Murray Breds Down Middle Tennessee Thursday, 26-12

Murray's powerful Thoroughbreds encountered more than a little trouble Thursday afternoon before downing a stubborn Middle Tennessee eleven, 26-12, in a homecoming game at Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Murray's straight power plays proved too much for the Tennessee club, which caused all its trouble with a sterling passing attack. The racehorses were always in command of the fray but were never in a position to let up.

Murray captured a big margin in total yards gained, but both teams mustered 15 first downs. Powell Puckett recovered a Tennessee fumble on the opponents' 15 yard line to set up the first marker with Joe Bronson dashing to pay dirt after six minutes of play in the opening quarter. A five-yard pass from Don Blackman to Angelo Varello climaxed a 53-yard march for Middle to knot the count

THE DEAD DIVIDED—A single strand of wire (arrow) once used by the U. S. Signal Corps stretches across the Gorizia Cemetery near Merna, to mark the new boundary between Italy and Yugoslavia.

On All Saint's Day, two Italian peasant women were arrested by frontier guards because they crossed the line to place flowers on the graves of their dead in the Yugoslav third of the cemetery. They were picked up on the grounds that they did not have Yugoslav passports or visas.

Contract For Completion Of New Science Building Awarded

A contract for completion of the new science building at Murray State college has been awarded to George Katterjohn of Paducah, according to an announcement today by Dr. Ralph Woods, president of the college.

The contract was awarded after an appropriation of $480,000, was approved this week by the State building commission which is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, the attorney general, the commissioner of finance and the commissioner of revenue.

Construction of the science building was begun a year ago by the Paducah firm with an original appropriation of $177,000. After the work got underway it was seen that the initial appropriation would not be enough for the completion of the building, so additional funds were requested.

The new structure will be a four-story modern science building including glass rooms, offices and laboratories. Housed in the building will be the biological, physical, agricultural and home economics science classes.

The new structure will harmonize well with the other buildings on the campus, according to the architect. The construction will be of brick and concrete slabs.

Work on the completion of the building will be started in the very near future, according to Katterjohn. The building may be completed by the beginning of the fall term next year, he said.

OFFICIALS BEGIN INVESTIGATION OF BRUTAL SLAYING

HARLAN, Ky., Nov. 12 (UP)—State and county officials are investigating the death of a 25-year-old woman, which a doctor has termed one of the most brutal ever committed in the Harlan area.

The woman, Estelene Jackson, of Vevra, died enroute to a Harlan hospital late Wednesday night. Yesterday Brazel Napier, 76, was arrested on a murder charge and held in jail without bond.

Dr. S. L. Andelman, who pronounced the woman dead on arrival at Harlan hospital, described the slaying as very brutal. Coroner Henry Skidmore says the body bore bruises about the eyes, face and legs.

Napier denies guilt in the slaying. He says he had been drinking with Miss Jackson Wednesday afternoon, and arranged to meet her again in the tavern at 8:30 p. m. He says when he returned, he found her injured in a darkened room where they were supposed to have met.

Napier told authorities he carried Miss Jackson to an upstairs room and put her on a bed. Officers said Napier reported he later moved her to a booth in the cafe, covered her with his coat, and asked that an ambulance and state police be called.

Napier went to his home and was arrested there shortly after.

Late Bulletins

Nanking Nationalist and communist troops have fought a tremendous all-night battle around the strategic rail city of Souchow in North China. The Nationalist claim victory, with 30,000 Communists killed, 40,000 captured, 4,000 disarmed, and thousands of others negotiating for surrender.

Berlin The American ambassador to Moscow, Walter Bedell Smith, arrived in Berlin today on his way to Paris. Smith says he left Moscow to give Mrs. Smith a little vacation. But he will confer with secretary of state Marshall on Russian-American relations when he reaches Paris in a few days.

Paris Secretary of State Marshall still wants to resign from President Truman's cabinet. However sources close to Marshall say the secretary has not talked to the President about quitting. Marshall is expected to state the United States position on Palestine at a news conference today. It's reported that Marshall will come out again for the Bernadotte plan—giving the southern Palestine desert to the Arabs and western Galilee to the Jews.

The acting United Nations peace-maker of Palestine—Dr. Ralph Bunche—has changed the defense lines for a proposed "no man's land" between Jews and Arabs in southern Palestine. However, Bunche has not yet revealed the locations of the new lines.

Parade, Game Featured In Hi School Homecoming Today

Annual homecoming festivities at Murray high school got under way at 10:15 this morning with a special assembly program in the auditorium. More than 40 alumni were noted in the audience.

Max Hurt, an alumnus, was the principal speaker. He talked for a few minutes on "Taking Pride in Your Alma Mater." Present members of the football squad were introduced, and 12 former stars were given a special ovation by the audience. The cheering was led by members of the pep squad.

A special feature of the program was the presentation of a trophy to the high school band for winning first prize in the VFW parade at the State encampment in Paducah. In the absence of Command. George Ed Overby of the local post, Supt. W. Z. Carter made the presentation to Mrs. Lee Williams, head of the department of music.

At 2:30 this afternoon the homecoming parade formed at the high school and marched through the business district of the city. In the lead car were Supt. W. Z. Carter and Principal W. B. Moser. Following were the high school band and 18 floats.

The main feature of the day will be the football game tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Holland stadium with Princeton high school. It is expected to be one of the best games of the year, with both teams evenly matched as to size and ability.

The festivities will close with a dance after the football game tonight at the Woman's Club house. The dance is sponsored by the junior class.

Lassiter Announces Beginning Of Progressive School Program

The schools in Calloway County are progressing smoothly and in a forward trend. This is possible only when parents and teachers are working with children in a cooperative way.

We are not satisfied with the present conditions but I think we are just beginning a program that will call for the best that the teacher, parent and children can offer. Our aim is and should be, the advancement of the child. We can think back what education was a few years ago and see we have made other changes in our country.

One duty of the teacher is to recognize and accept his professional obligation. In doing this we will attend workshops, teacher conferences and go to school when possible. One duty of the parent is to cooperate and work with the teacher, so that we may have a better school and a better community.

Sometimes parents are confused as to what they can do, sometimes they are willing to work, but do not understand how to add constructively. I believe if the parent and teacher will work out a program together we will have a better school. All of us must keep in mind the school is for the child, and all we do should be done with this in mind.

Most of the schools in the county have made some improvements in the looks of their buildings. The County Board of Education has bought paint and the schools have painted the inside of their classrooms. This is a demonstration of the cooperative spirit. The children are to be commended for the way they are working to improve the looks of their buildings. Some children are adding shrubbery around their buildings. When the children have the spirit to add to a school we can expect an improvement in every phase of the community.

A community that is showing the spirit of improvement will also show a minimum of juvenile delinquency. We as leaders have fallen short of our duty in helping develop the moral side of the child's life. Our schools should help improve those moral virtues that are essential to the successful life, that each of us has hoped for. We should realize the duty of God and direct our children in the light of the divine teaching. This is the best guarantee for a successful life.

I am proud of our teachers and the work that is being done but I am not satisfied. I want to go forward and offer the children in our schools the very best program that can be offered.

The County Board of Education is for any movement that will improve our schools. The teachers are anxious to improve, the parent's desire is for the children to get the best possible. There is only one thing to do, that is to unite into a strong team and work with only one thing in mind—That is the good of the child.

Under The Capitol Dome

Former President Herbert Hoover is asking a political miracle. He wants politicians to take politics out of the post office department.

That would be a sensational change. For example, in past years, the man who handled the vicious president's political campaign frequently became postmaster general. And this set the tone of most of the appointments within the department.

But it isn't the postmaster general at whom the former president is aiming. President Truman has at least temporarily taken care of that situation by promoting a career postal worker to cabinet rank, instead of making the usual political appointment.

There are 20,000 of them scattered in almost every hamlet, village, town and city in America. Each year, hundreds, sometimes thousands of vacancies occur. They are temporary appointments which provide easy patronage for victorious politicians to pay off obligations.

For instance, in the last Congress there were almost 3,000 appointments held up in the Republican controlled Senate. The GOP confident of election victory, felt desiring Republicans rather than defeated Democrats would be entitled to the jobs.

And that's just the point Herbert Hoover makes as chairman of the joint congressional-executive committee investigating the reorganization of government—being a member of a victorious party doesn't necessarily make a good postmaster.

Mr. Hoover wants to put all postmasters on a purely merit system. He wants to give the post office the right to hire all of them on the basis of merit without certain standards set up by the civil service commission. And he wants to repeal the senate right to confirm or deny the appointment.

Mr. Hoover would have the senate have a hand in only two post office appointments—that of postmaster general, and his major assistant—a new job Mr. Hoover would create with the title of director of the posts. The director would do the real work of running the department, put in case the postmaster general again became subject to political appointment.

It won't be an easy thing to ask congress and the winning party to do—to give up these thousands of patronage jobs. But strangely, the former president will find some support on Capitol Hill, even in the senate.

It is the postmaster general's appointments. Usually a senator or congressman's recommendations in the matter are followed at his party's headquarters which relay them to the White House.

However, many a Senator and congressman frequently have complaints about this task. They've claimed it's only led to more trouble than it's solved, because in making an appointment you make five enemies. In the past, some have said they'd gladly give up the patronage, if everyone else did the same. We'll soon learn whether this was just talk.

The former president's proposal doesn't mean that present postmasters would lose their jobs. It means that new ones would come up through a merit system, rather than through political appointment.

Mr. Hoover also has plans for a thorough revamping of the postal department which he believes will save some 300,000,000 dollars a year. First off, he would give the department a revolving fund so that it can operate almost as a private corporation. As it is now, he says, the budget for the post office is almost completely guess work. No big business of the size of the post office, according to Mr. Hoover, could operate efficiently under those circumstances.

Then he would allow the post office its own accountants to keep it up to date on its financial standing at all times. Under the present setup, he government accounting office takes care of the post office account. As a result, the postal department is always eight months behind on its accounts.

And finally, he would readjust certain special rates, to make these specialized services pay for themselves.

But he doesn't see any hope of taking the post office completely out of the red. It's been running at a loss of almost a half a million this year, and Mr. Hoover is confident he can cut that in half.

Sports Roundup

Bowl officials are finding it mighty tough to dig up enough top flight teams for the post-season games. And, there's little to comfort them after taking a look at the football schedule this weekend. Only five major clubs have managed to get this far without losing or being tied. Three of them—Army, Notre Dame and Michigan—can't or won't play post-season ball. Army and Notre Dame have made it a policy to pass up bowl games, Michigan is barred by a Big Nine ruling. The other two clubs with perfect records, Clemson and California, are bowl-conscious. Clemson looks like a good bet for the Sugar Bowl along with Oklahoma, North Carolina, Georgia and Michigan State. California must play in the Rose Bowl if it wins the Pacific coast conference title. The Southwest Conference champ goes to the Cotton Bowl, and that looks like Southern Methodist for the second straight year. Unbeaten, but once tied Penn State is reported to have won the bowl game, but changes are the Nittany lions could be persuaded to revisit the Cotton Bowl. Penn State and SMU played a 13 all tie last New Year's Day. Many a bowl bid will be settled after Saturday. Boston College is a slim favorite over William and Mary. Tennessee is the same slight choice over Mississippi. Tulane rates a one touchdown edge over Baylor. All of these clubs, along with many more, are receptive to a post-season game. Two Schools—Carnegie and undefeated Bowling Green—admitted having received 'feelers' from bowl committees. Canisius refuses to say which bowl committees have been talking with them. A Column For Women

Unsteady Hemline

It seems like correct length for your skirts in these days of unsteady hemlines depends on where you live.

The New York Manufacturers are busy slinging off at least an inch from dress lengths, putting hems 12 to 14 inches from the floor. But in St. Louis—a big clothing manufacturing area—the story is different.

The manufacturers, who appeal to the college-age girl and her post college sister, are apologetic for any frock cut to the modest mid-calf length.

The correct length, as they figure it, is 10 inches from the floor. A spokesman for the industry says, "The girls seem to want them that way. They can hack them off if they change their minds."

The younger set also seems to have sold dressmakers on simplicity and low prices. Most of the early spring outfits being shown now will retail at from 10 to 30 dollars. Full print dress and wool coat ensembles will sell for around 50 dollars complete.

A Boxer Named Henderson
Today we have a story about a fighter who's beginning to think maybe there are easier ways of making a living.

Packey O'Gatty, a retired pugilist who still packs a mean wallop, is the sparring partner of 72-year-old Mrs. Betty Henderson. She's the New York society matron who made big news last year when she parked her legs on a table at the opening of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Well, Packey says he's humiliated. The 72-year-old woman gave him a stiff uppercut that landed him smack on the floor.

Packey says, "I can't imagine it."

It really rocked me." For several hours, three times weekly, O'Gatty and Mrs. Henderson spar a few rounds in her swank Park Avenue apartment. The aged woman wears 16 ounce gloves shorts and a halter.

Packey says, "Ma is a real sport. I'm careful not to hit her very hard, but she packs a mean wallop."

WAC Recruiting
Do you want to be a WAC officer? The Army says that women from 19 to 28 may enlist to attend the officers' candidate school for six months at Camp Lee, Virginia. If you pass the course, you will be commissioned in the organized reserve corps to serve at least two years on active duty. At the end of your first year of active duty, you may be considered for appointment in the regular army.

Budget Stretchers
We know you have a grim look when you think of food prices these days. But here are some super-inexpensive ideas for nutritious, filling meals, given us by a woman's magazine, The Ladies' Home Journal.

One cup of dried beans simmered with a can of tomatoes and some salt pork, bacon or ham bone you've been hoarding; or plain spaghetti with lots of margarine and chopped chives. And cold canned tomatoes on toast aren't bad at all if you pour over them a hot, tasty cheese mixture. Top with bacon, if you have it, or try a few strips of bacon on top of some canned baked beans, blended in a casserole with catsup and brown sugar.

Household Hint
Here is today's household hint: After brown sugar has hardened, it can be made fresh again. Put it in a tight container and place a small, damp cloth on top.

Wanted: One single woman with 100,000 dollars.

Says Collier—"It makes absolutely no difference about age. The main thing is the money."
