected by a process of elimination. Although judges from out-of-town will make the actual selections, the applause of the audience will no doubt have an influential effect.

At various times during the evening, selections will be presented by the Lion's quartet. Six high school girls will offer several tap dancing numbers. Leslie Putnam will be at the piano throughout the program.

Tables, chairs, divans and lamps are especially needed to furnish the rooms, according to Quartermaster Brown-Tucker. Those who have articles to contribute may phone 483.

The rooms will be used for the regular monthly meeting and will also be maintained as a private club for members. The newly-formed V. F. W. Auxiliary will also meet there.

Annual Homecoming Planned At High School Tomorrow

MANY KENTUCKY TOWNS CELEBRATE ARMISTICE DAY

Kentuckians have planned only short, formal ceremonies today in honor of the 126,000 Americans who lost their lives in World War I.

These are sponsored for the most part by the American Legion and other veterans' organizations.

This marks the 30th anniversary of the end of hostilities in the war to "make the world safe for Democracy."

Other days—V. E. and V. J. and other figures—approximately 315,000 American World War II dead—have taken away some of the majesty of the 11th of November.

Perhaps the most impressive observance will come in Louisville tonight. A parade with 1,500 men and 143 Army vehicles will march through downtown streets. Floats and bands will be included. Fort Knox, the Kentucky National guard, veterans organizations and industrial groups will be represented.

Kentucky schools will be in session, but special Armistice Day programs will be held in most of them.

Lexington will hold its annual ceremonies in front of the Fayette county courthouse. It will have a 25-unit parade, and the local chapter of American War Mothers will present awards for service to disabled and needy veterans. Circuit Judge Chester D. Adams will be principal speaker.

A memorial retreat honoring the late General John J. Pershing, supreme American commander in the first war, will be held this afternoon at the University of Kentucky.

Post Office deliveries and service throughout the state will be on a holiday basis. Most federal and state offices will be closed.

The Danville American Legion post scheduled a special Armistice Day program for members. Principal speech will be made by the newly-elected Eighth American Legion district commander.

At Versailles, a brief Memorial service is planned in the American Legion lot of the local cemetery. The Rev. Thomas J. Powers of the Baptist church will speak.

Colonel Philip Ardery, commander of the Kentucky air national guard, will speak in ceremonies at Millersburg. Millersburg military institute students will march in a parade preceding the speech, along with students from Bourbon county high school.

At a recent meeting of the Murray State college chapter of the American Red Cross, Miss Jo Hurdle was named president.

Other officers elected were Miss Mary Lou King, vice-president; Miss Clara Jane Miller, secretary; Hal Fiser, treasurer; Miss Mae Odyke, chairman of the entertainment committee; and Miss Ann Crisp, reporter.

The group voted to send Len Foster and his orchestra to Outwood hospital Sunday, Nov. 14, to entertain the veterans. Several musical selections and skits will be presented.

Sports Roundup

The United Press learned today that "Sugar" Ray Robinson has defended his welterweight title for the last time.

Robinson, one of the greatest all-around fighters in the history of boxing, will give up his title before the end of the year and start campaigning in the middleweight division.

The reason behind this move is that Robinson is unwilling to risk the fate of the late Joe Gans, another great Negro champion. Gans, who held the lightweight championship from 1902 through 1908, died of tuberculosis in 1910. The constant grind of paring down to the lightweight limit, then 133 pounds, was the cause of Gans' death. And Robinson doesn't intend to run into the same trouble. Robinson isn't tubercular. But Sugar Ray is far from being robust despite his impressive ring career of only one defeat and one loss in 90 professional fights. Robinson is subject to severe colds and similar ailments and he fears that constantly having to seat off weight will weaken his condition and lead into T. B.

Robinson has had trouble making the 147 pound limit ever since winning the welterweight title by outpointing Tommy Bell of Youngstown in December of 1946. Since that time, Sugar Ray has successfully defended his title three times against Jimmy Doyle, Chuck Taylor and Bernie Docusen. Robinson had so much trouble making the weight against Docusen that he barely managed to hang on to his crown over a 15-round rout.

Further proof that Robinson is ready to leave the welterweight class came last September when he signed to meet Kid Gavilan in a non-title scrap. Robinson posted a five-thousand dollar bond that he would enter the ring at 150 pounds or less. The best Robinson could do was make 150 and one-half pounds. Sugar Ray won, but not impressively. Gavilan, who fights Tony Pellone this Friday night in New York, did not claim the five-thousand dollar bond.

With Robinson out of the picture, the welterweight title will be tossed among several leading challengers. Gavilan and Pellone are among the top notchers with Gene Burton, Charlie Fusari, Bernie Docusen, Ben Buker of Havana and Frankie Fernandez of Hawaii. Then, of course, Lightweight champion Ike Williams may have something to say about it. Williams has been threatening to move up into the Welterweight class for some time.

Both the Big Nine and the Pacific Coast conference feel that the present five year Rose Bowl pact isn't the best in the world—but it will have to do until the real thing comes along.

Yesterday, eight of the Big Nine teams strung along with the agreement. The Pacific Coast conference today gave its stamp approval—but with one big qualification. The west coast clubs still frown on the Big Nine ruling preventing its champion from going to the Rose Bowl more than once every three years.

Athletic director Al Masters at Stanford says "it's a good set-up—but I don't like the idea of the Big Nine sending a second place team if its champion should repeat." Brutus Hamilton of California agrees with Masters, and so does George Green of Idaho.

Faculty representative Professor Hugh Willet of Southern California wants to give the pact more of a chance. He points out that the five year plan only has been in operation two years. J. H. Böhler of Washington State says "the agreement is fine." Wilbur Johns of UCLA and Harvey Casall of Washington refused to comment.

Art Lichtman of Oregon merely chuckles and says "anybody who hasn't been in the Rose Bowl as long as Oregon hasn't got a kick coming on any agreement." The Webfoots last visited the Rose Bowl in 1920—but are challenging California for that honor this year.

Dayton, O.

One of America's pioneers in golf—Herman Shute is dead.

The 70-year-old Shute, father-teacher of pro Denny Shute, died last night in Dayton, Ohio after an illness of two weeks. The elder Shute, born in Bedford, England, started playing golf at the age of 13. Last summer was his 47th season as an active professional.

Albany, N. Y.

Rangy George Weber, star center of Siena college last year, may sign with St. Louis of the basketball association of America.

The six foot, seven inch Weber scored 362 points for Siena last year. He was released by the Chicago Stags last week and has been working out with the Saratoga Indians of the New York State league.

Cambridge, Mass.

The use of plastic helmets will be banned after the 1949 collegiate football season.

William Bingham, chairman of the National football rules committee, made this decision after movies of Saturdays game with Princeton revealed that a plastic helmet was the cause of Harvard Captain Ken O'Donnell's broken ankle. O'Donnell's ankle slipped when it came in contact with a plastic helmet.

Bingham says helmet manufacturers were told last year to stop making the plastic type.

MARY MOSS CARR

The following tribute is given in memory of Mary Moss Carr by the members of the Murray Branch of the American Association of University Women.

In the death of Mary Moss Carr on September 18, 1948, the members of the American Association of University Women feel for their organizer and first president a deep and abiding sense of loss. She was deeply devoted to this organization, the college, and the community and unwavering in her loyalty to the cause of education to which her life was dedicated.

Born in Horse Cave, Kentucky, she graduated from George Peabody College and Columbia University and taught in various schools in Kentucky. She came to Murray State College as its first woman faculty member and the first head of the English Department. After her marriage to Dr. John W. Carr, she labored diligently, worthily, and unselfishly for her home, college and community.

Through her strong Christian character and clean-cut concept of her duties, she met life's challenges with rare courage and unflinching purpose.

KEMP'S BALSAM

DESERT DESTINY

by JOSEPH CHADWICK

Tracy Hayden has always lived on the Arizona ranch owned by old Senora Maria Garrison, widow of a cattle baron. She's a favorite of the old lady, for she loves the ranch, whereas the Senora's only surviving son, Ramon, and her grandchildren, Juan and Ruth, take no interest in it, especially as it has not prospered under the management of Clint Hanlon. When the Senora hears of an adventurous grandson, Phil Garrison, whom she has never seen, she sends Tracy to Baltimore to bring him West, hoping that he will take charge of the ranch. The other Garrison disapprove, for they fear she may make him her heir. Tracy mistakes the man, Jim Conroy, for Phil and brings him back to the ranch. He has trouble with a Mexican cowboy, Jose, who hints that he was hired to take a shot at him. Then Tracy discovers that Jim is an impostor. She's right, but agrees that he should continue the imposture in order not to disappoint the Senora. The next morning, he goes for a ride with Ruth, who has been flirting with him to the annoyance of her beau, Pete Donohue. Tracy, who goes for a ride, sees them together and is jealous. A few minutes later, Jim's horse is shot from under him by a hidden marksman.

CHAPTER XX

TRACY had heard the gunshot and, jerking her pony to a halt, had swung round just in time to see Jim and his horse fall. She sat rigid until she saw Jim roll to shelter behind a stand of rock.

Then, her eyes searched the slope above him. It was studied with boulders and an occasional clump of brush. Whoever had fired that shot might be hidden somewhere on that slope. Even as this thought passed through her head she caught a glimpse of a man stealthily making his way up the hill. He disappeared among the rocks, reappeared an instant then was gone.

She put heels to her pony and rode down into the valley. There could no longer be any doubt that Jim's life was in danger—that some one on the ranch was desperately anxious to get rid of him.

As she drew near the rock formation behind which he and Ruth were crouching, they rose to face her. Jim's face was grim. Ruth's pale with shock. The girl's pallor the faint in her eyes, proved that she at least, was one Garrison who had no part in this ugly plot against Jim.

Tracy drew her horse up short and swung down.

"A man was up on that slope," she said breathlessly. "Hiding among the rocks, I saw him from the opposite hill."

"Did you recognize him?" Jim demanded.

"No—the distance was too great."

JIM turned toward the slope. He heaved a sigh, moving upward among the jutting rocks. Tracy and Ruth followed.

When they overtook him, he was starting down at some prints in the dust. The marks had been made by high-heeled cowboy boots. They told nothing for nearly every man on the ranch wore such boots—the vaqueros, the range foremen, Clint Hanlon and at times even Juan Garrison. Ramon was the only exception. Tracy could not recall ever having seen Ramon wear ranch clothes of any sort.

Jim muttered, "The fellow fired from here all right."

He continued climbing, with the girls following. All three were winded when they reached the top of the hill.

To the west lay the flatlands. There was a herd of cattle a mile distant, away and beyond the herd, three horsemen. Nearer still, below a car was coming along a road from the direction of the ranch house. It was a station wagon, and Tracy knew its driver was Clint Hanlon.

Unconsciously she said, "He's coming this way, not driving away."

Jim shot her a look. "Clint Hanlon?"

"Yes. But it couldn't have been he."

To the east, was the range of hills which the one where they stood was a part. They followed the crest to its edge, and looked down upon a rock-filled gulch.

The descended, crossed the gulch. They came to a tunnel-like break in the sheer rock wall, passed through the tunnel, and came out into a wide ravine. The ravine was filled with huge boulders. Through it echoed the clon-clop-clop of a horse's hoofs.

Jim assured the girls to move back into the tunnel. They obeyed, but Tracy watched him move through the rocks and climb upon one that was top-shaped. The sound of the horse came closer. Suddenly, Jim lifted himself up, then dropped from Tracy's sight. She heard a man cry out.

Ruth ran forward, and she and Tracy came upon Jim just beyond the table-rock. He had flung himself down on a rider, dragging the man from his mount. Now as the horse moved nervously away, Jim had the rider on the ground, pinioned down with one knee. He had taken the gun the man carried and was examining it.

The man was Pete Donohue.

JIM got up, and gestured for Pete to rise. Pete struggled up, looking dazed. Tracy noticed that he wore high-heeled boots, but they meant nothing, she told herself. It was the gun that counted.

Jim said, "This gun has been fired. It's a forty-five and it could kill a horse from quite a distance. Where have you been doing your target practice, Donohue?"

"I saw a rattlesnake and took a shot at it. What's the idea, dragging me off my horse? You darned near broke my back!"

"I didn't want to give you a chance to mistake me for a rattlesnake," Jim said. "Are you sure that you didn't shoot at me a little while back?"

"Why should I shoot at you? I've got nothing against you."

"All right, friend—all right," Jim handed Pete the gun, but Tracy saw that he wasn't convinced that the man was innocent.

He turned to the girls. "We may as well go back to the house. There is nothing to be learned here."

As they started back toward the tunnel, Pete shouted at them.

"Look here—I don't like this being accused of attempted murder!"

Jim turned and faced him again. "If I've made a mistake, Donohue, I'm sorry."

"You play too rough," Pete said angrily. "You better make sure of your man the next time you jump on somebody." He started after his horse, then swung back. "If you're interested in blaming anybody besides me, you must look through these hills for that Mexican. Jose. I saw him an hour or more ago. A couple of miles from here."

Jim's eyes flickered. "Thanks. I am interested."

HE AND the girls left Pete then, and made the difficult trip back to the valley where they had left the two remaining horses. They headed homeward, the two girls riding and Jim walking.

Clint Hanlon overtook them in the station wagon before they were halfway to the ranch house.

"Did your horse bolt and set you foot, Mr. Garrison?" he called to Jim.

Jim said tersely, "Something like that."

He walked to the car, opened one of the rear doors and looked inside. Reaching in, he brought out a rifle.

Tracy's glance darted to Clint Hanlon. Was it possible? No, she saw only surprise in Clint's expression. She looked back at Jim. He had opened the rifle's magazine. He closed it again, returned the gun to the car.

"How about a bit to the ranch house?" he asked Clint.

Tracy concluded that the ride and showed no sign of having been fired recently. She felt a vast relief as Clint Hanlon.

Mrs. Mary Williams, 68, suffered a stroke of paralysis at her home in Liberty district Friday and succumbed to the same there Sunday morning at 7:50.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2:00 p.m. Monday by the Rev. J. H. Thurman at Ledbetter Church where Mrs. Williams has been a member since early girlhood. Miss Emma Dean Smith of Friendship district supplied piano music for the duets sang by she and Mr. Owen Billington of Murray. Burial was in the church cemetery with the Max Churchill funeral home in charge.

Mrs. Williams is survived by two brothers: Mr. Joe Colson of Ledbetter district, and Mr. Jim Colson of Rockcastle, Ky.; four stepsons, Mr. Harley Williams of Murray, Mr. Everett Williams of Faxon, Mr. Arvie Williams of Liberty district, and Mr. Ovie Williams of the Pinebluff Highway; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Kate Thompson and Mrs. Lois Willoughby of Faxon. Those who served as pallbearers were, Mr. Ruff Willoughby and Roy Thompson, stepson-in-laws of the deceased and her stepsons, the Williams brothers.

Miss Kentucky II, a cruiser belonging to Leo Kiehl, an interest holder in the Capitol and variety theaters of Murray, left the Kentucky State Boat Docks Sunday to be housed in a boat harbor at Paducah for the winter season.

The cruiser was piloted by her captain, Tom Chambers, who is a native of the Mackinaw Island, and after storage of the vessel has been completed, Captain Chambers intends to pursue the course that leads to his isolated home land where horse-drawn carriages still hold sway as daily conveyances.

A social dinner was set Thursday at the home of Mrs. Florence Ragdale of Friendship district, by the ladies of Sugar Creek Baptist Church in honor of Mrs. Ragdale's birthday. Those present were, Mrs. William Garland, Mrs. Oma Houston, Mrs. Luther Garland, Mrs. Tiley McClain, Mrs. O. Williams, Mrs. Charley Hale, Mrs. R. L. Wallace, Mrs. Lucy Tutt and Mrs. Jenny Lovett. The attendance of the rally held at Liberty Church last Sunday numbered near the 400 mark. Food was served to the large number from the mess room afforded by the church building and all reports show a great joy to have been derived by all present from the devotional exercises selected for the 5th Sunday entertaining occasion, consecrated by the church for the religious benefit of mankind in general.

Among the six ministers of the Gospel who took part in the days rites were, Rev. Paul Snellgrove and Pastor E. A. Mathis of Murray and the Rev. R. E. Ladd of Paducah. Tobacco stripping time is here and the majority of the Ledbetter district is engaged in the same.

Battle of The Aged Groups
The director of the federal census thinks there will be a grim struggle between youth and age in the United States about 30 years hence.

Director J. C. Capi told the Cooper union in New York last night that the struggle will be over jobs. He said, the proportion of men and women over 45 in the United States is increasing steadily and also the proportion of people over 65. In the next 12 years the number of persons over 65 will jump by three millions.

He said that technological improvement might aggravate the rivalry of the young and old for jobs.

Director Capi also said plans for the 1960 census are running into difficulties. For one thing, there is a prospective shortage of census takers because employment is at an all time high level. For another, the housing shortage and the existence of trailer cities and other makeshift housing will make the enumeration more difficult.

Uranium Strike
A uranium strike that could pan out to be sensational rich is reported along the northeastern shore of Lake Superior in Ontario. Prospectors are rushing into the country and so far 25 claims have been staked out. The pitblende ore was spotted a month ago in coast line rock by Robert Campbell of the Campay Mining company.

The area of the strike is 73 miles northeast of Sault Sainte Marie and previously has been a fishing and vacationing country.

Cincinnati
Only 11 of the 16 major league baseball clubs took part in the annual draft meeting at Cincinnati today in which 18 players were picked up from the minor leagues.

The New York, Pittsburgh and the New York and Boston American league clubs failed to draft a player.

Included among the former major leaguers back to another try are catcher Ken Silvestri, infielder Bobby Blinnier and pitcher's Matt Surkont and Marv Grissom.

Not everybody in Calloway county subscribes to The Ledger & Times but nearly everybody reads it.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVYAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Irvin Cobb Hotel, Paducah, Wednesday night, November 17, from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. Mr. Shevyan says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly no matter the size or location but it will increase the circulation, strengthen the weakened parts, and thereby close the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments. Mr. Shevyan will be glad to demonstrate without charge. 6309 N. Artesian Ave., Chicago 45. Large incisional hernia or rupture following surgical operation especially solicited.
